VERITABLE ARMY AWAITS OPENING OF DEER SEASON

Just four more days remain before the opening of the 1935 deer season in Oregon. All is bustle in the Medford sporting goods stores, where already 835 hunting licenses have been sold. Including combination hunting and fishing permits. In the few remaining days, another 500 will probably be sold, according to the dealers and it is estimated that as many as 800 hunters will take to the field Saturday for the opening Sunday morning.

The deer are said to be plentiful in most sections of southern Oregon, particularly in the Greenspring, Parker and Hayden mountain country, and on the upper Applegate. Evans creek, Butte creek, Elk creek and the Prospect district will also call many, but those who have been spotting in the Haymaker district on the Diamond Lake road state that there are very few signs there this year.

As in previous years, there will be many from here traveling to eastern Oregon. In the Lakeview and Bend sections, in search of mule deer. Both deer tags must be placed on this variety, but hunters are allowed two of the Columbia blacktail, the deer found in this district.

The opening of the season on Sunday this year will result in a heavier flow of hunters to the hills, with an increasing danger of hunters shooting each other for deer. Authorities plead that hunters be sure that what they are shooting at is a deer, with more than spike horns. Hunters are warned to wear bright clothing while in the woods, for their own protection. They are also warned against hunting in the Crater Lake national park, with vigorous prosecution promised those caught hunting inside the boundaries.
