

"Heil Hitler!" on all Lips in Germany Says Mail Tribune Traveler

Ed. Note: Clarence J. Toy of Medford, who is touring Europe, is writing a series of letters for the Mail Tribune. The fifth letter, which follows, gives an interesting sidelight on Germany's adulation of the dictator, Hitler.

KOLN AM RHEIN, Germany, Sept. 15.—(Special Correspondence.)—At the present posted exchange rate, the German reichsmark is worth 40 cents, a fraction over or under, roughly two and a half to the dollar. Based on this rate, travel for the foreigner in Germany is fairly expensive, probably more so than any of the other European countries. But the German government has hit upon a neat and simple method of attracting the tourist, in spite of the exchange rate, and after a few weeks in Germany, a traveler wishes to heaven that the other governments of Europe would see the light and follow Germany's scheme.

The way the idea works is this: Practically any travel agency or any large bank in any city of any importance in the world sells what the German government has called registered marks. They are nothing more or less than traveler's checks, which may be cashed and are redeemable any place in Germany for their face value, but the point is that whereas the bankers' exchange rate places the mark at 40 cents, these registered marks can be bought at 25 cents. In other words, instead of two and a half marks for a dollar, an American, by buying these registered marks, finds himself getting four marks for a dollar. Very nice.

Of course there are certain restrictions placed in the purchase and use of the registered marks, to prevent them being bought and used to settle foreign trade debts, but these limitations don't affect the tourist. A spending limit of 50 marks per day per person is placed on the registered marks, but for any ordinary tourist, this amount is plenty generous. Likewise, taking the marks out of the country is prohibited, and purchases with them is limited to the ordinary expenditures in the regular course of travel. Naturally, these have been some abuses of the scheme, but they are few and far between, and the advantages of the plan far outweigh the disadvantages, at least as far as the tourist is concerned.

Economists may argue themselves hoarse that a scheme such as this virtually amounts to currency inflation, but let the economists worry about that. Spending marks worth 25 cents is much more fun than if they cost 40 cents, and it just can't help making the food in Germany taste better and the scenery more alluring. Hoopay for the registered marks! It's a grand German custom, and these other European countries should get on the bandwagon, and they'd hop aboard in a hurry, too. If the average tourist had his say.

Prices vary to quite an extent in the various parts of Germany, but on the average, good single rooms in a downtown city hotel can be had for three marks; meals range from one to two and a half marks; cigarettes cost about 15 cents a pack, and gasoline runs about 45 cents a gallon, and all the way through, travel and living is less expensive in Germany than in any of the other European countries. And, after all is said and done, the plan of these registered marks is accomplishing its primary purpose, for there are far more tourists in Germany than any other country in Europe.

Englishmen head the list, then

Americans, but you meet quite a sprinkling of every nationality under the sun. Everyone, that is, except the French. All through France, and in Germany as well, there are plenty of evidences of national rivalry and suspicion that are clearly evident, and travel between the two countries, like any other form of intercourse, practically doesn't exist if it can be avoided.

But registered marks or no registered marks, Germany is a fine country in which to travel, and no European tourist should miss it. It is absolutely in contrast to any of the other countries, and most points of the contrast are in its favor. The German people, from one end of the country to the other, are friendly, courteous, honest and eager to please a tourist. Shops, large or small, have only one price for either foreigners or Germans, and the spirit of bargaining that prevails over so many other European nations simply doesn't exist in Germany. The cities are clean, busy and interesting, and the charm of the countryside has a unique quality of its own that sets Germany apart from its neighbors.

In spite of all the tremendous industrial and technical progress of the German people, the rural areas are still surprisingly backward. You see wheat and grain cut, stacked and flailed by hand, with the whole family taking part, from children to grandparents. Omen are much more in evidence than horses, and tractors are a novelty. The small villages and towns stand now just as they were generations ago. The cities are highly modernized and much like the average American city, but the countryside has an old-world interest that isn't quite expected of modern Germany.

