

BUDDY BAER KO'S DELANEY IN 4TH

—BUFFALO, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—Rallying from a first round, no count knockdown, Buddy Baer, 236½ pound brother of Max, knocked out Al Delaney, 190, Cleveland, in 34 seconds of the fourth round here last night.

Baer appeared bewildered following his knockdown, flailing away with both hands at striking Delaney a low blow, giving the round to the Clevelander, despite the fact he was knocked down for a ten count shortly before the bell.

Delaney, after taking the second round on points, hit the canvas twice in the third, and went down for keeps in the fourth.

CCC MITT TITLES STAKED TONIGHT IN OPEN AIR RING

Boxing Show at Senior High School Grounds Will Raise Funds to Send Boy to National Scout Jamboree

Two Medford CCC district championships will be at stake tonight when the picked fighters of the district meet in the big Legion-Elks-CCC boxing card at the senior high school grounds on South Oakdale.

The card is being sponsored by the American Legion and Elks lodge to raise funds for sending Robert Gale, of Medford troop 7, to the national Boy Scout encampment in Washington, D. C.

The card will open at 8 o'clock in the outdoor arena set up at the senior high school grounds on South Oakdale. Bill Bowerman, new Medford high school coach, a former Oregon football star and amateur fighter, will referee the bouts.

Dr. Eddie Durmo, Larry Schade and Fred Erickson will serve as judges.

Kitties in Parade.

The American Legion Kittie band of Ashland will be in Medford tonight to parade on the downtown streets before taking part in the show at the arena.

Dr. Fred C. Bunch is general chairman of the affair, with Roy Elliott, Fred Frye and Earl Poy, Legion commander, assisting. Rudy Sleight, of the Elks lodge has had charge of the ring. Major George R. Owens, district CCC commander, has thrown the resources of his district behind the card.

Rudy Lezar, 158, South Fork, will defend his newly won middleweight title against Bill Shupeck, 157, Coos Head, in the main event. The boys meet in a hard-fought bout on the Fourth of July card at Ashland, but the contest was so close that fans of the area have demanded they be brought together again.

A new lightweight champion will be created when Jess "Krankenstein" Savickej, 132, of South Fork, meets Brian "Sik" Stockins, 133, China Flats, in the semi-final bout. Each boy has won every bout in which he has appeared here, and the winner of tonight's battle will be awarded the crown.

Grudge Fight Added.

A special bout that may easily steal the show has been arranged for the edification of the spectators. Russ Lobell, 162, and Bernard Mathews, 156, will follow the old army custom of settling their personal differences with gloves. Captain Albert T. Anderson, commander of the headquarters detachment, intercepted the two men Thursday when they appeared at the supply room to draw a set of gloves for a personal combat back of the motor transport office.

They were persuaded to let their feud smolder a day and meet in the outdoor arena tonight, when their supporters will be off duty and able to attend.

"Wild Man" Simmons, 163, of Bradford, will make his debut on tonight's card after challenging everybody in the district for a match. He will be pitted against Charles Knight, 158, of Upper Rogue, in another match that will probably be a wild-swinging affair.

"Gorilla" Espiner, 142, Oak Knoll, will be matched with S. Zuba, 139, of Annie Springs, Espiner won by a knock-out on his last appearance at Fort Jones, Calif., and will be back in Medford breathing smoke and confidence.

TINY MERMAID COPS TITLE IN SPRINGBOARD TEST

By Edward J. Nell
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The men in the press box, probably most of the 5,000 gathered under the blazing sun around the big pool, held their breaths and muttered: "Now if she just won't try anything tough..."

So the spindly mite of the diving board, Mary Hoerger, 11 years old now, 12 next month, promptly went into the toughest diving convulsion of them all, a two-and-a-half forward somersault.

Over and over she whirled while the big crowd gasped. Then she straightened out, knifed into the water with scarcely a ripple. The crowd burst out in a spontaneous roar of delight, and the three-meter springboard diving championship went to Mary Hoerger, of Miami Beach, Fla., youngest and certainly the smallest athlete ever to hold a national championship at anything but marble shooting.

