

Society and Clubs

Margaret Hensley And Ernest Rostel Set Wedding Date

Of interest to their many friends in Medford is the announcement of the wedding date of Miss Margaret Hensley and Mr. Ernest Rostel. The ceremony will be solemnized Saturday, September 31, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Confield in Crater Lake park. Invitations have been issued to about one hundred guests.

Miss Hensley has been employed by the Medford Mail Tribune for some time, and is well known in Medford. Mr. Rostel is a public relations ranger at Crater Lake national park, and also has a large circle of friends in Medford.

Miss Pat Carlon Will Join Light Opera Company

Miss Pat Carlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Carlon of Kings highway, who recently announced her affiliation with the Pacific Coast Light Opera company, will leave by train Tuesday evening enroute to Seattle, where she will start rehearsals. This season's tour will take Miss Carlon to Vancouver, B. C., for her first appearance September 10, then into the midwest and south, returning along the Pacific coast.

Before reaching Seattle Miss Carlon will stop at Seaside, Ore., to be guest for several days of Miss Jerry Peterson, violinist in the Portland junior symphony orchestra. Miss Peterson, who received a scholarship, and Miss Carlon were schoolmates at Cornish school of drama and art at Seattle. Miss Carlon will enter summer school at Cornish next year.

During her enrollment at Medford high school, Miss Carlon was active and popular in drama and music, being elected student body song queen.

Mrs. H. F. Cope Celebrates Twentieth Wedding Anniversary

Mrs. H. F. Cope was hostess Friday afternoon to the Golden Links Bible class, celebrating her twentieth wedding anniversary. About fifteen guests were present. The afternoon was spent in playing interesting guessing games, after which the hostess served ice cream and cake. The class presented Mrs. Cope with a beautiful cake plate.

Barnburg-Waddell Wedding in Portland

Mr. Kenneth F. Barnburg and Miss Ruby B. Waddell, both of this city, were married Friday evening, Aug. 23, at the home of Mrs. M. E. Bolds in Portland. Rev. John T. LaRose, former pastor of the Church of the Nazarenes here, officiated. Mr. Ralph Davis acted as best man and Miss Louise Taggart as bridesmaid. Following the ceremony, a buffet lunch was served the guests.

E. R. Gilstraps Have Guests for Labor Day

Mrs. Edward R. Walker and son, Johnnie, of Eugene, have arrived to be guests during the week and over Labor day of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Gilstraps of 35 Geneva street. Mr. Walker is expected to arrive Saturday and will join his family in making a trip to Crater Lake, which none of the Walkers have seen.

Baptist Ladies Auxiliary to Meet

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Baptist church will meet in the church Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 27, for a joint business and missionary meeting. The members are asked to bring in their mite boxes, which will be opened at that meeting.

Findley Entertain At Dinner For Drummonds

Dr. and Mrs. Dwight H. Findley entertained last Thursday evening at a dinner honoring Dr. and Mrs. C. I. Drummond, who are leaving September 8th for the east. Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hays, Dr. and Mrs. Lemery, Miss June Earhart and Marie Hank.

Mrs. Volney Dixon Entertains Sunday Evening

Mrs. Volney Dixon entertained last evening at a buffet supper for a small group of friends. Those present were Mrs. Leon B. Haskins, Mrs. Hazelrigg, Mrs. E. J. Smith, Miss Eleanor McQuiston and Miss Gertrude Haskins.

Guests of Ernest Barnes' Leaving Today for Los Angeles

Dr. and Mrs. William Pispop, after spending the last three days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barnes, are leaving Medford today for Los Angeles. Dr. Pispop is an instructor at the University of Arizona.

CASH for School Days

SCHOOL DAYS call for cash. If you need extra money to get the children ready for school—or for any other worthy purpose call on us. You can get any amount up to $300 here promptly and confidentially. No indorses required—no investigation. Small weekly or monthly payments arranged to suit your convenience. Call, phone or write for particulars—without obligation.

Oregon-Washington Mortgage Co.
45 S. Central, Phone No. 8-137
See W. E. Thomas

Walkers and Schacks Leave on Honeymoon

Following a wedding reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schack, nee Iol Edwards, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Walker, nee Adra Edwards, left yesterday evening on their wedding trip. They were married in a beautiful and impressive double ceremony at the First Presbyterian church at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Edwin Schacks drove first to Crater Lake, and from there will continue to Diamond Lake. They will return to Medford at the end of the week, and then go to Seattle, where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker are motoring over the Oregon coast to Portland, stopping at Oregon Caves, and returning at the end of the week by Diamond Lake.

