Arrives with Supply Train—A Medford business visitor today was J. R. Martin of Eugene, who arrived with the Southern Pacific supply train.

Rosenbaum in Aseburg—A. S. Rosenbaum, district freight and passenger agent for Southern Pacific here, is attending to business at Aseburg today.

Returns from Portland—Miss Evelyn Carpenter has returned to her home here from Portland and plans to take up a beauty course in Medford.

Ottoman to San Francisco—Bob Ottoman left last night by train enroute to southern California, planning visits in San Francisco, Los Angeles and at the fair at San Diego.

Madison to Leave—Frank G. Madison of San Francisco will leave for the south by train this evening after spending several days at his fishing lodge on Rogue river.

Back from Vacation—After a week's vacation at the Belton ranch in the Port Klamath locality, the Messes Patsy Smith, Jerry Wilkinson and Frances Daley returned to their homes in Medford Sunday.

Leave for Beach—Mrs. Leon B. Hawkins, accompanied by her daughters Dorothea and Gertrude, motored to Crescent City Sunday. They have rented a beach cabin for five days to escape some of Medford's heat.

Leave for Eugene—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saccandini of Portland, who have been visiting in Medford with their son-in-law W. Kimball and family, left this morning on the Shasta for Eugene, where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Ira Louder.

From Sacramento—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priem and family of Sacramento, are Medford visitors at the home of Mr. Priem's mother, Mrs. M. Young of 324 Main street, and her son John. Mr. Priem is operator of a beauty salon in Sacramento.

Ken Returns—H. D. Ken of California, Oregon Power Co., returned this morning on the Oregonian from a five-days' business trip to northwestern Oregon during which he was engaged in gathering material for educational pictures, for use this winter in Copco's rural electrification program.

Attend Forest Meet—Karl Janouch, supervisor, accompanied by Cordy Sunderman, N. J. Penick, A. D. McReynolds, Robert Auferside and Yenna Davis, all of Rogue River national forest, left yesterday for Ocell lake to attend a recreational forest service meeting there today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Petition to Sell Cow—A petition to sell a cow, belonging to the Citizens Bank of Ashland, was filed with the county clerk today by the state bank superintendent in charge of liquidation of the bank. The state bank examiner asks permission to sell the cow to B. M. Tumbler of Central Point for $15. Besides this sum, the bank will receive $20 from the government, under the law, which provides for this payment for cows that are "re-actors to the abortion test."

Visits Crater Lake—O. W. Shannon of San Francisco was a brief Medford visitor this morning, leaving by train after spending the past three days at Crater lake, which he described as one of the most beautiful scenic areas he has visited. He also visited Oregon Caves, and declared that the entertainment and setting there was the finest he has seen in country-wide travels, at national parks or monuments. He said the caves were as beautiful as Carlsbad caverns, although on a smaller scale. Mr. Shannon plans to visit Lassen national park enroute home.

Goose, 32, Lays Regularly—RATHBUN, Ore.—(UP)—William Smith owns a 32-year-old goose which still lays eggs regularly. The bird has been laying a daily egg for more than 30 years, Smith says.

CASTING EXPERT SHOWS TECHNIQUE TO LOCAL CROWD

A large crowd of interested spectators watched "Doc" Haslett deftly flick his fly straight to the target from many difficult positions, as the famous authority on fly casting demonstrated the finer points of the art on the courthouse lawn this afternoon.

Under a blazing sun an estimated 100 men and women gathered to view the peculiar problems of Rogue and to appreciate the art of fly casting. He stressed particularly the various kinds of casts to be employed in luring the finny monsters from riffles, from under overhanging brush, and other difficult spots.

Learning that the savage qualities of the Rogue river fish have frequently resulted in broken leaders, lines and even rods, he showed the crowd the proper way to land a fish without danger of loss of tackle. His own maxim, "Fight the fish and not your tackle," was demonstrated when he showed the exact way of broken or lost equipment.

The tying of leaders, the proper selection of hooks and the selection and care of tackle in general made up the rest of his interesting discourse, which was sponsored by the Medford Casting club and Southern Oregon Sportsmen, Inc., as well as local sporting goods dealers.

