POLICE SET FOR OPENING MILLS

By PAUL MALLON (Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon.) WASHINGTON, June 25.—Mr. Hull, the silent secretary of state, is silent only in public. About once a month his mountain blood rises. When it does, he goes agogging alone in his own quiet but relentless way, avoiding publicity and thus perpetuating his reputation as an easy-going person.

This time he is after the inner circles who are trying to turn the AAA cotton program into an export subsidy plan. He has prepared a confidential memorandum which has been sent to the cabinet textile committee and others in the top circle. It offers formidable opposition to a seven-cent government subsidy on cotton exports, suggested by the cotton textile institute and favored by Mr. Hull's old antagonist, George Peck, and several cotton congressmen.

It means there is going to be trouble. As Mr. Hull has never yet failed to win a new deal argument, the odds are distinctly in his favor. The confidential Hull memo says the subsidy plan would encourage foreign nations to retaliate and thus would start a new international tariff war. He thinks it violates the spirit of our own anti-dump statute for the government to permit unlimited production here and then dump cotton abroad for seven cents a pound less than our domestic price. It would cost the treasury a third of customs revenues (about $100,000,000 a year) to get rid of the processing tax that way, he says. It reminds him of the Coolidge-Hoover policy of lending money abroad to finance an abnormal export market. As you can see, he is not about it.

The cabinet textile committee already was in confusion before Mr. Hull's blast arrived. It is disclosed that the supreme court clipped its powers by the NRA decision, just as the decision affected nearly every other new deal agency. The decision stopped it from doing anything about wages, hours, production control. The only idea it could play with was Japanese imports, the processing tax, and the subsidy scheme which is contained in the AAA amendments now being passed in congress.

Now with Mr. Hull on a rampage against the subsidy, and the AAA inclined to agree with him, the committee is out in the middle of the car tracks with no place to go. When Lewis Douglas (president Roosevelt's ex-director of budgets) appeared at Amherst college recently to deliver a commencement address, he introduced as "the best president of the United States." Many people have been introduced that way who never became president, but it is a further indication of a probable surge for Douglas, of which you were warned two months ago.

One of those supposed to be interested confidentially in Douglas is Frank Stearns, the Boston friend of Calvin Coolidge. (Continued on Page Six)

SIDE GLANCES by TRIBUNE REPORTERS

Carl Von der Hellen kissing the hands of several women, carefully scrutinizing them first for signs of dirt which might prove injurious to his health. Eno Hemmilla whistling his dog "Peanut" to heel, and that perverse animal becoming promptly kittenish, cavorting about playfully before allowing himself to be caught. Charles Austin, city milk inspector, natively attired in a long white robe and a paper lid, entering a bank.

Traffic Cop Tom Robinson ordering a double-parked car to move on, then turning out of sight around the corner as the car backed up and remained in the original position. A load of girly forest fire fighters returning on a truck, with a load of charred tree trunks as some kind of "evidence." Gus Arnie, second baseman and utility pitcher for the local minis, joining the Yreks exodus, to play for that outfit. A salesman telling a prospective customer that his product was "cheap as dirt," and the customer (still prospective) waggishly ordering a "couple of acres of 'em." Vic Dalzell, barefooted, and in his underwear—"I still think I'm a slay for wearing a shirt."

MARTIAL LAW IS POSSIBILITY IN PORTLAND AREA

Governor Promises Local Authorities Assistance in Keeping Peace—Law and Order Seen Main Issue

SALEM, June 25.—(P)—Eighty state policemen under direct command of Superintendent Charles P. Pray, will be in Portland tomorrow morning when lumber mills will attempt reopening, Governor Charles H. Martin announced just prior to his departure to review the Oregon National Guard there this afternoon.

The state police, which has been mobilized in Salem the past 10 days, will be transferred to Portland to assist in preserving law and order when at least seven mills will resume operations after being closed by the lumber strike.

The only other statement the governor would make was that he had made preliminary arrangements to permit workers to go back to their places, if they so desired, without being intimidated.

