

3-DAY SERVICE TO CHINA PLAN OF PLANE LINE

Huge 44-Passenger Clippers Will Be Used When Service Inaugurated in Fall — Double Ship Fares

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—(AP)—From California to China in three days, with an overnight stop at Wake Island included!

That's the schedule planned by Pan-American Airways for its new trans-Pacific air service, for which the flying clipper has been paying the way with flights to Hawaii and Midway Island during the last few weeks.

Disclosure that the new service will be available late in September or early in October was made here by V. E. Chenea, general traffic manager for Pan-American. Chenea was on a 25,000-mile inspection tour of the company's lines.

"What we figure on," he said, "is landing the passenger in China on the third day."

Chenea said the exact time required for the flight across the Pacific has not been figured out as yet. From San Francisco to Manila would take about 46 hours, he estimated, not counting the overnight stop at Wake Island nor the brief pauses at Honolulu, Midway Island and Guam Island.

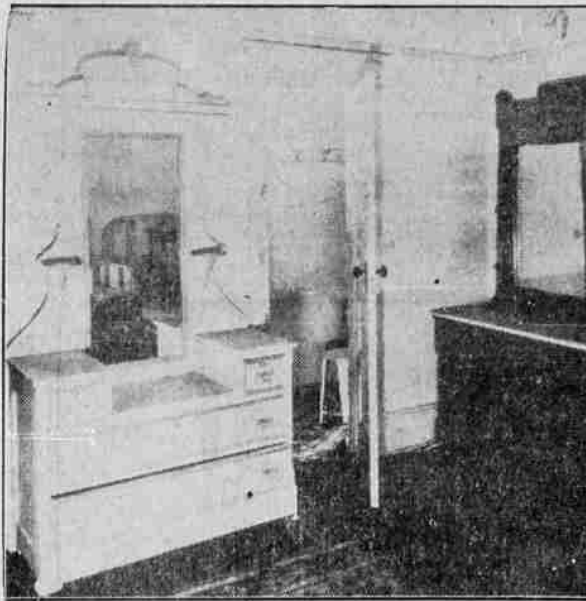

The flying clipper, he revealed, will not be used when regular passenger and express service starts, "because it is too small." Instead, huge 44-passenger Martin clippers, now being constructed, will make the trip.

"The new ships," Chenea said, "will carry a pay load of about 2,000 pounds—enough for 12 passengers, their luggage, some express and mail." Tentative plans, he added, call for passenger rates about double now charged by steamship lines. On that basis, the fare to Manila would be slightly less than $1,000, and to Honolulu about $955.

PUBLISHERS' CHIEF ATTACKS WALLACE ON AD REGULATION

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—J. D. Barnum, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, today attacked an "attempted defense" by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, of "the vast powers sought in the pending legislation for the amendment of the agricultural adjustment act."

Barnum stated his criticism in a letter to the secretary. It was a reply to Wallace's communication wherein the secretary rejected an amendment proposed by the publishers' association, at his own request, preventing governmental regulation of advertising.

Referring to earlier correspondence, Barnum reminded Wallace that the secretary had recorded himself as having "no objection to an amendment specifically providing that nothing in the act shall be construed as giving any authority to regulate advertising."

"In my reply," Barnum's letter said, "I pointed out to you that your department has interfered with advertising. Not only have you and your associates on various occasions referred to advertising as economic waste, but, as I stated, you have interfered with it. I cited specific examples of such interference."

Barnum mentioned the department's restrictions, "one of which, as approved by you, was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court in the Schechter case."

"Now," the letter continued, "you state that while you agree with the position taken in the (publishers') Bulletin, that this legislation should not give the government authority to regulate advertising, you object to the proposed amendment on the theory that it will compel governmental regulation of advertising. If I thought it would give such power, I should have been the last to suggest it."

PARK FOR CHURCH CONCLAVES GIVEN BY PIONEER'S SON

Of interest to Medford people is the fact that the ground for the Fir Point summer conference park, four miles north of Glendale, was given to the Presbyterian church of southern Oregon by Rev. J. K. Howard, Ph. D., whose father laid out the site of the city of Medford, and who held extensive property interests in this city for many years. Rev. Howard is also well known here.

He donated the 160 acres to the church for the establishment of a summer park where conferences may be held. At the present time, when a delegation of Medford children has already departed for the site, it is interesting to note that work has so far progressed that a huge dining room is now complete, as is a large new swimming pool, tennis courts and other sporting facilities.

A new girls' dormitory is now being finished. Yesterday 20 young people from the Presbyterian church here left for a week's stay at the camp. They are:

MAN WHO ATTENDED FIRST OREGON FAIR WILL ATTEND AGAIN

SALEM, Ore.—(Spl.)—H. E. Porter, Aumsville, who attended the first state fair ever held at Salem and the second ever to be held in Oregon, intends to attend the 1935 fair "if I'm not working."

Mr. and Mrs. Porter live on the ranch where Mr. Porter was born 85 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Porter. His father was clerk of the first territorial legislature of Oregon, and came to the state in 1849.

Mr. Porter stated that the first state fair was held at Oregon City in 1852, and cites an article in The Argus, published at Oregon City, to show when it was held. In 1863 the first fair was held in Salem, he says, when there was but one building, which he described as like a "sheep shed."

That year a few of "the boys" entered their horses in the running races, although harness racing was more popular. There were good athletes in those days, he stated, as he told of the 100-yard dash, the rock-throwing contests, and other sports at the fair.

This year, Mr. Porter's son-in-law, Claude Boone, also of Aumsville, will have a concession at the fair, which opens August 31 and closes September 7. Asked if he would attend this year's fair, Porter answered, "I'll be here if I'm not working. Yes, I'm a farmer by following. Yesterday I was making some oak posts."

LUMBER MEDIATION BOARD IS APPOINTED

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—Senator Bone (D., Wash.) today notified Governor Martin of Washington, that a formal lumber mediation board had been named to act in the Pacific coast lumber strike.

The senator urged an armistice in the strike in Washington state to give time for "an adjustment of the labor difficulty, and suggested a 'fair election be held among the employers involved."

Nevada to Get Pheasants. RENO, Nev.—(UP)—Plans to stock 1000 pheasants in Nevada this fall are underway by the State Fish and Game commission. The commission also plans to stock 200 chukker partridges, a species native to India, which have been introduced in Oregon and California and are reported to be thriving there.
