Thrilling Drama An Rialto Screen Judging from the crowds that have been flocking to the Rialto theater to view "Werewolf of London," the public would rather be thrilled and entertained than be bored.

Based on the legend of the werewolf, this latest "shock" picture aims at nothing except entertainment; entertainment that is thrilling, exciting and that has always pleased audiences the world over.

"Werewolf of London" is a story of a cultured English gentleman who, in carrying out his hobby of securing strange flowers from the far corners of the earth, finally meets with a fabled werewolf in the mountains of far-off Tibet.

The werewolf lives in the arm, and then he knows, according to the fable, that he is doomed to turn into a wolf each month during the full of the moon. The only thing that can prevent this terrible thing from happening is a plant called the "wolf flower."

Henry Hull, in the role of this scientist, finds the wolf flower, and brings several specimens back to England. But then comes the difficult task of keeping the flowers alive. They bloom only in the light of the moon, so he constructs a laboratory in which he creates artificial moonlight. And then thieves break in and steal his precious flowers, and he is left to the fate of becoming a wolf. Frantically he strives to avert the transformation.

Comment on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS BIG political news: The house of representatives, by a decisive majority, represents by President Roosevelt's pet anti-holding company bill.

THAT is a big political news because it is the majority of the members of the house will come up for re-election next year, and their vote is a reflection of their present judgment that by next year it will be more popular to be against Roosevelt than for him.

INTERESTING political news: Representative Hoeppli, Democrat, asserts that he was promised an increase in California's relief funds if he would vote for the President's bill. Representative Brewster of Maine, Republican, says he was warned that if he voted against the President's bill construction on a big dam in that state would be STOPPED.

IT MAY be that neither charge is true. Still, those in office always have used their power to KEEP IN OFFICE. And the spending of billions puts a lot of power in the hands of the spenders, who now hold office.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD KING PETER of Jug-Slavia graduates "with honors" from his primary school in Belgrade, Serbia.

If you were little King Peter's primary teacher, when the time came for him to graduate, what kind of grade would you give him?

WHAT kind of news would you call this: Nine dollars was the share allotted to Florence Jackson of the $134 taken from the slain Howard Carter Dickinson, and with it she bought a $3 dress, $2 shoes, 70-cent stockings, 19-cent gloves and a 90-cent hat.

"My God, murder," she wailed after she and three others had made confessions implicating them in the robbery and killing. "And I got $9 for my will!"

Well, you couldn't call it very good news.

BUT here is some good news: Samuel Benn, founder of the city of Aberdeen, in Washington, interviewed on his 103rd birthday, as to the state of the nation, says: "Work your way out of your problems. Keep working until you solve them."

It's good news that in these piping days of letting the government do

Here Sunday

Phyllis Bottomo's widely read and engrossing story of a woman who learned to cast aside the dream of love for reality, "Private Worlds," comes Sunday to the Craterian theater, with Claudette Colbert in the starring role.

A psychological love drama revealing the fears and inhibitions that are the true villains of romance, "Private Worlds" is set in the strange and dramatic background of a hospital for the insane.

everything anybody can be found who feels that way about it.

Wheeler-Woolsey Comedy Delights Craterian Crowd Sixty minutes of top-notch entertainment, a mad and merry jumble of comedy, mystery and melody, making this picture one of the best show-ups along Amusement Avenue, is offered at the Craterian theater in "The Nitwits."

A little like "The Nitwits" can only suggest the screen's unwitting stars—Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. For them, "The Nitwits" is an innovation. They have abundant opportunity to exercise their inimitable comic talents while they solve a wailing murder mystery and extortion plot. And that's not all: The locale is Tin Pan Alley, New York's own song writing "Latin quarter," which gives a reasonable excuse for three melodies whose current popularity on the ballroom floor and over the air waves is no surprise.

No doubt, you have sung, whistled or danced to any or all three—"Music in My Heart," "You Opened My Eyes," and "The Black Widow Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out."

The murder plot, which could logically stand alone as a separate production, concerns a terrorist campaign by the sinister Black Widow. When Wheeler's fiancée is accused, the police finding in her possession the weapon which murdered her boss, the boys take a hand privately in their hilarious manner. The result is a howling success, a credit to any Philo Valer, and they certainly make mystery a laughing matter.