Curtis Andersons Leaving Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Anderson and sons, Herbert and Curtis Jr., who have spent several days visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. Sumpter Smith and other relatives and friends, are leaving tomorrow by motor via the coast route for their home in Alameda, Cal. While here they spent part of the time at Edgewood, the Smiths' summer home on the Rogue, and visited Crater Lake, accompanied by George Sides, Jr.

Stanley Smiths Leave Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith, nee Bernice Rinaud, are leaving Wednesday after a month's visit here for their home in Westchester, Iowa, where Mr. Smith owns and operates a six hundred acre farm. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith graduated from Medford high school, and will be remembered by many friends in this city.

Miss Purucker and Miss Huntress Leave for North

Miss Katherine Huntress and Miss Ann Purucker left yesterday for a week in the north. They will visit with friends in Portland and continue from there to Seattle, returning to Medford by the coast route.

Misses Ames Return From Lake of the Woods

The Misses Eleanor and Constance Ames of this city, returned home today after an enjoyable week's vacation at Lake of the Woods.

Mrs. Emmens and Son Return From East

Mrs. J. J. Emmens and son Tom are returning today by motor from the east, where they have spent the summer visiting at Cape May, New Jersey.

NAZARENE DELEGATION OFF FOR CONVENTION

A delegation from the young peoples group of the Church of the Nazarene left today for Twin Rocks to the annual district young peoples convention and institute. The young people accompanying the pastor include Misses Ruth Soobille, Flora Scheel, Evelyn Weatherford, Lois Herman and Fielding Weatherford.

The institute will be in session for an entire week. The delegation is expected to return by Saturday.

Fred M. Weatherford, pastor of the local church, is one of the workers engaged to speak daily throughout the series.

CLOSING OUT SALE

Starts Tuesday at MAISON - JEANNES.

Everything Must Go! GOWNS

Lovely all silk, lace trimmed or tailored style gowns. $4.00 values. $2.75
Close out $2.25
Close out $2.25

SATIN SLIPS

Regular $2.95 values, $2.25
pure dye silks
Regular $1.95 values, $1.50
pure dye silks

HOSIERY

Silk Hose, Kayser Mission, San Toy. Regardless of cost, per pair 75

FOUNDATION GARMENTS AND CORSETS 1/2 Price

MAISON JEANNE
THE HOUSE OF DEPENDABLE QUALITY
HOLLY THEATRE BLDG.

NEW YORK SIGHTS MAKE IMPRESSION ON SCOUT SQUAD

By Irwin Dohy

Yesterday was a day which every scout of Crater Lake council will long remember. For it was their first day in New York and they had the privilege of seeing New York's playground, Luna Park, and Coney Island.

After a breakfast at the hotel restaurant, the boys marched down Broadway about 10 blocks and turned left onto another avenue. Their destination was the Boy Scout Training post. An hour was spent here in looking around. During this time Dr. West, national scout executive, presented neckerchiefs and slides to the scouts.

It might be well to mention that Dr. West met the Crater Lake council scouts at the Grand Central depot Friday evening. At the depot was also a group of cameramen to take our pictures for the paper in New York.

Following lunch, the boys got on a bus to go on a sight-seeing trip around the city. The bus eventually ended up at the dock where the boat goes to the Statue of Liberty. The ride to the Statue of Liberty was made in a small pleasure boat named "Hook Mountain." Upon arriving on Bedloe's Island, the scouts all marched to the base of the statue. An elevator was waiting to take the scouts up inside the immense structure. It took us up many stories and we followed the spiral stairway the rest of the way to the top, several hundred feet up, until we came to a small chamber in the forehead of the figure. The view from here was excellent. New York could be seen with its sky scrapers and tall buildings. Many steamers and barges were in New York harbor. This is one part of this trip which these scouts will always remember.

After the boat trip back across the harbor, we again got in the bus and headed for Coney Island. An immense carnival, it covers some three square miles of ground and has several divisions to it. There are several divisions to it. One is a park with a playground which the scouts of Crater Lake council visited.

The boys I believe, have never had a more enjoyable evening than this. There were such rides as Sky Chaser, Red Bug, Chutes, Red Mill, and Whip. There were sideshows by the dozens. Our bunch got a special rate, so we got to see twice as much with the money allowed us.

It took us one hour to come from Coney Island back to the Hotel Times Square. The boys were tired and it didn't take them long to get into a nice soft bed.

