WARM DAYS FAIL TO SLOW WHISKEY SALES AT 'STORE'

With the mercury hovering in the 90's, John Peter, manager at the Medford liquor store, stated yesterday that regardless of hot weather, when whiskey is supposed to bow out of the way to the less fiery liquors, whiskey is still far out-selling any other kind at the local store.

"It is surprising," he said, "the number of cool, tall drinks that can be made with whiskey—and it is also surprising how well the people here know this." Medford is among the leading cities of the state from the standpoint of sales of expensive whiskey, Peter added, since the establishment of the store here there has been a growing demand for good whiskey, although the cheaper whiskeys far outrank any other kind sold.

The girls are forging to the lead as the popular drink, particularly the "sloe" variety. Contrary to the superstition of some, due to its name, sloe gin is not slow in action, but is a potent drink intended for mixture with other ingredients. It has become one of the most popular drinks carried at the Medford store in the past few weeks.

Corresponding to the increase in the interest in gin has been the falling off in demand for rum. This drink, popular around Christmas time, and one of the best sellers during the holiday season is still carried in stock, but the demand is slight.

Although this is a pear country, there is not a single line of pear brandies carried at the store, and the call for this liquor is very slight. Prune brandies are also conspicuous by their absence, although apricot and peach brandies have a steady following.

Peter described the business now being done at the store as "good."

Mrs. Kunzman's Kin To Test Huge Blast

Dr. Dean S. Carder, son of Mrs. Cora Carder, and brother of Mrs. George Kunzman of Medford, was in this city Friday evening, while on his way north to Puget Sound to test the effect of a 20-ton dynamite blast in those waters in connection with his work with the U. S. Geological survey. Two men were with Dr. Dean, traveling in a geodetic survey truck, to aid in the experiment. Rocks will be blasted from the waters, and their formation studied.

Inspector McDaniels has just completed a swing through southeastern and southern Oregon via Bend, Klamath Falls and Medford. From Wimer he returns directly to his Portland office. He is charged with inspection of forestry CCC camps in Washington and Oregon.

Canada Chief Firm With Hunger March

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—(Sp.)—Prime Minister Bennett refused today to provide food or shelter for the Ontario relief marchers and was in turn assailed by a member of the delegation that called upon him.

The prime minister charged that the march was organized to embarrass the government and asked: "We don't propose to be embarrassed at our own expense."

Classes, teachers and time of meetings have been announced as follows:

Color and Perspective (Alice D. English)—Thursday, August 15, 8:30 p.m.

Black and White, Form (John King)—Thursday, August 15, 8:00 p.m.

Pastels (Mrs. W. B. Edmonson)—Friday, August 16, 1:30 p.m.

Oils (Max Selmes and Minnie B. Heine)—Saturday, August 17, 1:30 p.m.

Show Cards (P. W. Foster)—Saturday, August 17, 9 a.m. (Note: This class will be the only one not held at the studio. It will be conducted at Mr. Foster's studio in back of the Baldwin Piano Shoppe on West Main street.)

The only fee for the entire six months course is $1.00 to cover the cost of incidental expenses of the school. Students who have had no special art instruction in composition, perspective and color will be required to attend those classes for at least one month before becoming eligible for the other courses, to lessen the burden upon the instructors.

The class fills a need in the Medford community long felt, it is agreed by those who have investigated the plans for the school, and have studied similar schools in the east. All who are interested in the courses are eligible to attend.

Further information may be obtained at the Jackson county chamber of commerce building.

LARISON UNITES WITH BEAN STORE IN INCORPORATION

Announcement was made Saturday of the incorporation of C. D. Bear's store of this city, adding C. O. "Pal" Larison, well known Medford man to this new Medford firm. Mr. Larison has a host of friends in southern Oregon who are congratulating him upon his association with C. D. Bear in the recently established store at 228 East Main street. Larison has lived in this city for the past six years and has been identified with the California Oregon Power company, part of the time in the capacity of auditor. His connection with this company has extended over a period of 12 years, a portion of the time being spent with the Copco Yreka offices. The third member of the corporation is Mrs. C. D. Bear.

In commenting upon the recent change in his organization, Mr. Bear said today, "I am especially gratified in having Pal Larison associated with C. D. Bear, Inc. Mr. Larison's long experience in handling office organization and contract paper makes him a valuable member of the firm."

C. D. Bear's new store in this city, featuring housewares and electrical home services, has been outstandingly successful since its establishment two months ago. An aggressive program of promotion, together with nationally known lines of merchandise such as General Electric refrigerators, radios and appliances, Maytag washers, front-end irons and Philco radios, have spelled success for this new Medford concern. Its organizer, C. D. Bear, has had over 15 years of active merchandising experience, much of which was devoted to management of various Montgomery Ward stores.

