"Hooray for Love" at Craterian

They sing the season's catchiest tunes, step to gay dances, tell Broadway's most happy-go-lucky success story in the tuneful, mirthful romance, "Hooray for Love" starting today at the Craterian theatre. Against a background of smart cosmopolitan sets is projected a regular kaleidoscope of entertainment.

Ann Sothorn and Gene Raymond play the leads in this charming story of two ambitious youngsters out to win in the toughest game in the world—the theatre. They try a little of everything, including night club performances and radio, before Gene finally manages to present Ann as the star of his first big revue.

In a great city's smartest night club, a glamorously gowned Ann sits and 86 in Baltimore before welcome showers broke the hot spell there and in New York City, Chicago, and scattered areas west beyond the Missouri river.

But a sizzling week-end was predicted for Michigan, where five of the heat deaths and at least eight drownings occurred since Thursday. Government forecasters at Chicago, where an afternoon thundershower