"Heil Hitler!" is a phrase often quoted in American papers, but in Germany it's more than a phrase—it tumbles off everyone's tongue with just about the habitual regularity of a telephone operator's "Number, please." Probably the Germans have words of "Hello," "Goodbye," "How are you?" and so on, but they aren't used. It's "Heil, Hitler!" instead. That's literally, absolutely true. In a restaurant, hotel lobby or beer parlor, every German who enters, salutes those inside with a "Heil, Hitler." The same in leaving. Every telephone conversation is started and ended with the magic words. They are simply on everyone's lips, and they're not used as a formal salute or a patriotic exclamation, either.

"Heil, Hitler!" has entered the German speech as a customary expression that commences or ends every conversation and contact. At first, there's a decided novelty to the continued repetition of the words, but in a few days the habit becomes commonplace and you are more surprised at not hearing it than otherwise. Crossroad village or the largest city, it makes no difference. Ask a question, buy a beer or discuss the weather with a German, and there has to be a "Heil, Hitler!" before he gets down to business. It sounds comic, and from an American point of view, it is all a bit foolish, but "Heil, Hitler!" is a habit and a custom in Germany and apparently is going to stay that way for some time to come.

HOME EXTENSION LEADERS CONFER HERE WEDNESDAY

The annual training conference for officers of home extension units of the county and project leaders will be held next Wednesday, October 2, at the courthouse auditorium, commencing at 10 a. m.

This conference is held annually as an aid to the chairmen, vice-chairmen, secretaries and other officers of the units in planning their administrative work for the year and to aid them in carrying out the project work more efficiently. The project leaders in nutrition, clothing, parent education and recreation will be instructed on methods of teaching these various subjects.

The morning session will open with group singing, with Mrs. Rita Myers, chairman of the county extension committee presiding. At 10:40 a. m. the assembly will be divided into two sessions—one for chairmen, vice-chairmen and librarians, and the other for secretaries, treasurers and project leaders. Miss Thelma Gaylord, acting state leader of home economics extension, and Mrs. Mabel C. Mack, county home demonstration agent, will lead the discussions in these two groups.

The afternoon program will include parliamentary procedure and drill and a discussion of procedure in conducting the local business meeting. This discussion will be led by Miss Gaylord.

There will be a covered dish luncheon at noon, the menu includes sandwiches, vegetable salad, sliced tomatoes, fresh fruits, cookies and coffee. Each person is asked to bring their own table service.

Anyone interested in this officers' training work or parliamentary drill is invited to attend the meeting.

HANSEN BUILDING TO BE MODERNIZED

Remodeling and modernizing the store building at Main street and Bartlett street, owned by William Hansen, is scheduled to start soon. The work includes installation of a modern front and plate glass, with display windows on Bartlett street. The bay-windows on the second story will be removed. The improvements, according to Architect Frank Clark, will cost in the neighborhood of $5000.

Charles Strang, druggist, owner of the adjoining building, is contemplating improvements to make his building conform to the front of the Hansen property.

Both structures are among the oldest in the business district. John Tomlin, of the Timber Products company, reports demand for building material "is brisk," and that considerable remodeling of homes is still underway.

Architect Clark recently reported that the present year has been the best for building in five years, and predicted that next year will see a number of new homes erected in the city. Many are now considering plans.

Among homes now undergoing changes are those of William Bates, on Geneva street, and Henry Fuhrer, on Slaktyou Heights.

Recent Bride Is Feted at Shower

Mrs. John Brenner, of Central Point the former Mrs. Beale Dewey, whose wedding was a recent event, has been honored with several affairs lately.

The Mistletoe club arranged a surprise shower in the form of a covered dish luncheon at her home Wednesday afternoon. The shower was miscellaneous, and Mrs. Brenner received numerous beautiful and useful gifts.

