

M'COY SELECTED CHAIRMAN COUNTY BUDGET DRAFTERS

J. W. McCoy, Ashland banker, has been named chairman of the budget committee, and H. A. (Bert) Thierolf, Medford lumberman, secretary. Thursday has been set for the first regular meeting, providing one of the appointive members returns from a business trip in time to attend.

The county court and the budget committee last Saturday inspected roads and bridges in the Applegate district. A meeting was held last Friday for the purpose of organizing and studying plans of operation.

Members of the county court state that the appropriation for bridges and demands for road improvements and new roads is heavy. It is predicted that the bridge repair fund will be the largest in several years. Many of the bridges are deteriorating from heavy traffic and lack of repairs in the past five years. In some instances the supporting stringers have started to decay.

Members of the county court feel that placing the bridges in good repair is a matter of sound business policy, as one damaged suit, should an accident occur, would more than offset the economy.

A check shows there are 706 bridges of all sizes and shapes in the county, in varying degrees of safety.

The demand for new roads has been brisk the past two months, from districts wanting new routes, and improvements to the old routes. There is close to 100 miles of county roads, exclusive of highways and secondary highways. It is figured 300 miles of the network "is in as bad shape as ever," and most of the remainder in need of re-grading and maintenance.

ELMER CENTER RITES WEDNESDAY MORNING

Funeral services for Elmer J. Center, 56, a resident of Talent since 1923, who died at a local hospital

60,600 HOURS OF WORK PROVIDED BY RESERVOIR

George W. Porter was informed by City Attorney Frank P. Farrell that the ordinance authorizing the poll could not be prepared in time for the meeting. A special meeting of the council will therefore be held Thursday evening, at which time notice of the special election will be issued. It was stated by Ed M. White, water commission chairman.

According to work sheets prepared by Mr. Duff, the job would require 30 men the first month, 60 the second and third months, 80 the fourth month, 150 the fifth month, and 100 the sixth month.

There will be work for shovel operators, compressor, powder, steel and hoist men, mixers, stone masons, truck drivers, carpenters and helpers, besides common laborers, Mr. Duff said.

The proposed project, one of the biggest jobs to be considered for Medford in recent years, entails the excavation of almost 24,000 cubic yards of rock and earth.

The material list calls for the consumption of almost 4,000 barrels of cement and 200 tons of reinforcing steel in addition to a large amount of miscellaneous articles.

Jobs would be placed through the local office of the national re-employment service, which is in charge of Lewis Ulrich.

Elks Initiate 7 Members Thursday

A class of seven new members will be initiated by the Elks' lodge on Thursday evening. It was announced today. A call was issued for a full attendance of members to give the initiates an impressive welcome.

YOUNG PEOPLES' CRUSADE RALLY ENTIRE SUCCESS

The Young People's Crusade Rally, conducted by the Young People's auxiliary of the local Church of the Nazarene, held in the Presbyterian church Sunday night, was acclaimed by the large attendance as a notable success in the field of Christian ministry and service.

The attendance went far beyond the quota requested by the general department. Approximately three times the membership of the local society were in attendance. The young people desire, especially, to express thanks to the southern Oregon public for its support.

Rev. U. E. Harding of Portland brought the special message, as guest speaker, from the topic, "Christ and Young America." He said, in part, as follows:

"This is a day of youth achievement, but the story is two-sided. Youth is taking the field in the realm of commercial and industrial achievement. It is also predominant in the field of Christian crusading for Christ, as is evident by this program tonight.

"There is also a tragic side to this day of youth. The country is shocked, today, by the unprecedented crime crusade that is sweeping the world. The blight of our nation is the crime of youth.

"This makes the challenge of Christ crusading paramount. If the encroaching tide of evil is to be turned to worthy Christian citizenship."

C. L. HOPKINS LEAVES FIRESTONE TO ENTER BUSINESS FOR SELF

C. L. Hopkins who has managed the Firestone Auto Supply and Service store in this city for the past three years, has tendered his resignation to the Firestone company to enter business in this city. Plans for his new connection were completed last week and a public announcement will be made within the next few days, according to Mr. Hopkins. Later this week an announcement will also be made by the Firestone company as to the selection of the new manager of the Firestone Auto Supply and Service store.