Popular, though little Miss Hoerger's victory was, it was mighty close. She piled up 128.50 points, less than a point better than the 127.80 awarded Janice Liston of New York. Last year's champion, Miss Rawls, did not defend her title.

Mary's first big league competition was the 1932 Olympic tryouts at the age of eight. In each of the past two years she has finished third in the nationals. Her mother, Mrs. Fred Hoerger, taught her to dive, and had her swimming 40 feet at the age of 11 months.

Mary is in the eighth grade in grammar school and specializes in art and arithmetic. She's less than five feet tall, blonde, stub-nosed, and very much a little girl. Her ambition is to be a diving champion.

CHAIR THROWING ENLIVENS PETE'S PINNING OF SOOS

Johnny Soos, stocky choke and chunky artist from Indiana, furnished the fireworks in the double main event wrestling match last night at the Armory when he went on a chair-heaving rampage in his bout with Pete Belcastro, Italian drop-kicker. The latter finally won the hectic tussle with drop kicks and a hammer lock, despite a back injury that nearly cost him the match.

The Soos-Belcastro fracas was scheduled, by the toss of a coin, to precede the other main event bout, in which Al Stecher of Canada won from Homer Lee Wolfe of Texas, but in excitement and action the former tussle climaxed the evening's entertainment.

From the start both grapplers set a whirlwind pace but stayed clean until Soos made himself the villain by slugging and kicking his colorful opponent, Pete, by this time the strong favorite, retaliated with a hefty rabbit punch and then the sparks began to fly.

Soos slugged and kicked Belcastro out through the ropes, and fighting off referee Ray Friable, took a punning jump on his prostrate victim. The fans, wild at seeing Belcastro maltreated, surged around the ring, one ringsider throwing a chair that hit Soos on the back of the head.

Soos picked up the weapon and slammed it into the crowd, clipping one of the spectators. Bill Talis of Hill, Calif., a blow on the back of the neck that felled him momentarily. Talis, who denied he was the original chair-thrower, was not badly injured.

It took the boxing commission, who threatened to suspend Soos unless he behaved himself, several minutes to quiet the ruckus, and the match proceeded.

Belcastro's back was too weak and he lost the initial fall in 14 minutes of slugging, but regaining his strength in the second tangle, pinned the Indiana matman in eight minutes with drop kicks. He won the final fall in five.

Al Stecher's 15 years of experience and his stocky build proved big obstacles for Wolfe in the second half of the main event, but with the aid of his famous iron legs the Texan was taking care of himself admirably in a hard fall over the ropes. He landed on his back across the edge of the platform and proved an easy victim for the deciding tangle.

Stecher took the first fall with a hammerlock in 15 minutes, and Wolfe evened the count when he brought his long legs into action and applied a bottom-up rolling scissors.

Roland Warren, Klamath Falls, Coos county engineer, who took the place of Johnny Goodman in the opening bout, wrestled a speedy 20-minute draw with Floyd Wolfgang, local mechanic-grappler. Wolfgang accepted Warren's challenge for a finish match.

Sad Sam Letthers of Texas, Awful Al Karasick, and Bob Kennaston, grappling marine, all issued challenges to anyone who would accept.

keely hope for another meeting between the famous title-holder and Miss Helen Jacobs.

America's Davis cup veteran rest on the shoulders of the hopes doubles pair, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, Sidney Wood and a pair of youngsters getting their first taste of international competition on foreign courts. Gene Mako and Donald Budge. Budge proved one of the sensations at Wimbledon and bolstered our cup chances considerably.

Track and field athletics this spring came through with its share of sensational performances. Jesse Owens, of Ohio State, stole the spotlight with his four-ply triumph in record-breaking fashion, topping them off with an amazing leap of 26 feet, 8½ inches in the broad jump. Keith Brown, of Yale, wound up his variety career by clearing 14 feet, 5½ inches in the pole vault. Eddit O'Brien, Tom Keane's latest quarter-mile flash at Syracuse, stepped into the front ranks when he outstepped Glenn Hardin, Jimmy Lu Valle and Ivan Pungus in the "440" at Princeton. The convincing manner in which Jack Lovelock, New Zealand miler, outboxed Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzle served to emphasize the spell British mile runners have held over American trackmen.