SCHERER PERFECTS COLD STORAGE OF LESS COSTLY TYPE

According to word received from Placerville, Calif., a new type of cold storage plant, invented by Paul Scherer, has proved an outstanding success in that city, and may revolutionize cold storage methods in the fruit industry.

The Scherer cold storage system is based upon the circulation of air over thousands of yards of cloth moistened by brine, the cold air being forced down by huge fans on the top of the building, through the insulated air chambers below.

The reports from Placerville to the plant calculated to pre-cool 15,000 boxes per day takes care of twice that number. Not only is the system effective, but it can be constructed at far less cost than the old type of cold storage plant.

The Scherer cold storage system was tried out in an experimental way in Medford last year, but was not entirely satisfactory. Friends of Mr. Scherer will be glad to learn his second experiment has been so successful.

Paul Scherer was manager of the Southern Oregon Sales here for a number of years, and still owns and operates his pear and nut ranch on Rogue river, where Mrs. Scherer and the children are now spending the summer. About a year ago he resigned his position here to enter the Sacramento river shipping business with headquarters in San Francisco, and continue experiments with his new cold storage system. The Scherer system has been installed in the large plant of the Placerville Fruit Growers' association, a large co-operative organization, which handles a variety of fruits, but specializes in pears.

IT ISN'T HEAT; IT'S CONTRAST

During the week just past, the weather has seemed uncommonly warm, although the weather bureau reports show that there have been no really high temperatures. The reason for this feeling has been due, not to high humidity as might be supposed, but simply to the fact that the weather of the preceding weeks has been so unusually mild. It was announced yesterday by the weather bureau here.

The hottest day during the past week was on Thursday, when the mercury touched 99, with the humidity standing at 15, a normal ratio. Friday the heat dropped off to 97, with the humidity at 15, again usual. The coolest day was Monday, when a high of 86 was recorded, with a correspondingly high humidity of 30, also a normal condition.

With the exception of the first few days, August has been normal in temperature this year, the weather bureau stated.

MEDFORD BOY SCOUTS ENJOY JANTZEN BEACH ON PORTLAND ARRIVAL

By Irwin Doty.

As the train was about to leave Thursday evening with the Boy Scouts for Washington, D. C., Larry Schade made a dash for the exit. He found the way barred by the leaders of the boys. He finally discovered that he couldn't get off the train, so he traveled all the way to Portland with the boys.

The boys slept but little Thursday night because they were under a certain amount of tension and excitement.

After arriving at Portland at 8:30 a.m., the Scouts first met up with a photographer, who took their pictures. Following this episode of picture taking, the boys then marched to the nearest lunch room for breakfast.

After breakfast the boys got aboard a street car and rode five miles to Jantzen Beach.

Upon arriving at Jantzen Beach, the Scouts set out on an exploring expedition of the different things there at this place.

Everything was all right until Richard Shuhard almost got lost in a maze of tunnels in one of the side streets.

A swim was then enjoyed in a large swimming pool by all Scouts. Lunch was served to the Scouts in a Japanese restaurant.

After lunch the boys started out to enjoy themselves properly. The first thing they tried was a group of small cars. The object of the ride in these cars was to try to bump your nearest motorist out of the road by running into him.

The big attraction was the "Dipper." This was a big car that took a series of dips and upshots that make a very empty feeling in the pit of one's stomach. This machine travels at a very fast rate of speed, many feet in the air on a trestle.

This is all for now of the Crater Lake Scouts' adventures. More will come later.

ASK UNION LABOR AID FOR NET'S USE IN LOWER ROGUE

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 10.—(AP) Opening six miles of the lower Rogue river to commercial fishing, as provided in an initiative measure filed in the state department recently, would restore an annual payroll of more than $75,000, and provide employment for more than 200 men, J. M. Poole, official of the Rogue River Fishermen's union, declared here today.

Poole was on his way to Portland to confer with officials of the Oregon State Federation of Labor.

Petitions for the initiative measure already have been placed in circulation, Poole said. The law provides that these petitions shall be completed and filed with the secretary of state next July.

The proposed measure would limit the open season and provide for the character of gear that might be used. The entire river was closed to commercial fishing by an act of the 1933 legislature.

Upstate Highways Ordered
PORTLAND, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Improvement of the Salmon River highway at a cost of $136,630, and of the Santiam highway at an expenditure of $107,000, has been ordered by the federal bureau of public roads after opening of bids on the two projects.