About thirty guests were present. Plans for the affair were made by Mesdames Maude Lovell, Marie Silvia, Colla Geer and Clarissa Baird. The afternoon was spent at the card tables.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Edith Beck entertained with a bridge luncheon at her home on S. Grape St., also in honor of the recent bride, who received shower gifts. Mrs. Gettenbein assisted the hostess. Score prizes were given to Mesdames Grace Burdette, Searla, and Geer.

Reames Chapter Holds Card Party Following the regular business meeting of Reames chapter, O. E. S., held Wednesday evening, the September committee, headed by Mrs. Cornelius Barnes and Mrs. Zenda Sanders, will lead the discussions in these two groups.

The afternoon program will include parliamentary procedure and drill and a discussion of procedure in conducting the local business meeting. This discussion will be led by Miss Gaylord.

There will be a covered dish luncheon at noon, the menu includes sandwiches, vegetable salad, sliced tomatoes, fresh fruits, cookies and coffee. Each person is asked to bring their own table service.

Anyone interested in this officers' training work or parliamentary drill is invited to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Black, who has been vacationing for some time at her summer home on Rogue river, returned this morning to her home in San Francisco. While here she entertained as her guests for several days Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Edgell.

Mrs. C. N. Black, who has been vacationing for some time at her summer home on Rogue river, returned this morning to her home in San Francisco. While here she entertained as her guests for several days Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Edgell.

Mrs. Jack Prague of Salem left this morning for her home. She has been the guest for the past ten days of her mother, Mrs. G. H. Maasdam.

Meeting of Women's Association Women's association of the Presbyterian church will meet Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in the church parlors.

PORTLAND, Sept. 30.—(Sp.)—Four Medford inventors will exhibit their creations in the Pacific Northwest Inventors' show which will be held in Portland for one week beginning October 19. They are W. F. Clark, who has invented an electric torch for use in dental laboratories; Dawson Piling & Grinding Works, wheel and bushing puller; Mrs. J. Balcom, new attachment for saws in sawmills, and P. E. Wahl, rotating plow for removal of snow and ice from highways.

Many other sections of Oregon and southwestern Washington will be represented in the show. Salem is sending 10 inventions; Eugene, 12; The Dalles, 3; Klamath Falls, 4; Bend and Hood River, 2 each, and other cities one or more each. Between 30 and 40 Portland inventors will exhibit their creations, judging from latest reports received here on the show. The inventions range from the simplest novelty to big logging machinery.

CIRCLE MEETS TONIGHT AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH Circle meeting tonight instead of Tuesday. Regular monthly meeting of the circle will be held tonight at the Christian church. Irwin Doty's group is in charge. All members and friends are invited.

Miss Susie Storm Married in Idaho

The following account of the wedding of Miss Susie Storm, from the Spokesman-Review, will interest her many friends in Medford:

Of interest to many friends here is the announcement of the marriage in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, August 31, of Miss Susie Storm of Medford, Oregon, to Roy Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Long of Creswell, Ore. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Barton and was kept so quiet that few knew about it.

Mr. Long has been local manager for the last five months of Harper-Messico, Inc., wholesale radio distributors for RCA-Victor. He has been in the radio field for several years and is widely known among radio dealers of the Inland Empire.

Community Club Will Meet Tomorrow The Talent Community club will meet on Tuesday this week instead of Wednesday, the regular meeting date, as several members wish to attend the all-day meeting of the home extension unit on Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Engberg will have charge of the program Tuesday, beginning the study of Oregon writers. The club held the first meeting of the year on September 18. A most interesting and instructive paper, based on Richard Barry's analysis of the Ethiopian situation, was read by Mrs. Long. Though attendance was small, it was a most worth while meeting.

Mrs. Biddle Back From East Mrs. W. B. Biddle returned to Medford Friday after a seven weeks trip in the east. She was guest for awhile of her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Biddle, in St. Paul, and also of another son, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Biddle in Chicago. Mrs. Biddle also spent some time vacationing at a summer lodge in northern Minnesota.

Spent Day At Oregon Caves Among those going out of town this week-end were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Butler and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Brown, of Oakland, and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Alden, who were visitors yesterday at the Oregon Caves.

