

GOLD ACCOUNTING DECISION LATER

The hearing of the suit of George M. Roberts, and others as stockholders of the "Lucky 13" mine, against W. E. (Jed) Hittson, for an accounting of gold removed from the property last winter, was concluded before Circuit Judge Carl E. Wimmerley of Douglas county late yesterday afternoon. Decision was reserved by the court, but is anticipated within the next 30 days.

one major point: whether Hittson took the gold from the "Hittson shaft" as contended by the plaintiffs, or from the new shaft, a quarter of a mile away, as the defense holds. The plaintiffs hold that the "Hittson shaft" is located on both the "Ruby" and "Lucky 13" claims, which overlap. The claims are located in Siskiyou county just beyond the Oregon-California state line. The property is now under a receiver guard named by the Siskiyou county superior court. A suit over the gold mine and claims is pending in the California courts. Approximately $16,000 is involved in the local litigation, which Hittson is alleged to have mined last December and January, but unconfirmed reports say trouble that amount was secured.
