

HITLER RIDICULES FOURTEEN POINTS LISTED BY WILSON

"We see in our army the protection for peaceful labor. And when we are forced to make sacrifices, then we will make them for our liberty and labor."

"This army is our most valued and proudest possession."
The Hitler proclamation stated that the nazis had no desire to fight Christianity, adding: "but the national socialist state will under no circumstances tolerate in any way 'round-about' confessional politics; and on this let no one be deceived concerning the determination of the (nazi) movement and the state."

Voices Warning
Then Hitler warned:
"We have already fought clerical politics and run it out of the Reichstag (parliament) after a long fight in which we had no government assistance but the other side had the advantage. But today we have this power of making our battle for these principles lighter. . . ."

"We will never carry on this battle against Christianity as such or against the two confessions." (The Roman Catholic church and the Protestant confessional synd.)
"But we will keep our policy clean of priests who mislead their profession and who should have been politicians instead of clergymen."

Hitting that communists would eventually wipe out the church, der fuhrer continued:

"The communistic victory would find the solution of the problem of 25 antiquated Protestant churches as well as the Catholic center of politics."

Warns Price Boosters
He spoke the following warning to price boosters:

"Beginning now with a brutal disregard for them and without shrinking we will fight such elements and through concentration camps teach them what collective interest and coordination mean."

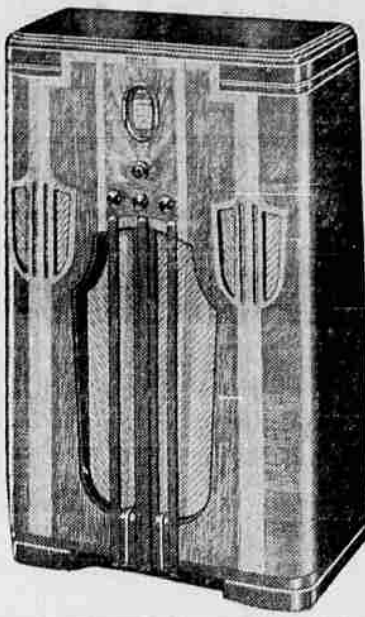

The nazis could have made their task easier by devaluation of the mark, der fuhrer told his hearers, but refused to do so because "we do not believe that through these methods the world crisis can be solved, but on the contrary we are convinced that the foundation of economic improvement is a system of fixed currencies values."

The party, he added, also has "an unshakable will to prevent inflation."

HELPS DETECTIVES IN HUNT FOR BOSS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 11.—(UP)—Twelve year-old Kenneth Jones yesterday helped detectives hunt for his "boss." Kenneth knew his employer only as the man who asked his aid in three robberies. Kenneth did his part, but wasn't paid a promised five cent piece.

PHILCO REACHES FOREIGN POINTS

American stations plus European, Japanese and other foreign stations are accessible to owners of Philco radios which will be exhibited at Medford's radio show by C. D. Bean, Inc., according to C. D. "Joe" Bean, Philco dealer here.
Philco's new "balanced" features include precision radio dial, automatic aerial selector, full automatic volume control, tone control, permanent field dynamic speaker, "plug-in" B and C power units and long-life A power unit. In addition to covering every broadcast service on the air, the 1936 Philcos are attractive to look at, the cabinets being fashioned from choice and expensive woods.

C. D. Bean, Inc., will also display General Electric radios from the "House of Magic" which has been famous in the radio world for the past 28 years. Just as in automobiles, maximum braking efficiency is obtained by perfectly adjusting each brake so that when the pedal is pressed down, the brakes take hold evenly—so in the new General Electric radios, there is a small "condenser known as the "Permaliner," that in the radio circuit performs a similar function to the adjustment of each brake drum. It maintains permanently the alignment of all parts of the circuit and keeps the set always at "concert pitch." Metal tubes and stabilized dynamic speakers are other notable developments made by General Electric.