What these arrangements would be would not state, but he had conferred during the morning with Pray and Ralph Moody, deputy attorney-general, and it was believed he would retain the National Guard there if necessary to insure protection. The guard, 3,100 strong, will parade the city streets there today just prior to (Continued on Page Three)

'Saving' of Clark Gable Given Up by Evangelist

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—(UP)—The Rev. Samuel J. Williams, fiery Ohio evangelist, who traveled 2500 miles to snatch Clark Gable from filmland's "luring path to sin," packed his traveling bags today and regretfully prepared to go home. "I am sorry to say," said the Rev. Mr. Williams, "that I did not convert Mr. Gable. I didn't even win him." The Rev. Mr. Williams said he was commanded by a vision, seen through the medium of one of his congregations at Hopedale, Ohio, to convert Gable from "the cinema path to sin" to the "salutary trail of evangelism." "I do not necessarily imply that Gable himself is guilty of sin," he said, "but the 'sin' depicted on the screen," the Rev. Mr. Williams pointed out. "But the suggestion, to four out of five, would be fatal."

DUCE AND BRITON EXCHANGE SHARP VIEWS AT PARLEY

ROME, June 25.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Capt. Anthony Eden of Great Britain held what was characterized as a sharp interchange of views late today on the Italo-Ethiopian situation. A British spokesman, following their meeting, said the two statesmen exchanged views with "great frankness."

It was generally admitted that no offer was made by Great Britain and no agreement was reached on the subject of Ethiopia.

An official communique, issued after their conference, winding up the two-day parley, said: "The head of the government and British Minister Eden had another conversation, lasting an hour, today, during which various European problems were examined on the lines of the February agreement in London and the Stresa resolution and it was agreed that these problems were susceptible of development for the stability of Europe. The Ethiopian question was also discussed."

'Saving' of Clark Gable Given Up by Evangelist

"I have wired him, telephoned his home, written letters, sought interviews through intermediaries," the Rev. Mr. Williams said. "I am not at all sure there is such a person." However, he left his message in the form of a neatly typed 21-page letter which he deposited with the maid at the Gable residence, together with a dollar. The Rev. Mr. Williams said he was commanded by a vision, seen through the medium of one of his congregations at Hopedale, Ohio, to convert Gable from "the cinema path to sin" to the "salutary trail of evangelism." "I do not necessarily imply that Gable himself is guilty of sin," he said, "but the 'sin' depicted on the screen," the Rev. Mr. Williams pointed out. CRIME CAPITAL OF NATION KICKS OUT CROOKED POLICE

St. Paul Editor and New Police Commissioner Clean Up City Where Three Major Kidnapings Pulled

By WILLIS EVANS (Copyright, 1935, by United Press) ST. PAUL, Minn., June 25.—(UP)—The St. Paul Daily News and a new police commissioner today rocked the city's police department to the very bottom of its firmly imbedded traditions in startling condemnation of the system that allowed six major kidnapings in three years and made St. Paul the "crime capital of the nation."

Commissioner H. E. Warren credited Daily News investigators, employed by the militant editor, Howard Kahn, with bringing about the fall of the dynasty reared by Police Chief John J. O'Connor 35 years ago.

The traditions upset today were those installed by O'Connor during his 18 years as chief. Briefly his philosophy was: "Let the crooks rest in St. Paul and they'll do their raising elsewhere."

Against the credo the Daily News opened its attack with banner line front page editorials in February, 1934, two days before the $200,000 abduction of Edward G. Bremer, banker scion of a wealthy family.

The News produced evidence to support its charges of police graft and collusion with the underworld. Mayor William Mahoney ordered a grand jury investigation.

On the day the grand jury reported John Dillinger shot his way out of a St. Paul police trap. The Daily News front page streamers read: "Criminals Hide in Police Administration. Dillinger Shoots Way out of City Apartment."

Shortly thereafter, United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings termed St. Paul "the nation's poison spot of crime," to which Mayor Mahoney replied that it was a "political plot."

Editor Kahn, of a youthful, military bearing, commented: "St. Paulites who were not blinded by local pride of political aspirations knew that Mr. Cummings spoke the truth."

