BEEKEEPERS WILL PICNIC ON SUNDAY

The Southern Oregon Beekeepers association will sponsor a big association picnic in the Ashland Lithia park Sunday, according to James Stewart, secretary of the organization. Ice cream and coffee will be served by the association, and everyone interested in bees is asked to come, whether they are members or not. The picnic is planned as a get-together to make the bee raisers of the valley acquainted with one another in advance of the big state beekeepers convention which is to be held here this fall.

New officers were chosen for the association a short time ago, with Walter Reece of Ashland installed as president, Xavier Widemer of Medford as vice president, and James Stewart, also of Medford, as secretary and treasurer.

$678,573 ALLOTTED TO OREGON FORESTS

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Allotments totaling $40,043,272 under the work relief program were approved late yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Of the $13,827,500 given the forestry department, Oregon was listed to receive $687,573 and Washington $626,744.

The remainder of the $40,043,272 was divided between the war department ($1,215,772) and a national program of soil erosion control ($25,000,000).

BETTER TIMES SEEN IN FARM DEBT PAYING

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Repayment by farmers and ranchers of some long-term land bank commissioner loans was regarded today by the farm credit administration "as an indication of better times."

"Optimism has developed quickly among farmers and ranchers since the drouth and dust storms retreated from the middle and southwest states," farm credit officials said. "Comments on conditions in Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and New Mexico indicate that since the recent rains farming prospects in many sections are the best in several years."

Seek Successor For Dr. Hunter

DENVER, June 21.—(AP)—The board of trustees of Denver university were seeking a successor today for Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, university chancellor, who resigned to accept a position in Oregon.

The resignation of Dr. Hunter was accepted "with reluctance," John Evans, chairman of the board, said.

Noted Columnist Pneumonia Victim

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Karl K. Kitchen, newspaper columnist and author, died today of a streptococcic infection and pneumonia.

Born in Cleveland, O., March 2, 1885, Kitchen was educated at Cornell university. His column for many years was a feature of the New York Evening World, and later of the New York Sun. He wrote two books, "The Night Side of Europe" and "After Dark in the War Capitals."

Before 1883, railroads in the United States were following 50 different time systems.

Comment on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS.

PLENTY of news in the papers on the day this is written—none of it of world-shaking importance, but all of it full of interest because it reflects human nature "as is."

CONVICTS in the Kansas state prison coal mine revolt—this being the third uprising since 1926. They demand appointment of a new prison physician and better-cooked food.

That MAY be the cause of the mutiny, but this writer—who, thank the Lord, lives in the West, where we burn wood that is cut above ground and oil that flows out of the ground or electricity that is carried on the wires—has an idea that digging coal down in a dark hole in the ground had something to do with it.

THE tale is going around Tacoma and leaking out over the press wires that Mrs. Margaret Waley, 19-year-old wife of the kidnaper of the little Weyerhaeuser boy is about to become a mother.

The tale has been neither confirmed nor authoritatively denied. Whether it is the truth or just propaganda to influence possible jurymen can not at present be judged.

A HONGKONG dispatch tells us that the Chinese cruisers Naichi and Haisen deserted from the Canton government the other day. The same cruisers had previously deserted FROM the Nanking government TO the Canton government.

This helps to explain some of China's troubles. If a nation is to get anywhere much in the world, it must have continuing loyalty from its people.

CLESSIE CUMMINS, pioneer in Diesel engine design, leaves New York for the Pacific coast in an oil-burning passenger automobile.

He expects to make the trip in about 10 days, and thinks his fuel cost should not be much more than EIGHT DOLLARS.

THAT item in the news is significant because it reflects interest on somebody's part in cheaper transportation. For years we've been specializing on speed without paying much attention to the cost.

NOTING the number of Diesel-motored trucks in operation, you may ask: "Why can't I have a Diesel passenger car NOW?"

The answer is that you can but wouldn't like it after you got it. If you're an average car buyer, you want to go from a standing start to 50 miles an hour in as near no time at all as can be achieved.

Diesel engines won't do that. They'll hold a steady, even pace economically, but they won't vary up and down the whole speed range at the whim of your toe on the throttle.

SO FAR, we prefer speed and flexibility, so that is what the car manufacturers have been giving us—being good business men whose aim is to sell what the customer wants—but it must be admitted that crossing the country at a fuel cost of $8 has its attractions.

Cofferdam Resists Columbia Freshet

BONNEVILLE, Ore., June 21.—(AP) Engineers said yesterday that the madly-whirling Columbia river at freshet stage, has left no hint of its power on the main channel cofferdam now more than 10 feet below the surface.

Excavation within the cofferdam for the main supply spillway dam was halted when the river began its usual spring rampage. Work on this portion of the project is expected to be resumed in August.
