

FRISCO POLICEMEN LAD UP FORTUNES FROM VICE, CLAIM

Revelations by U. S. Internal Revenue Collector Threat- ens Wholesale Shakeup One Man Made $110,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—(UP)—The same type of income tax revelations that bagged the nation's former No. 1 gangster, Al Capone, last night threatened to cause wholesale shakeup of San Francisco's police department.

John V. Lewis, United States internal revenue collector, declared that federal agents had learned a retired police captain built a $110,000 fortune from purported vice "payoffs."

Lewis declined to give the name of the captain. He said that other police officers had received such "payoffs," and charged that vice in the city was controlled by a few men.

Names withheld
Federal rules prevent him from revealing any names, he said, pointing out that income tax collections are not concerned with the method by which an individual obtained his money. To disclose names would constitute a felony, he declared.

Mayor Amelio Rossi immediately started a campaign to check the charges. He telegraphed Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., asking that Lewis be ordered to give full data on his charges to himself, the police commission and the San Francisco county grand jury.

District Attorney Matthew Brady said the grand jury probably would open an investigation on the basis of Lewis' statement, but needed a "definite accusation to start on."

Theodore J. Roche, president of the police commission, was ordered by Mayor Rossi "to go to the bottom of the matter at once."

Lewis, curly haired, energetic, one of the youngest internal revenue collectors, greeted the storm of official demands calmly.

Said Savings Built Fortune
He said that the police captain in question first claimed he built his $110,000 fortune through a savings account.

"We showed him that if that were true he must have lived all those years in the police department on about $235 a year," Lewis said, chuckling. "We then go the truth—that his fortune was built on payoffs from houses of vice. We assessed him 50 per cent penalty for fraud, and one percent interest for each month of delinquency. He paid to escape criminal prosecution and exposure."

Federal operatives then obtained a list of hundreds of vice resorts in San Francisco, collected additional taxes from their operators, and obtained further information regarding alleged "payoff" and "hush money" activities.

Since Lewis took over the local job in 1932 he doubled tax collections in his post in one year. With his 35 agents he tracked down scores of incomes, and forced payments previously evaded.

UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS OFFERED OPPORTUNITY UNDER WPA PROGRAM

County School Superintendent C. R. Bowman announced today that all teachers who are unemployed and interested in securing work under the WPA adult education program should make application at once to the following: For residents of the city of Medford, Supt. E. H. Hedrick, city hall; for residents of the city of Ashland, Supt. G. A. Briscoe, senior high school building, Ashland; for residents of all the rest of Jackson county, Supt. C. R. Bowman, county school superintendent, court house, Medford.

Persons receiving employment under this setup need not necessarily be licensed or trained teachers, but may be engineers, carpenters, lawyers, artists, musicians, tradesmen or people of other professions who are qualified to present in their special fields some useful knowledge to adult classes.

Application to the above named persons should be made immediately by those interested as all persons assigned work under this division will be put on salary while attending a special training school at Corvallis during the month of September.

GRANTS PASS TO BAN ALL PUNCH BOARDS

GRANTS PASS, Aug. 29.—(Sp.)—September 13 was set as a deadline for use of all punch boards in Grants Pass by the city council meeting in special session to consider an ordinance for licensing of pin-ball games.

Punch boards have been prohibited by ordinance in Grants Pass for a number of years. City Auditor C. R. Duer said Wednesday, the ordinance has not been enforced and the deadline was set for its enforcement.

The council tabled the pin-ball ordinance when they were unable to arrive at a satisfactory method of licensing the machines or the establishments housing them.
