COURT UPHOLDS PICKETING BAN

By Paul Mallon
WASHINGTON, June 17.—The silver policy usually assays three pounds of politics to one ounce of silver. That is why political mineralogists have been dashing about for a week trying to evaluate what Secretary Morgenthau said to Senator McCarran. On the surface, the latter appeared to say nothing except that the treasury was moving ahead with the policy as rapidly as any reasonable person could expect. But if you treat the letter with a special acid of expert analogy, you will find nuggets between the lines.

Up to now, Mr. Morgenthau has always lifted his hat when bowing to silver senators. This time, he lifted his nose, blandly asserting that "only those primarily interested in speculation in silver" would want to know what McCarran wanted to know.

These hints are only substantiation of other convincing but unimpeachable evidence that the treasury is looking at silver with a more realistic eye. The recent predicament about the world price seems to have caused the change.

Good church people are shivering the timbers of the navy with protests following the mid-Pacific maneuvers. A heavy surf has been rolling in from them.

Obviously, the peace lovers do not understand the inside purposes behind the maneuvers. The navy surrounded its activities with such semi-ridiculous wartime censorship that its silence has added to the case against it.

The truth is the war games were purely defensive. No unit of the

BEAT-UPS CITED BY OFFICERS IN OPPOSING PLEA

Decision Bolsters Governor Martin's Stand Against Interference With Mill Men Who Wish to Work

PORTLAND, Ore., June 17.—(AP)—Judge James W. Crawford today denied the application of officials of the Sawmill and Timber Workers' union for a temporary injunction prohibiting county and state officers from interfering with picketing at the Bridal Veil mill property east of Portland.

Union officials filed suit last week seeking to enjoin Sheriff Martin T. Pratt of Multnomah county, his deputies, and State Police Superintendent Charles P. Pray from arresting and dispersing pickets at county officers had lodged 237 of them in jail. Another 250 were scattered by state police.

The union based its plea for an injunction on the asserted right to "peaceful picketing." Sheriff Pratt contended picketing had not been peaceful and cited the beating of a truck driver near the Bridal Veil property last Monday. Union members claimed their men had nothing to do with the incident.

The circuit court decision today further bolsters Governor Charles Martin's announcement that picketing of mills by other than men previously employed in them must cease. The governor last week ordered mobilization of the state police to halt "jeering mobs and intimidation of workers," and declared the "entire resources of the state should be thrown behind law and order."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—(AP)—The four-month-old Pacific coast oil tanker strike is ended and the men "are getting back to work as fast as they can," George Larsen, secretary of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, said in answer to a telephone query today.

Termination of the protracted walkout followed by only a few days disbandment of a second federal mediation board attempting to negotiate a settlement. O. K. Cushing, chairman of the board, declared efforts to bring the disputants to peace terms failed because the board was powerless to take definite action.

At the several oil companies' marine departments it was reported today, strikers have been applying for work "in the usual way."

THE DALLES, Ore., June 17.—(AP)—The Miller Motor company garage was destroyed by fire here Sunday. Total loss, including several automobiles, a stock of electrical equipment and considerable furniture stored in the rear of the building was unofficially estimated by employees at $40,000.

TIGER WOMAN TEARFUL ON REGAINING FREEDOM

SISTER GREETES SLAYER AT PENITENTIARY GATE; TO MAKE HOME IN EAST

TRINIDAD, Calif., June 17.—(AP)—The woman they called a tiger because she slew another woman with a hammer, Clara Phillips, walked out of prison doors today.

"I can hardly believe it's true," she said with eyes bright, hands shaking and voice quivering. She was nervous, agitated, wholly unlike the woman fifteen years ago who was arrested for beating Alberta Meadows to death in a secluded hillspot in eastern Los Angeles.

She looked more like an actress than a woman being released after being held more than twelve years in the state penitentiary on a charge of murder.

A small black hat fit snugly over her wavy hair, a longish bob, and she wore a blue and white flowered dress.

Under the California law her prison sentence on conviction for second degree murder was indeterminate—ten years to life. Before commitment to the state prison she escaped from the Los Angeles county jail and was arrested months later in Honduras and returned to pay the debt to society for the killing of the woman she suspected of intimacy with her husband.

It was a small automobile in which she left the state prison, not unlike the machine in which she drove Alberta Meadows up the brown hillside
