$131,000 TO SAVE SCRAP PAPER HAS GOVERNMENT'S OK

Uncle Sam Comes to Defense of Old Pieces of Paper Against Ravages of Time As Relief Project

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(UP)—The peak was reached tonight in the government's save-the-scrap-paper-and-old-books season with announcement that $131,000 had been laid on the line in the last three days for this heart-stirring cause.

It involves the spending of this $4,800,000,000 that was appropriated for work-relief. The story of how the government has come to the defense of old pieces of paper against the ravages of slow time and the seasons is tucked away in the long lists of allotments of money from the $4,800,000,000. In between an allotment for building two canning kitchens in Roseburg, Ore., and spreading rock on [illegible] miles of road near McMinnville, Ore., you will find a little $300 item [illegible]
