

PAIR HELD AS POISON PLOTTERS

Mrs. Olga Cirina, 35, and John Parades, 38, wealthy jeweler, are shown after their arrest in New York on a charge of poisoning the woman's husband, Louis Cirina, a jobless violinist, in order to collect $10,000 insurance. The two were held without bail. Cirina died on the way to a hospital. (Associated Press Photo)

DON'T HAND ME THAT!

Lorraine Eves seems a bit puzzled as she is given the big hand at the San Diego fair. The exhibit is part of that staged by the federal bureau of investigation and explains the basis of fingerprint identification. (Associated Press Photo)

New York has declared war on vice conditions, particularly the billiard, numbers, poultry, and building trade rackets, and here are principals expected to take part in it. Thomas E. Dewey (lower, center) is special prosecutor and has promised full cooperation by Lewis J. Valentine (left), police commissioner. Inspector Henry Bruckman, racketeer foe (upper center), is to take over the city's detective force while Comptroller Frank J. Taylor, Tammany leader (right), has promised to vote for any appropriations deemed necessary. (Associated Press Photos)

JACK, JOAN, HANNAH ON VACATION

It's vacation time for Restaurateur Jack Dempsey and family. The ex-champion is shown in Chicago with Mrs. Dempsey, the former Hannah Williams, and their baby daughter, Joan, as they paused between trains. They were on their way west. (Associated Press Photo)

ORIGINAL 'RAG TIME KID?'

Claude Myrick (above), Seattle businessman, said he was the original "ragtime kid" in the Malamute Saloon ditty. He is shown preparing for a re-enactment of the role at the Sourdoughs' Stampede. (Associated Press Photo)

GOVERNOR ORDERS HUNT FOR BOY

Responding to an order issued by Governor Horner of Illinois, Diver John Carroll (left) prepared to search the bottom of a quarry for Charles Murphy, 17-year-old Kankakee colored youth. The lad's father appealed to the governor. A. E. Kerger (left), Kankakee county coroner, helped direct the search. (Associated Press Photo)

'GARLION'—IT'S HALF AND HALF

Miss Tanice Young displays the new creation of Joseph Tognetti—a garlion, which he says combines the juiciness of an onion with the "horsepower" of a garlic. The Santa Maria, Calif., farmer will display his new product at the Santa Barbara, Calif., fair. (Associated Press Photo)

RELIEF JOB STRIKE MAY HIT WHOLE NATION

Wrangling over wages paid for work progress administration jobs reached a showdown between the government and American Federation of Labor at New York when a strike affecting 100,000 men was voted. George Meany (upper left), president of the New York state federation of labor is shown addressing union labor delegates at a meeting where the strike was voted. However strikers were warned by Hugh Johnson (right) and Harry Hopkins (inset, lower left), relief officials, that other workers would be called in to fill the jobs. A PWA tenement project in New York affected by the strike is shown at bottom. Labor officials predicted the strike would attain nation-wide proportions. (Associated Press Photos)

ATTACK GROUP FAMILIARIZED WITH PACIFIC STATES

During recent months the 17th attack group, attached to March Field, Riverside, Calif., has engaged in extensive maneuvers in western states on familiarization flights. The ships in use were of the pursuit type and will be changed to attack planes in the spring. Left: the 17th in a stunt formation and (right) servicing one of the planes at Big Bear Lake, Calif. (Associated Press Photos)

SHE IS NAMED 'MISS CALIFORNIA'

Mercedes Hill, 20-year-old Chicago girl, who now works in the office of a film studio, won a chance on the screen by being adjudged "Miss California" at a Venice bathing beauty contest. In addition to the spun gold cup trophy, she is shown holding, she will be awarded a two-week film contract. (Associated Press Photo)

Aids Authorities

Mrs. James G. Kennett, sr., of Chicago gave Auburn, Calif., police clues leading to the identification of a man slain near there as her divorced husband. His body was found in an abandoned mine and police said Earl Kimball, alias Earl Cramer, confessed to the slaying. (Associated Press Photo)

AIRMEN WHO FLEW WITH BODIES OF ROGERS AND POST

Those who flew in the transport plane which carried the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post from Seattle to Los Angeles are shown, left to right: William A. Winston, pilot; J. L. Fleming, junior pilot; T. W. Dowling, radioman, Tom Ward, engineer, and Joe Grosson, who flew the bodies over Alaskan wastes and to Seattle. (Associated Press Photo)

LOG ROLLING BUT NO POLITICS

Al Jennings (left) of Eau Claire, Wis., defeated Sam Harris (right) of Longview, Wash., to win the world's log-rolling championship at the San Diego Fair. Harris, former champion, lost two falls out of three. (Associated Press Photo)

AUSTRALIAN PREMIER RETURNS

Premier Lyons (left) of Australia, temporarily delayed by a ship collision when he started his homeward voyage from Seattle, Wash., re-routed his trip to San Francisco and saw the towering San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge. With him were F. J. McKenna (center) and A. A. Swanson. (Associated Press Photo)

Reports For Work

Madelyn Bateson, 17-year-old brunette, winner of the title of "Miss Kentucky of 1935," arrived in Hollywood to report at a motion picture studio for a part. (Associated Press Photo)

Killed In Plunge

Billy Brode (above), 15-year-old Memphis, Tenn., Boy Scout, fell to his death while hiking with a companion on the slopes of Lindbergh Peak, near Camp Chief Ourray, Colo. (Associated Press Photo)