ROOSEVELT SAYS INDUSTRY MUST AID EMPLOYMENT

years and a half we have come to the point where private industry must bear the principal responsibility of keeping the processes of greater employment moving forward with accelerated speed.

Discussing the power "yardstick," Mr. Roosevelt stated: "It is my belief that the government should proceed to lay down the firm yardstick from this great power line in the form of a state power plant, assisted in its financing by the government, and tapping the wonderful natural resources of southern Nevada."
The president also strongly defended the countless other federal projects of smaller nature now underway thru the rapid-fire job-making works progress administration.

Draws Comparison
Pointing to the vast use of Boulder dam in preventing floods, irrigating soil and providing power, he asked, "can we say that a five foot brushwood dam across the headwaters of an arroyo, and costing only a millionth part of Boulder dam, is an undesirable project or a waste of money?"

"With it all," he continued, "with work proceeding in every one of the more than three thousand counties in the United States, and of a vastly greater number of local divisions of government, the actual credit of government agencies is on a stronger and safer basis than at any time in the past six years. Many states have actually improved their financial position in the past two years. Municipal tax receipts are being paid when the taxes fall due and tax arrearages are steadily declining."

Proudly detailing the far reaching purposes of human benefit hoped for from the new dam, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his determination to complete similar undertakings in the other three corners of the country—the Tennessee valley experiment already under way in the southeast; the Grand Coulee dam project nearing completion in the northwest; and the proposed St. Lawrence waterway development, although he did not specify the latter three proposals.

Marks Completion
"Today marks," he said, "the official completion and dedication of Boulder dam, the first of four great government regional units. It is an engineering victory of the first order—another great achievement of American resourcefulness, skill and determination."

The president recalled that Senator Johnson, of California, and Phil Swing, former representative from California, started the legislation which made the dam possible and re-iterated the hope for whom the structure was built to harness the turbulent Colorado and provide power, prevent floods and make possible future homesteads.

PHOENIX GRANGE WILL HOLD BOOSTERS NIGHT

Tonight Phoenix Grange will observe Grange Boosters night with a special program, to which all in the community are invited.

This has been an annual event with Phoenix Grange, and is looked forward to by many.

A program will be presented by the lecturer, Mrs. W. A. Bricker, which will be both entertaining and educational, consisting of a short skit, talks and music. The H. E. C. committee will serve light refreshments. They ask each lady of the Grange to bring cookies. Other committees are putting forth every effort to make this evening a success.

WILSON AGAIN FACING STOCK AT LARGE SUIT

Dave Wilson, of the Willow Springs district, charged in a complaint signed by John Thomas, with permitting hogs to run at large, has entered a plea of not guilty, and October 3, at 2:00 o'clock has been set as time for hearing before Justice of the Peace William R. Coleman.

This is the third time in the past year Wilson has been charged with the same offense. The first time for permitting stock to run at large; the second time for permitting hogs to run at large. Thomas signed the complaint in the last two cases. Wilson was acquitted in the previous cases.

Garbo Attains New Dramatic Heights In Anna Karenina

Out of Tolstol's great love story "Anna Karenina" a new Garbo is born. The picture, which opened yesterday at the Craterian theater, shows a more beautiful, brilliant and spiritedly natural character than she has been for years. And this fact, in spite of the splendid supporting cast personnel, lavish production quality, fine acting, intelligent direction and full preservation of the powerfully emotional appeal of the original story, stands forth as the outstanding part of the picture. A new Garbo—a greater Garbo than before!

Though impressive, the story is a simple one. It is that of a woman who gave up everything most precious to every woman for a few moments of blissful infatuation. It tells, in powerful sequences, the story of Anna, loving beyond the pale, deserting her coldly detached husband, surrendering the greatest treasure of her life, the companionship of her adored child, and all the things for which every woman lives, only to have the man for whom she sacrificed, soon tiring of his infatuated dream, leave her to accept the fate of all those for whom life holds no promise of happiness.

Garbo's contributions in handling the difficult role and making it believably real are the outstanding parts of her career. But, in the inspired performance of Fredric March, the sensational work of Freddie Bartholomew and the understanding of Basil Rathbone, Maudie O'Sullivan, Reginald Owen and others, there is a wealth of entertainment worth.

There is also worth in the production's lavish values—the toasting, drinking dinner of the Russian officers with its "under the table" sag; the court ball and its colorful dance and the authentic Russian settings