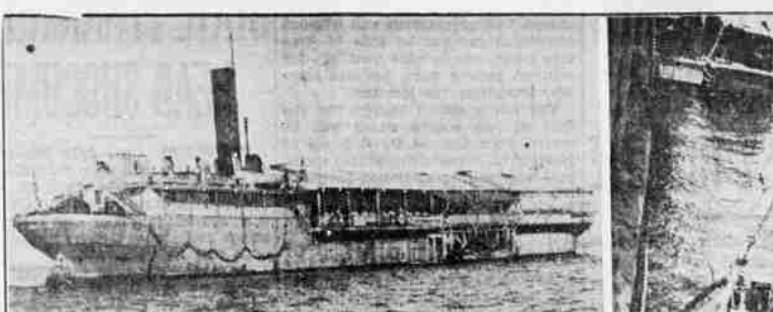

Mrs. Haslett, also an expert with rod and line, gave a demonstration for the ladies.

Pat O'Brien Heads Cast Dramatic Hit Craterian Screen

Only once in a long, long time, there comes to the screen a picture of such vital import, gripping power and amazing human interest, as "Oil for the Lamps of China," which was shown at the Craterian theatre yesterday for the first time locally.

The picture is even more enthralling than the best selling novel by Alice Tisdale Hobart upon which it is based. It has originality of plot, a colorful and intriguing background, and a romance as understandable as it is beautiful. There is thrilling action, strange adventure, with the spirit of pioneer men and women actuated by a burning ambition and loyalty to their jobs. A handful of Americans facing voluntary banishment from civilization, fighting flood, fire, famine, pestilence, bandits, a hostile people, and trying to break down the barriers of prejudice ingrained through the centuries.

PIRATES RAID OFFSHORE GAMBLING CRAFT

Pirates boarded and robbed the gambling ship Monte Carlo (upper left), anchored off Long Beach, Calif., of $32,000 in jewels and cash. The modern buccaneers chained 11 men together while looting the craft. Three of the men bound by the raiders were (lower, left to right) "Doc" James, a guard; A. W. Howard, storekeeper, and J. W. Kellar, assistant cashier, who was forced to hand over the money. The five modern pirates were said to have used the small fishing boat pictured at the right. The fishing vessel was found, with decks awash, a few hundred yards from the Monte Carlo. (Associated Press Photos)

Pat O'Brien, as the young American whose unbelievable loyalty to the firm he represents makes no sacrifice too great, no hardship too terrific for him, adds to the list of seven characterizations that have raised him high in the ranks of outstanding stars.

Josephine Hutchinson, comparatively new to the screen, but a star of Broadway, proves her historic ability in the way she handles the part of O'Brien's wife, whose baby is born dead during her husband's absence.

She turns against him, embittered, believing that he cares more for the company than he does for herself and the child. But she fights her way back to sanity, realizing that a man must work as well as love.

Her heroic work in saving the life of the child of a friend, stricken with the dread fever, is another of the scenes that lift the picture far above others, even were there not a score more of smashing situations.

Jean Muir is delightful as the friend, while her husband, a part played by John Eldredge, does excellent work as the type of man who cannot understand Chinese customs and is eventually broken.

Ronnie Cooby as the child of the two misfits, shows great promise.

Karen Morley Will Star Rialto Drama

With a theme as timely as today, "Our Daily Bread" comes to the Rialto theatre tomorrow for a three day run.

Produced and directed by King Vidor, the man who made such famous screen successes as "Great Scene," "The Crowd," "The Champ," "The Big Parade" and several others of like calibre, "Our Daily Bread" has for its distinguishing feature that warm, human quality that made the other Vidor pictures the hits they were.

The story, like all great screen stories, is a simple one, but one which strikes close to the heart of everyone. It follows a young city couple to an old abandoned farm, where they try their luck in recuperating the fortunes that the depression had craved. The thrilling story of the two people, cast amid a colorful group of men and women from all walks of life—all determined to start life anew, with the sun, the soil, the air and water as their new allies, is told with a topical timeliness that includes drought and the million and one other catastrophes that can and will beset a farmer.

How the couple, faced with emotional conflicts greater than any that had faced them in the whirling vortex of the city—not the least of which is the person of a hard-boiled blonde charmer who uses the old, old methods of turning the young husband's head—come through in the end to greater happiness than before, makes "Our Daily Bread" a picture that should appeal to every person in every walk of life.

The cast, which includes hundreds of players, is headed by Karne Morley, Tom Keene, John T. Quallen, Addison Richards and Barbara Pepper.

Exhausted Swimmer Saved From Surf

SEASIDE, Ore., July 15.—(AP)—A thrilling rescue of a distressed swimmer from the surf here was witnessed by thousands of spectators who crowded the beach yesterday.

Donald Stone of Portland was swept beyond his depth by a swift current while surf bathing and was unable to fight his way to safety.

Life guards who made the rescue were Wallace Hug, Jim Read and Floyd Owens.