Altar Society Will Entertain St. Ann's altar society will serve a chicken dinner tomorrow evening in the parish hall at five o'clock. The society will meet for the regular business session Wednesday afternoon at two-thirty in the parish hall.

Degree of Honor Announces Meeting Degree of Honor protective association will hold the regular business meeting Thursday evening at eight o'clock at the Eagles hall. A large attendance is expected.

ROOSEVELT GIVES CHEERY WORD ON NATIONS FINANCE

The budget summation, designed to take account of economic changes and a congressional appropriation since the budget first was presented to congress in January, stressed reports of better economic conditions. This is a subject to which the President is referring frequently as he travels across the country, and administration leaders are seeking to hammer home the argument that the improvement proves the worth of new deal policies.

In his budget summation, the President said that if the AAA should be ruled unconstitutional "then we will have to face the problem of financing existing contracts for benefit payments out of some form of new taxes."

He did not promise a balanced budget for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1936. His figures for the present fiscal year were based on the premise that the $4,000,000,000 of work relief money will be spent in full. The works program, he said, "has moved more slowly than I hoped, but is now accelerating with reasonable assurance of providing adequate employment during the coming months."

Of the economic outlook, he asserted: "At this date inventories are low. Industry has shown its strength against the current of seasonal slackness and output and trade are expanding. Capital market conditions are favorable. Crops are expected to be larger this season and to yield farmers more income than in the past year."

Estimating that the deficit for this fiscal year, ending June 30, 1936, would be $300,000,000 less than in the previous 12 months, he added: "This reduction can be realized, however, only in the event that no new items of expenditure are added to the year's program."

This was taken in some quarters as a reference to the $2,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus. The document estimated that revenues for the present (1936) fiscal year would be $4,470,000,000. This compares with $3,991,000,000 estimated in January, $3,800,000,000 collected in 1935 and $3,115,000,000 in 1934. Expenditures were set at $7,752,000,000, as compared with January's estimate of $8,520,000,000. The total spent last year was $7,375,000,000 and in 1934 it was $7,105,000,000.

The Crater Lake council of Boy Scouts, recently returned from a trip to New York and Washington, D. C., are now reaping the publicity from the trip. In the recent issue of Boy's Life, official publication of the Boy Scouts of America, specific mention is given the local delegation as one of the units traveling farthest.

In the current issue of "Scouting," another Boy Scout magazine, the Crater Lake contingent is shown in a picture, lined up with a group of Chinese Scouts. Other favorable comment, on the remarkably good manners of the Pacific coast scouts, has appeared in eastern magazines and newspapers.

ject will be entirely self liquidating, he stressed, the financing for the difference between the federal grant and the estimated cost being done by means of a bond issue.

Mr. White stated that now is a propitious time to proceed with the construction of the reservoir as the national government's grant will pay for a large share of the cost. If, he explained, the special election is not held before November 1 and the actual work started before December 15 the federal allotment will be cancelled.

The city council some time ago authorized the water commission to apply for the federal funds and so it is a foregone conclusion that the proposition will be approved at tomorrow's council meeting. Construction of the reservoir also has the backing of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce.

If the voters approve the proposition, contracts for the job will be awarded under competitive bidding, said Robert A. Duff, water commission superintendent.

the roadster driving from the direction of the slaying. Police characterized the killing as one of the most cold-blooded they have encountered in years. It appeared, Deputy Loll had come upon the man who was hunting pheasants out of season, and had questioned them. Apparently without warning he had been shot down by the slayer who discharged both barrels of a shotgun. Near the empty shells a dead pheasant was found.

State, county and city police swung into action in one of the most earnest man-hunts in the city's history.

Today state motor vehicle records were being checked systematically to determine the ownership of every roadster of the make and description of that seen by the Carls. They said a light colored dog was riding in the rumble seat of the roadster. The killers carried away the dead officer's sawed off shotgun.

