Editorial Correspondence

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 13 .- Northern Illinois from the Mississippi river to Lake Michigan, is certainly a sight to behold at the present time. If Keats was right and a thing of beauty is really a "joy FOREVER",—then this section of the Middlewest can view its future without alarm, as far as its cup of happiness is concerned,—"Such beauty" said Keats, "never passes into nothingness." Perhaps not in the poet's mind. But we are not so sure of the mass mind in the corn belt. From what we have heard since our arrival if such a calamity, as,-say the renomination and re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt should occur a year hence, the joy and beauty of this perfect summer of 1935 will be quickly and completely forgotten,-just as quickly and completely as in the midst of this present riot of color and abundance,—the drought of just a year ago, is never mentioned. There is no such thing as memory in the mass. The genus homo ives for the day.

Delegates from what they call the "grass roots" convention at Springfield are coming home. We question the political propriety of that name, from the G. O. P. standpoint. It was coined by the late Senator Beveridge of Indiana, at the Bull Moose convention in 1912, and associated with the most scathing indictment of Republican reaction in political history. In the minds of the people of this generation—nearly a quarter of a century later,—"grass" will be associated with the campaign prediction of former President Hoover that if he were not reelected grass would grow in the streets of bankrupt America. As the men who originated this idea of the Springfield convention were largely of the extreme, reactionary type, we fear the time may come when that "grass roots" appelation will be regarded as rather an ironical one.

We have just returned from a walk with one of the Cook county delegates to this convention, along the grassy, treeshaded banks of the Rock river. He is an ex-service man, active in the American Legion, an intelligent, forward looking young man, sincerely anxious to serve his country; convinced that in securing the overthrow of President Roosevelt and the New Deal, this scryice will be rendered.

We thought he made one rather significant remark. Said he: "I am sure Roosevelt and the New Dealers are all wrong, but I don't know WHO is right." Considerable shrewd sense in that observation. Unquestionably Roosevelt has made mistakes-he said he would-it was a program of trial and error,and it is exceedingly easy to point them out AFTER the event, but it is not so easy either to pick out a man who would have done better, nor be at all sure of what the precise program should be NOW.

So many know what NOT to do, but who knows precisely what should be-or should HAVE been-DONE!

That extreme personal hatred of President Roosevelt which we observed in Wall Street a year ago has now reached Main Street in the Middlewest. Political sentiments may move from east to west with the sun.

In this city one can't walk up and down Main Street, and engage in conversation with any of its inhabitants for five minutes without having the president and his New Deal come up, for sneers or epithets, often both, before the conversation is ended. It is unquestionably the Main Street theme song, at the present time. The person who still questions that the president of the United States has grown horns and a tail, and deserves the fate of Benedict Arnold, or the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers, finds it hard sledding, to keep the conversation away from what

The answer is that Main Street is essentially just as conservative and averse to radical change as Wall Street. If one has any memory for partisan politics, it will be recalled, that the sentiment on Wall Street and Main Street against President Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson was not so many years ago much the same. Read your political history and you will find that the most heartily hatel presidents throughout our history, have been those who advocated CHANGE.

Among the Main Street intelligenzia here, the defeat of the Democratic party at the next election is taken for granted. As Hoover carried Rockford and Winnebago county, in 1932, this feeling should not be surprising. But it did surprise us to hear a prominent lawyer and former state legislator seriously maintain, that F. D. R. could NOT possibly secure the democratic nomination.

"The real democratic leaders in and out of congress" said he, "are all against him; they realize their only chance of victory lies in throwing him and his long baired professors overboard, cleaning house completely and under new leadership returning to first principles of Jefferson and Jackson."

If his other political predictions are no better founded than this one he disregarded, as a victim of Roosevelt-phobia and rather childish wishful thinking. For certainly if F.D.R. wants the nomination he is bound to get it.

We trust no one will conclude we are taking this precampaign political talk in this black Republican belt very seriously. No doubt if we had time or the inclination to canvas the factory sections, or stroll up and down Water street, we would have a very different story to tell. We are recording the violent anni-Roosevelts entire merely because entirely against our desire, we have been deluged with it, ever since our arrival, and outside of the extremely beautiful weather and country—never how.