HULL TELLS ACTIVISTS HIGHLIGHTS OF SCOUTS' JAUNT TO EAST COAST

Frank Hull, leader of the Boy Scouts of Crater Lake council in their tour of the country, was principal speaker last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Medford Active club.
Beginning with the cancellation of the Jamboree, Hull outlined the interesting features of the trip and told many phases of the scouts' itinerary of interest to the Activists.
"The real reason we went ahead after cancellation of the Jamboree was that plans to finance the trip through various service clubs, troops and parents of the scouts had been completed, a considerable expense was involved, and we succeeded in getting official sanction to go ahead," the scout leader said.
Cancellation of the Jamboree failed to stop Boy Scout movements throughout the country, and as the local scouts moved eastward, they crossed the paths of many other groups, the speaker declared. The local contingent was joined in Walla Walla, Wash., by other scouts that brought the total to 169.
Hull outlined the points of interest which the scouts visited enroute east and after reaching Washington, where he said the camp for the Jamboree was 85 per cent complete.
Lieut. Robert W. King of the Medford CCC district headquarters staff was a guest of the club.

MYSTERY WOMAN SHEDS NO LIGHT ON CRATER CASE

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—(UP)—Blonde Jayne—or "June"—Manners, "mystery woman" in the unsolved disappearance of Judge Joseph Force Crater in New York five years ago, last night faced an accusing husband in a district attorney's office, but the meeting failed to shed any light on the mystery.

The six-foot showgirl and her husband, dapper Maurice Kusell, who charged she told him she "knew plenty" about the Crater case, reiterated accusations and denials.
Kusell repeated the gist of statements in his divorce complaint in which he claimed his wife admitted she was "June" Manners and had changed her hair from brunette to blonde to avoid connection with the Crater mystery.

"Why did you change the color of your hair?" Bayle Matthews, investigator for District Attorney Buron Pitts, asked her.
Miss Manners shrugged her shoulders.

"First I changed from blonde to brunette, then to red, then to platinum blonde. How should I know when I did it or why?"
She denied the color of her hair had anything to do with the Crater case.

Miss Manners stared coldly at her husband, while he questioned her regarding the substance of statements he made in his divorce papers. She refused to answer his questions, turning toward Matthews.

At the end of the questioning Matthews said: "Nothing has developed to show that Jayne Manners knows anything that would shed light on the disappearance of Justice Crater."

WILL BACK LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE IS WORD TO WORLD

diplomat's speech with enthusiasm. Said one delegate: "It was not only a historic speech, but the greatest speech ever delivered before the league by a British statesman."

The delegate of one prominent neutral country said later the blunt British declaration was not to be interpreted as an ultimatum to Premier Mussolini, but rather as an emphatic warning to Italy to think twice before rejecting the "last hope" compromise likely to be offered soon to Il Duce.

Shot at Fascism Rankles

What irritated the Italians particularly was a veiled attack by Hoare on the fascist regime when, referring to the dangerous features of government propaganda, he said:
"Too often, artificial excitement of national feeling is made the excuse for the repudiation of obligations or for a threat of force."

Sir Samuel suggested a peaceful reorganization of the distribution of the world colonial and raw materials, but it was waved aside by the Italians as "too vague to be interesting."

"We believe," said Sir Samuel in outlining the position of the British empire, "that backward small nations are, without prejudice to their independence and integrity, entitled to expect that assistance will be afforded them by the more advanced peoples in the development of their resources and the building up of their national life."

The British statesman declared that Great Britain stands for the collective maintenance of the League of Nations covenant in its entirety and particularly for the steady, collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression. His statement was a clear allusion to the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

(By the Associated Press)

Ethiopian women took up the colors today and began mobilizing "battalions of death" for active service at the front should hostilities with Italy break out.

The British government, seeing its hopes for peaceful settlement of the East African dispute dwindle, decreed new regulations tightening and modernizing its control of arms traffic.
In Italy an official communique was issued denying the government has suggested conclusion of a non-aggression pact with Germany.