MEDFORD MEN HURT IN TRUCK SMASHUP NEAR BONANZA, ORE.

Jack M. Worsham, former resident of Medford and well known here, sustained a fractured skull in a truck accident near Bonanza Friday morning, according to word received today.

Worsham was riding in the back of a truck driven by Robert Roy Dixon. Dixon lost control of the vehicle as the door of the cab flew open and the machine lurched over a pile of dirt. Worsham was thrown about twenty-five feet, landing on his face. He was brought to the Klamath Valley hospital where he was operated on Saturday morning. He has not regained consciousness, and no hope is held for his recovery.

Also riding with Dixon in the cab were two other men, one of them G. T. Judy, also of Medford, and brother of Justin Judy. Judy was run over by the back wheel of the truck after being thrown out of the cab, sustaining leg injuries.

Worsham was in business here for a number of years and was recently in partnership with Carl Henderson, operating the Pig Tail market, and before that was with the Piggly Wiggly market, the Economy market, and Ed Binn's market.

Dick Dale, also of this city, is being treated in the Klamath Valley hospital for injuries to shoulder and collar bone. Details of the accident were not obtained, but Dale told attendants that he was hurt while hunting.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR CCC YOUTHS GUILTY INDECENT EXPOSURE

Martin Liegel, Frank DeMond, and Luther Coop, CCC enrollees stationed at the Elk Creek camp, charged with indecent exposure, entered pleas of guilty in justice court Saturday, and were each sentenced to three months in the county jail and fined $4.50 costs.

One of the trio has re-enlisted, and the other two will be returned to Chicago, whence they came, on the first October troop train, scheduled to depart this week.

The pair scheduled to return home, the commanding officer informed the court, were "agitators." The youth who re-enlisted is not a "bad boy," the captain said.

A number of CCC members were engaged in building a road in the woods, and the three accused were wearing overalls, cut short for comfort. The overalls were ripped to the waist. An auto bearing three women passed the workers and was forced to stop. The trio allegedly made themselves too conspicuous and offended the women, resulting in a complaint being filed.

B. LaFond of the Ashland district entered a plea of guilty to setting a fire on forest land, without a permit, and was fined $25 and costs. He was granted until October 15 to make a $10 payment.

BRUSH BURNING PERMITS NEEDED

Notice was received this morning by District Fire Warden Dwight L. Phipps, head of fire work in Jackson and Josephine counties, to the effect that the fire season in Oregon has been extended this year to October 15, upon orders from Gov. Charles H. Martin.

Unless the ban is removed in the meantime, this means that there can be no brush, grass or stubble burning in these two counties, up to that date, unless a permit is first obtained from the state forest patrol headquarters, located on the Midway road just beyond the "Four Corners" service station, or from the state fire wardens located in the outlying districts.

The ban has been lowered because of the increasing dryness in the forests of the state. If heavy rains are received before October 15, the restriction may be removed.

M'ELROY'S BAND FOR ELKS DANCE

Cole McElroy's well known and popular orchestra and entertainers are returning to their Portland ballroom after a month's tour of California, where they played to large crowds at such well known night spots as Sweet's ballroom, Oakland; Sweet's Rainbow ballroom, Fresno; Cocoon Grove, Casa Del Ray hotel, Santa Cruz, and many others.

The musical organization will be featured at a special dance next Wednesday evening at the Elks temple here.

Del Milne, musical director and master of ceremonies of the McElroy group, is well known in the radio, stage, and dance fields of the northwest. Miss Mary Short, one of Portland's greatest radio stars for the last eight years, will be one of the featured singers and entertainers with the coming attractions. The orchestra is composed of 14 very versatile and clever musicians and entertainers. One of the special performers is Jack Lenard on his radio guitar, one of the very latest musical instruments of the present day.

Another very outstanding feature will be Mr. Clair Feely in a trumpet solo, "When Day Is Done," made famous by Henry Busse, with Paul Whiteman's great orchestra.
