ing of the secretaries of state, as chairman; treasury, war, and commerce, and the chairman of the senate and house foreign relations committee.

No Debate. Except for a few questions put to Chairman Pittman of the foreign relations committee and a brief speech by Senator Borah (R., Idaho), declaring the resolution should have gone farther and absolutely prohibited American citizens traveling on belligerent ships, there was no debate. Neither was there a record vote.

Borah said the provision authorizing the president to prohibit travel on belligerent ships by American citizens "except at their own risk" only "partially" met the problem. "If a citizen goes on a belligerent ship," said Borah, ranking Republican, "he is not a certain extent he involves his nation and produces a psychology that should not be permitted."

George Raft Stars In Rialto Thriller

Not since his triumph in "Scarface" has George Raft had a role so admirably suited to his talents as in "The Glass Key," the new Dashiell Hammett thriller which opened at the Rialto theatre last night.

This newest film from the pen of the man who wrote "The Thin Man" presents George Raft as a close-mouthed, hard-fisted citizen, a sort of prime minister to a great city, big-shot politician, Edward Arnold.

It all revolves about Arnold's political fortunes. The strong man of the city's administration, he suddenly clamps down on night life and acquires a group of new enemies.

When the son of the man whom he is supporting for senator is killed after an argument with Arnold, his enemies try to pin the crime on him. To complicate matters further, Arnold is in love with Claire Dodd, the boy's sister and a woman too smart for him.

Because he realizes that there is no other way to uncover the truth, Raft pretends to break with Arnold and to sell out to his enemies. He is caught spying on them and has to pit his brains and courage against a bunch of "toughs" to escape with his life.

The true killer is revealed in a thrilling climax. Arnold is aolved of all blame and Raft wins the love of Arnold's daughter.

TILLAMOOK CHEESE BRINGS BEST PRICE IN WORLD'S MARKET

PORTLAND, Aug. 21.—Tillamook cheese was up 1c lb. here as a result of a similar advance made by the Tillamook Creamery association. The new price of triplets at Tillamook is 18c for triplets to wholesalers and 19c for loaf which means a selling price to Portland retailers of 20c for the former and 21c for the latter. Everywhere cheese prices were firmer. Tillamook continued the highest cheese market in the world for like type.

There continued a firm tone for butter generally throughout the country. There remained a firm tone and price on butterfat with the former spread of 1c generally continued both by centralizers and at some country points.

Trading in the egg market was generally of favorable character locally for top grades but there was an absence of activity for offgrade. Receipts of current lay continued light.

There was a light run of live chickens in the local trade. The price list continued to firm.

Situation in the country killed lamb market continued to show gaining strength. Other meats were steady to firm.

Firm prices were continued for cantaloupes here as a result of better primary prices than the basis here with resulting shortage of offerings.

Tomatoes were steady to a trifle lower again. Peaches were firm to higher again. Crabs were plentiful and mostly around 15¢-4c lb.

Ashland reports 12a Crawford peaches gone and fiberists to start.

Pat O'Brien Heads Craterian Cast

With a good Irish cast, including Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Allen Jenkins, Frank McHugh and Mary Gordon as headliners, "The Irish in Us," halfed as one of the funniest and funnest comedy hits of the season, comes to the Craterian theatre tomorrow.

The story itself is a story of most families—internal battles but a common front against an outside attack. Only in his case, the Irish brood of Mary Gordon are a bit more than even she—capable mother though she may be—can handle.

Pat O'Brien is a cop, one of New York's finest; Frank McHugh is a fireman, and James Cagney, the roughneck of the family, devotes his time to managing broken down prize fighters. When Cagney takes O'Brien's girl (Olivia de Havilland), the tempo breaks in real earnest and from then on, action and comedy vie for top honors.

GEORGE DALE STRUCK BY AUTO ON STREET

Chester B. Keen, of route 4, driving a Ford pickup, last night hit and knocked down George Dale of Jacksonville star route, while Dale was crossing Main street at the Front street intersection, according to a report to police. Dale was not hurt, Keen, who was driving east on Main street, did not see Dale, he told city police.

Keen was put under arrest by city police, and ordered to appear at 4:30 this afternoon in city court. When Dale was questioned by the police last night, he told them he had been drinking, but had taken "only a pint of wine."