Three major kidnapings, eight unsolved murders, innumerable daylight holdups, machine gun outrages, gang fights—all during a period of two years—have made citizens jittery.

Sheriff Syd L. Brown, who took four prisoners to the state penitentiary at Salem Monday, will return tomorrow with James Francis Brennan, alias Brennan, who was arrested by state police in Portland Saturday on a charge of passing a forged check on an Ashland jeweler. DEMOCRATS FEAR COALITION REVOLT AGAINST TAX PLAN

Conference Called to Stave Off Defeat in Finance Committee — Program Moving Too Fast, Plaint

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—Threatened by a coalition revolt against too speedy action on the administration new wealth tax program, senate Democratic leaders conferred privately today in an effort to stave off defeat in the finance committee.

Several Democrats had protested in Robinson's private office in the capitol after word passed that Chairman Harrison would have difficulty getting the new taxes through his committee as amendments to the nuisance tax extension resolution.

The committee was scheduled to meet later in the day, Harrison previously had announced he would offer the amendments on the floor if the committee did not approve.

Others, including Republican independents, were declaring the tentative program for $340,000,000 of new levies did not go far enough.

"This thing is rapidly becoming a farce," said Senator Borah (R., Ida.) of the record. "We passed a bill yesterday, to spend three times $340,000,000."

BARTLETT PRICES HARD TO PREDICT ON CURRENT CROP

With an estimated crop of between 16,000 and 17,000 tons of Rogue River valley Bartletts for the 1935 season; with only an estimated 62 per cent of a normal crop in California; with 70 per cent of the British fruit crop wiped out by the disastrous freeze of May 16 and 17, indications should be for a good price on local fruit this year, but such is not entirely the case, according to Guy W. Conner of Guy W. Conner, Inc.

Mr. Conner stated that so many adverse factors enter into the question at this time, that it is practically impossible to make a price estimate at all, but that there are several points which tend to dampen optimistic reports. In the first place, according to Conner, although the northwest yield is estimated at 100 per cent of last year's crop, the conners, who take the bulk of the valley Bartletts, are at the present time overstocked on that commodity, and are moving their fruit at reduced prices, with no great demand, even at the lower figure, to make room for the new crop.

Modern Crooners Only Vexation In Centenarians Life

ALEXANDRIA, W. V., June 25.—Mrs. Lara Fiske Ewins, who is 100 years old, says crooners are the only "thing" in the "modern world" that annoy her. "I despise crooners," she says, "and if you were a hundred years old, you'd despise them too. You can listen to these things only so long, you know."

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—An estate valued at almost $4,000,000 was left by Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, killed last month in an airplane crash in Missouri. His will, filed today with the District of Columbia registrar, left individual bequests totaling $1,100,000.

An estimate of $3,600,000 was placed on the value of the late senator's personal property and $76,260 on his real property.

John M. Baca, of Santa Fe, New Mexico, was bequeathed the largest single amount—$150,000—in addition to Senator Cutting's newspaper, the Santa Fe New Mexican.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 24.—Well, this "sock the rich" program is about all you hear about now and you can tell just to a dollar how much a man has got by how sore he is. They are supposed to put the thing over till next congress, but Senator Joe Robinson had the best suggestion, as he generally always does, for he is mighty level-headed and plenty smart. He says to thrash it out at this session. Why go home and leave everybody in fear of the next session? Hold the clinic now and operate if they are going to operate. You won't help business by postponement, why not go ahead and let everybody know just what it is going to cost 'em to die, for the way it is now a fellow don't know whether to die or not. Yours, Will Rogers.

C-C Five Year Program Bars Hit, Miss Method

Organization of a five-year development committee was one of the most forward looking movements which has been adopted by directors of the local chamber of commerce in many years. It was announced this morning. Officials of the chamber of commerce stated that there can be no hit-and-miss tactics employed in the organization and that each committee used in carrying out its activities must have a well-defined program. For that reason, and in looking to the future, the five-year development committee was organized to plan a well-defined program over a period of five years.