By the way, those interested in what sort of an impression our outcasts are leaving, might like to know that every city we go into, many questions are asked about them. Also, I can recall an incident where a couple of the boys got to talking to a New Yorker and got to telling him about the Indians which we have out west.

Last night at Coney Island some of the Scouts went into a sidewalk where they had wax figures of all the famous outlaws. The man explaining this side show said that this type of person would never be seen again. This was too much for a couple of our scouts and they got into an argument with him, and told him about the lynchings and also the outlaws which we have in the "wild and woolly west." Of course, they might have stretched it a little bit, but it is funny to see how these people take it and actually believe it.

Every boy who is in any way near normal loves baseball. Today we had the privilege of seeing a big league baseball game between the New York Giants and Cincinnati.

As a result of the rather strenuous evening at Coney Island, the scouts were allowed to sleep as long as they wanted to the next morning.

At 12 o'clock the boys got on a bus for a sight-seeing trip before the ball game started. We visited several places of interest. One, in particular, was General Grant's tomb. In the building General Grant and his wife are buried in heavy bronze forms. Inside these forms are the original caskets of this famous man and his wife.

After leaving the tomb the bus then took us through Harlem, the negro section of New York. When we passed through Harlem, the negroes would stop and look at us, much in the same manner a white person looks at a negro in the white section of the city.

Near Harlem is the stadium where the baseball game was played. There were about 10,000 to see it. During the afternoon, Mr. Stevens of the concessions stand, gave to the scouts ice cream, peanuts, wafers and soda pop.

Following the game all scouts assembled back at the Hotel Times Square where they cleaned up and ate dinner. At 8 p. m., we marched a few blocks to Radio City.

At Radio City we entered the Rockefeller Center building to visit the NBC broadcasting studios. This was a wonderful trip around the inside of the 70-story structure.

We first visited the broadcasting studios and then the many control rooms. The guide with us showed us the ways in which the many sound effects were made. He also showed us the very apparatus and mechanisms which link these United States, together with NBC.

We went to the base of the building and took the fastest elevator in the world for the top of the building. This elevator travels the 69 stories in 35 seconds.

On top of this building was a small platform which the scouts could look out on New York spread out far below.

Jack Heyland, while gazing over the edge, pipes up: "Well, boys, here's the time that I am going to spit a half a mile," and he proceeded to try it.

On the way down Dale Throckmorton was a little leery of the elevator traveling so fast, and he wanted to know if there were two elevators in the same shaft.

By the way, the parents of LaVerne Dalenberg had better send him a bib, because he is continually spilling something on his clothes.

Boston Ace Hurler On Bench 2 Weeks

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell, Boston Red Sox hurler who suffered a sprained ankle Thursday during the Boston-Detroit game, probably will be out of the lineup for two weeks, his doctor said today.

Loss of Arm No Handicap

During the past few days our daily papers have contained articles telling of the life and experiences of the late Will Rogers. This brings to mind that most of the people in the amusement field have had experiences that seem like fiction when written or told but as in the case of Mr. Rogers they are as a rule true experiences.

Everett Conway the drummer and manager of the band with the Polack Bro. Circus which opens a weeks engagement here Monday, September 2 at the Jackson County Fair Grounds for the local Shrine Patrol, is believed to be the only one-arm drummer in the world. He plays all the different traps used by the average drummer, appearing each evening during the performance with the circus.

In addition to Mr. Conway's ability as a trap drummer, he is also a very clever ventriloquist, and with his wife has appeared throughout the United States and Canada in the leading vaudeville theatres.

Several years ago before he had the misfortune of losing his arm, Mr. Conway appeared on the road as a dramatic actor, also doing his ventriloquist specialty between acts. While with one of these shows he had an experience that to the average person would seem like a fiction story, however, he promises the story is a true one.

It seems that the show he was traveling with (playing small towns) at a certain time had run into a streak of very bad business and it came to pass that the company found themselves without funds to make their trip to their next stand. Finally after much deliberation, Conway suggested that he had an idea that he thought he could put over which would raise necessary funds. The leading lady of the show had a dog which Conway explained that he would like to borrow. Conway and the dog were on their way down the street. Coming to a saloon, they proceeded to enter and sat down at a table (the dog also occupying a chair). The waiter brushing off the table asked how they could be served. Conway said that he would have a ham sandwich and a glass of beer, apparently the dog said (Conway using his ventriloquist power) he would also have a ham sandwich but to cut out the beer. The waiter looked at the dog in astonishment. Conway however explained that it was alright that he could bring the dog the sandwich. The waiter asked "Conway, does that dog really talk?" Conway said, "you heard his order didn't you?"