New Fitchers Wentiful.

Babe Ruth held the interest of the baseball fans with his ill-fated spurge with the Boston Braves. The Babe's attempt to stage a comeback in the National league went up in thin air when the big fellow failed to come up to the mark and suddenly quit the team in disgust. While everyone was looking for a worthy successor to the slugging Bambino a flock of capable floggers sprouted up in the new crop of moundmen—Cy Blanton, Clyde Castlemen, Vito Tamulis, Whitey Castner and John Whitehead.

The failure of the Dean boys to show their 1934 form left the Cardinals floundering in the first half of the race, while the Giants rushed along in front, thanks to great pitching, and threaten to make a runaway of the National league race.

The Cleveland Indians failed to show the strength they promised, mostly because they were victims of unfortunate "breaks." The loss of Earl Averett coming on top of Knickerbocker's enforced absence weakened the Cleveland entry.

The National open golf championship at Oakmont left golfers with plenty to talk about for some time to come. Sam Parks, an unknown, shot a 299 which was good enough to beat the fine field entered. Walter Hagen's magnificent bid for the title—the veteran only missed by a couple of strokes—was one of the features of the tournament.

COLORED CLOWNS CANCEL TILT HERE

Manager "Hoosier" Hoffard of the Medford Rogues is wandering the streets today with a wild look in his eye. Another colored team has taken a run-out powder on his baseball team! Some time ago the Detroit Colored Giants cancelled a scheduled game after handbills had been scattered all over southern Oregon, and now the Broadway Colored Clowns, through their booking agent, W. Bergh, of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, have sent Hoffard the following letter, dated July 17.

"Because of circumstances that they were unable to control, the Broadway Colored Clowns will be unable to play in Medford and they will have to cancel your game. I am very sorry about this, as I know that you have been greatly inconvenienced."

Hoffard said today that the Clowns must have got wind of the fact that Lea Wolfe, Texas with the proverbial diddle of all newbies in general, was to pitch against them. He said that if the Clowns play anywhere in the southern Oregon, he will attach the game receipts for broken contract.

HOFFARD RETAINS SLUGGING HONORS WITH .489 MARK

Paul "Hoosier" Hoffard, Medford's player-manager, kept up his heavy slugging last Sunday to retain his Southern Oregon League batting leadership. He clinched Cliff McLean for two hits in four trips to raise his mark one point to .489. He has also hit safely in every game, to be the lone player with that record.

Bernardo leads the Klamath Falls team with 431; Manager McLean and Ashland's teammates with 422, and Smith, Grannis, with 394.

Brooks, Klamath Falls, and Calvert, Ashland, have both scored 17 runs to lead in that department.

Frank Earhart, Grants Pass south-paw, lost his first game of the year Sunday, but still leads all others with five wins and one loss.

SPORT SLANTS
by Dan

Enough thrills and excitement have been packed into the first half of 1935 to fill an ordinary sports year. Every sport in the book has done its share toward making this a banner year.

There has been more than usual activity in the boxing world with Jimmy Braddock's surprise victory over Max Baer in the world's championship bout, standing out as one of the biggest upsets in the history of heavyweight title battles. The "story-book" comeback of Braddock from the ranks of flaccid diamonds to the highest honors the ring game offers thrilled followers of the sport.

The sensational rise of Joe Louis injected new life into the heavyweight division. Climaxing his march of 23 consecutive victories, 19 of them knock-outs, by stopping the giant Primo Camera in six rounds, Louis proved that he could punch and box and was ready to make his bid for the top honors.

In the lighter divisions, also, ring history was written. Tony Canzoneri bent Lou Ambers to win the lightweight title vacated by Barney Ross and thus became the first lightweight to regain the championship in that class. Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin met in a rubber match with Ross regaining his welterweight title on a decision. Like the first two meetings of Ross and McLarnin, their last fight left the customers divided in the opinions as to who won.

Moody Comeback Thrills.

Mrs. Helen Willis Moody stole a march on the tennis public, when, after months of secret practice, she announced that she was going abroad to attempt a comeback on the courts. Her efforts are being watched with great interest for tennis enthusiasts.
