Feeding Through Rubber Tube To Stomach Provides Adequate Nourishment—Operation In Time

By DAN ROGERS (United Press Staff Correspondent.) MARLBORO, N. Y., Sept. 16.—(UP) Bobby Linsig, seven months old today, sported three teeth and is the picture of health, although not a morsel of food has passed down his throat since he was born.

Bobby was born without an esophagus, with only a constricted string connecting his stomach and his throat. Since he was one day old, when an incision was made in his abdomen, he has been fed through a rubber tube inserted directly into his stomach.

Otherwise Normal. Bobby weighs 19 pounds two ounces and alternately plays happily and yells lustily, in the manner of all babies. He is normal in every other respect, his physician, Dr. Barton Harris, said.

The baby is fed by his mother, Mrs. Raymond Linsig, on strained vegetables of all kinds, cereals, orange juice, cod liver oil and milk. She puts a taste of food on the pacifier so Bobby will know what he is "eating," and the liquid food is pumped into his stomach with a glass syringe.

Bobby's three teeth, two uppers and one lower, are only ornaments until physicians find some way to provide an artificial esophagus. Dr. Harris said this would be when Bobby is six or seven years old, and that he would be fed through a tube until then.

Until he was five months old, Bobby was fed on a special formula of milk and water, receiving three and a half ounces every three hours during the day time. When two months old, he weighed eight pounds, six ounces.

Taught to Chew. He has been taught to chew on rubber toys to develop mouth and jaw muscles and keep his face in normal contour. When he has a few more teeth, he will be introduced to chewing gum and urged to chew it all the time.

Dr. Harris plans an eventual operation to make an internal or perhaps an external passage to connect the two inches of esophagus at the throat to one inch at the stomach opening. X-rays revealed the present connection cord is solid.

The Linsigs live in a little cottage overlooking the Hudson river. The father, a painter by trade, now works in a grocery store. Bobby's mother works in the editorial office of the Marlboro Record, weekly newspaper, when not caring for the baby.

Only Mrs. Linsig, who spent two days at the hospital where he was born learning to feed Bobby through the tube, feeds the baby.

LOCAL INVENTORS MAY PARTICIPATE IN PORTLAND SHOW

A meeting of inventors of the vicinity will be held at the Medford Chamber of Commerce at 8 p. m., September 20, to consider participation in the Pacific Northwest Inventors' show in Portland for one month beginning October 19. John T. Anderson, patent coordinator of Portland, who will have charge of the show, will attend the meeting and remain over here on the following day.

Anderson reports that unlimited space for exhibits is available in the Grand Central Public Market where the show will be held, and that inventors from all over the Pacific coast will enter their creations. Much exhibit space already has been taken.

Exhibits will include useful articles for the home, novelties, toys, tools, farm machinery, gold-saving devices, improvements on existing inventions and numerous other contrivances which have been developed from ideas emanating from the fertile minds of inventive geniuses.

The purpose of the show, according to Anderson, is to spur inventors to perfect their ideas and to provide them a place where they may exhibit their creations before the public, and to give manufacturers, interested in new ideas, opportunity to inspect the various devices and to confer with inventors relative to manufacturing and placing the inventions on the market.

MARRIAGE GUIDE LISTS 7 RULES FOR HAPPY LIFE

ST. LOUIS—(UP)—Dr. Walter A. Muter, of Concordia Seminary, Lutheran professor and editor, dislikes certain modern-day writers who have criticized marriage as an outworn institution, but he thinks there are certain rules which determine a "happy choice" of a husband or a wife.

In a recent book with the paraphrased title "For Better, Not For Worse," Dr. Muter gives seven rules for his "happy choice."

- 1. Do not marry too early. Min-imum age for a man is 21; for a woman, 18; but it is better to wait a few years longer. 2. Don't marry too late. 3. Don't be too dissimilar to your mate. 4. Four years is enough difference in ages, thinks Dr. Muter, although the rule may be varied four years either way without serious difficulty. 5. No "dollar sign marriages." A marital disaster of too frequent occurrence is the misery and misunderstanding provoked by the incompatibility of intelligence which separates husband and wife by unbridled chasm. A college president should not marry a dumb bell wife, but neither should the reverse be true. 6. "Avoid educational guits." A certain modern-day writer who has criticized marriage as an outworn institution, but he thinks there are certain rules which determine a "happy choice" of a husband or a wife.

Rule 7 advises against mixed marriages. Marriage between two members of the same church is best, Dr. Muter believes. And he says the husband should be the head of the house; that birth control and divorce are the twin foes of wedded happiness; and a woman's career should be the cradle.

"Camels don't get your Wind" FAMOUS GOLFERS SAY

CRAIG WOOD (right)—Tommy Armour—Helen Hicks—Gene Sarazen—Bill Mehlhorn—Denny Shute—Willie Macfarlane! Their names sound a roll call of tense moments that have made golfing history, when prime "condition" and healthy nerves were at a premium. All are outspoken in their preference for Camels. "Camels are so smooth and mild they never affect my wind," says Craig Wood, pictured at the right as he pauses to smoke a Camel. Willie Macfarlane, the former U.S. Open Champion, adds "Camels are mild. They don't get my wind." Miss Helen Hicks brings up the feminine viewpoint. "There's a delicacy of flavor in Camels that appeals to women. Camels never interfere with one's wind." And Denny Shute says: "I switched to Camels years ago. I smoke them constantly, without upsetting my nerves or disturbing my wind." You'll Like Their Mildness Too! Such experiences with Camels can be matched right among your own friends. You'll like Camels too. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos. They never tire your taste.

ARMOUR. "I've smoked Camels for years," Tommy declares. "Camels never bother my nerves." SARAZIN. "Camels are milder," reports Gene. "They never get my wind or upset my nerves." MEHLHORN. Bill comments: "I smoke Camels steadily. They don't get my wind or my nerves." SO MILD! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT. I'M FUSSY ABOUT MILDNESS. CAMELS ARE SO MILD THEY DON'T GET MY WIND. I LIKE THE 'LIFT' I GET WITH A CAMEL. STORE EXECUTIVE—Dorothy Smart Bill. KEEPING FIT IS JUST AS IMPORTANT TO ME AS TO STAR ATHLETES. CAMELS ARE MILD—NEVER JANGLE MY NERVES. BUSINESS EXECUTIVE—F. W.