The waiter departed and proceeded to carry on a conversation with the proprietor of the place, who soon came over to the table and said: "I understand that you have here a dog that can talk." Conway explained how he had spent years in teaching the dog to talk and now he valued him very highly. The proprietor said the drinks and eats would be on the house and they could have all they wanted. "In that case," said the dog, "you can bring me two ham sandwiches." The proprietor looked at the dog in astonishment. "I would like to buy that dog. He would be a great advertisement for my place."

Conway explained that the dog was not for sale. This made the proprietor more anxious than ever to own the dog and he made an offer of two hundred dollars which Conway

Loss of Arm No Handicap

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

BOW EXPERT SAYS DIGGER WARIEST

W. C. Thurlow, of Portland, the man who has killed more game animals with a bow and arrow than any other man in the state of Oregon, if not on the Pacific coast, was a visitor in Medford Saturday.

In speaking of his prowess with a bow, Thurlow said that the animal that he believed to be the warriest of all, is the common grey digger-squirrel, found in abundance in this locality. The other grey squirrel, the kind that flourishes in the Klamath country, is comparatively easy to slay, he stated. One day in Klamath county he killed 20 of that species in less than eight hours, while he stated that a days bag of five of the digger variety would be exceptional.

Another animal that frequently falls prey to Thurlow's bow is the jackrabbit, he killing many of them in eastern Oregon. A badger is the biggest animal that he has ever killed, he never having hunted deer. He stated that a part of the Sherman forest will be open only to bow and arrow hunting this fall, but remarked that it was his belief that very few deer would be killed during the season by that method.

On Magnate Killed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The body of Herman McGee, 49, president of the McGee Oil company, was found today in the wreckage of his automobile in San Fernando valley. He apparently had either gone to sleep at the wheel or lost control of the machine in rounding a turn. The automobile had collided with a tree.

Use Mail Tribune want ads.

fragrance and flavor

There's only one place in the world where you can get certain kinds of aromatic tobaccos that we use in Chesterfield cigarettes—and that's Turkey and Greece.

Without adding these tobaccos to our own mild ripe Southern leaf, Chesterfield would not be Chesterfield...

mildness that smokers like pleasing taste and flavor that smokers like

Threading Turkish tobacco on strings to hang in the sun to ripen.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

W. C. Thurlow, of Portland, the man who has killed more game animals with a bow and arrow than any other man in the state of Oregon, if not on the Pacific coast, was a visitor in Medford Saturday.

In speaking of his prowess with a bow, Thurlow said that the animal that he believed to be the warriest of all, is the common grey digger-squirrel, found in abundance in this locality. The other grey squirrel, the kind that flourishes in the Klamath country, is comparatively easy to slay, he stated. One day in Klamath county he killed 20 of that species in less than eight hours, while he stated that a days bag of five of the digger variety would be exceptional.

Another animal that frequently falls prey to Thurlow's bow is the jackrabbit, he killing many of them in eastern Oregon. A badger is the biggest animal that he has ever killed, he never having hunted deer. He stated that a part of the Sherman forest will be open only to bow and arrow hunting this fall, but remarked that it was his belief that very few deer would be killed during the season by that method.

On Magnate Killed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The body of Herman McGee, 49, president of the McGee Oil company, was found today in the wreckage of his automobile in San Fernando valley. He apparently had either gone to sleep at the wheel or lost control of the machine in rounding a turn. The automobile had collided with a tree.

Use Mail Tribune want ads.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

rejected and the proprietor said, "I'll tell you what I will do. I'll give you spot cash five hundred and not a cent more." Conway seeing that he had gone as far as he could, explained that in spite of the fact that he did not want to part with the dog, he could use the money to good advantage and that he would accept the offer. The proprietor turned over the money to Conway and he arose to leave, whereupon the dog seemed to say, "well that's a nice way to treat an old pal and for that I'll never speak another word as long as I live." Conway departed, he did not explain what became of the dog.

GREATER GAINS

Lower Cost Per Pound Of Meat

The Cheapest Feed in the Long Run

Turkeys will gain a pound each week on

CROWN GROWER

MONARCH

SEED & FEED CO.
Corner 6th and Hartlett

Radio Service

Factory trained technician and all new factory equipment. All makes. Work positively guaranteed.

C. D. BEAN
Phone 497. 219 E. Main