Mexican Lad Who Beat Elderly Transient Companion With Iron Spike Not As Bad As Indicated

ROSEBURG, Ore., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The youth of Pedro Chavez, 17, sentenced yesterday to two years in the state penitentiary on a charge of assault, may result in his being saved from the period of confinement ordered by the court.

It was announced today from the district attorney's office that the court will be asked to stay execution of the sentence while an investigation is made into the possibilities of providing a situation in which the young man may be placed on a probationary status.

Arrested in Medford Chavez was brought to Roseburg yesterday from Medford, where he was arrested Saturday accused of beating and robbing Robert Slater, 61, who had been beaten over the head with a railroad spike and then stuffed into the ice compartment of a refrigerator car.

Slater, it was learned today, is wanted at Eugene on larceny charges. He is now recovering in a Medford hospital to which he was removed in a critical condition after his cries secured his release by Medford yard crews from the car into which he had been stuffed by the Mexican youth.

Chavez was brought to Roseburg for hearing, as the alleged crime occurred in Douglas county.

He told the court that Slater was intoxicated and kept attempting familiarities as the train on which they were stealing rides was speeding south from Eugene.

Heat Old Man Near Myrtle Creek during a train stop, Chavez told the court, he picked up a railroad spike and beat the elderly man into unconsciousness.

COCKTAIL COLLEGE OPENS DOORS FOR PORTLAND PUPILS

Students Not Forced to Drink Their Lessons—Drink Mixing Becoming Lost Art Declares Catalog

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—(AP)—If it's a horse's neck that's giving trouble, or maybe a martini or even a Manhattan, there is no longer cause for worry.

As modern as it is useful and as eager for students as its football-minded categorial namesakes, this city's newest institution—"Cocktail College"—had started its fall term today.

It's an "art school of mixology," according to its printed publicity, and it is all ready to iron out drink-mixing difficulties and enable one "to become a royal host."

Enrollment simple—Its opening was unheralded—It enrolled several students during initial exercises yesterday.

Enrollment was simple. There were 22 "courses." The "registrars," a polite man, merely asked that the enrollees' names be signed on the proper cards and that tuition for as many lessons as desired be paid in advance.

The fee for each course was moderate (25 cents). The hours were set from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

Students were not forced to drink their lessons. They could pour them down the sink.

"Mixing of drinks is almost a lost art," said the "catalog." "Now cocktail college affords you the opportunity of learning each and every one of those rare old formulas."

To Pick Pupils

The printed publicity said the school "reserves the right to enroll only those it considers possessing the proper qualities to become suitable students due to the lack of expert mixologists at the present time."

Street-corner discussions of "Cocktail College" hinged around the question of legality. Oregon has a law prohibiting the sale of mixed drinks.

The matter of diplomas and the length of the fall term were not mentioned in the school's circulars.

several university extension services. They estimated $1,500,000 would be necessary to put it in operation and maintain it until next June. President Roosevelt's works allotment board will pass upon a request for such a sum soon.

Consideration of the correspondence courses followed protests from several sources that other forms of aid offered college and high school students would not reach many of the "border line" or relief.

These sources pointed out that the $4-a-month payments promised high school students who have a "relief status" would not be available to boys and girls whose families are hard pressed but not actually on relief. They said also the $15-a-month aid offered college students who otherwise would have to leave school was not sufficient to solve the problem for those who have no other resources.

to two years in state prison on a plea of guilty to forgery. The court denied a plea for leniency on the grounds that it was not the first offense. Peters was charged with passing five spurious $10 checks since last June.

Leland Charles DeCarlow of the Skagway district entered a plea of guilty to larceny of livestock in the theft of one calf. The court deferred sentence until a full hearing could be had, along with the report of the state stock theft investigator who has been engaged on the case for several weeks.

Hughes, according to his admissions, entered the home of Miss Alice Zimmerman in Ashland, after springing the lock on the screen door. Miss Zimmerman, asleep on aavenport, was awakened. Terrified she approached the intruder, who threw the beams of a flashlight in her face and commanded:

"Get back in bed and pull the covers over your head and keep still."

He then stole a purse and a garment containing a $5 bill and some small change.

Later, Hughes entered the home of Harry Salo, a short distance away, and stole Salo's overalls containing four pennies.