"I have been so impressed with Medford and the Rogue River valley I have decided to make this section of the coast my permanent home," Mr. Hopkins said today. "I am very appreciative of the splendid patronage of Medford people while I was in charge of the Firestone store here, and cannot speak too highly of the quality of Firestone tires and other products. My family and I have already established our permanent home in the valley and it is with considerable satisfaction that we consider ourselves a real part of this fine community."

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, with their son, Curt Junior, have made their home at the attractive Touvelle orchards on Ross Lane near this city.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Hattie Belle Johnston has become one of New York's most widely traveled ladies. The widow of William Johnston, author and long time editor of the Sunday World, she was for years hostess to her husband's distinguished friends. Their guest book is about the most complete celebrity roll extant.

One met at their informal dinners such literary lights as H. G. Wells, the Williamsons, Carolyn Wells, Clare Sheridan, Gelett Burgess, Rebecca West, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Isaac Marcovsen, Fannie Hurst along with an assortment of stage stars, magazine editors and book publishers.

Johnston was first to give O. Henry a leg up after the tragic interlude in his life and was one of his most intimate friends. After her husband's passing, Mrs. Johnston with her sister, Mrs. Blanche Clark, constant companion in her globe-trotting, went on a trip around the world to ease her sorrow.

"This was the beginning of a wanderlust that carried her far flung corners. She was among the pioneers to brave the banditry of the desert in a motor bus to Bagdad. She has been through the lost lands of Alaska and Siberia, the jungles of Africa everywhere. And is still on the move.

Mrs. Johnston, for instance, as this is written, is a beach visitor at Abbazia in the Adriatic where women wear bright green maple leaves over their noses—forming gadgets which fit as slick as a sunbonnet or newly tailored awning. The grotesque effect is impervious to sun and salt water.

Susan Palmer is another heroine of the tea room success stories that include so many educated women. She invested her entire savings in a Rockefeller Center venture when that area looked like ready money for any restaurant. But along came the depression and the long uphill pull. She managed to hold on and today is turning them away.

A favored alcoholic drink of the summer was the sturdy Tom Collins, outselling other hot weather libations 5 to 1. Cheaper restaurants announced them at 15 cents a copy but in former spots were 30 cents. The Tom Collins was a special of the old Astor House bar, near Fulton street, downtown. Jubilee Jim Fiske used to banish the fog of a night by downing several in a row before breakfast. And Harry Thaw found them bracing after a jingle.

In a later period Joel's Blue Moon cocktail was celebrated among hardy drinkers for potency. The coloring was Prussian blue with a scamp of Arcady and the taste of a faded nectar. One, and the uninitiated sat statue-like for an hour or so petrified. Two, and one slipped under the table, out like a light.

One of the theater's long and hectic romances that dwelled into something rare for a love affair—a beautiful friendship—continues between George White and Ann Pennington. For years one would not go into a show without the other and when White began producing Miss Pennington always landed on top billing. Today the early ardor has cooled but their palship is one of the legends of a street tinged with bitterness of countless amours. To White, Miss Pennington is "Penny" and to her he is "Swiftly." They keep in constant touch.

Hamish McArthur picked up a word ditherer in England recently that is good for a swell setting of the ornaments on a dull day. The problem—an actual happening in an English class room—is to write the word "had" eleven times in succession and yet, by putting a few words in front and a few behind and using the right punctuation, to have what you have written make sense. Here it is: "John, where James had had 'had,' had had 'had had.' 'Had had' had had more weight with the examiners.

Bill Robinson, Harlem tap dancing Bojangles, picked up a wire-haired fox terrier puppy in a Forty-seventh street dog shop several weeks ago and is working on an experiment that may climax his act with the most sensational flash yet. He is teaching the dog to tap dance. He has outfitted him with dancing shoes and swears the pooch has already learned a few steps.

He was a bewildered ear-cupping old gentleman, trying to stem the avenue traffic in a series of false starts. I took his arm and half way across we both escaped eternity by a whisker under a wrong way fall. On the top of the curb he bowed coldly, walked a dozen steps, turned and whined: "You ain't no spryer than I am."

Card of Thanks. We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends for the acts of kindness and sympathy extended us during our recent bereavement; also for the beautiful floral offerings.—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wight, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Graves, Florence Graves.

Newbury Mistaken For Sen. McAdoo

Attorney Gus Newberry returned yesterday from a month's visit in the middle west. He was mistaken for Senator William G. McAdoo, the 71-year-old bridegroom, in Chicago and Kansas City, and laid up in Los Angeles with an attack of sciatica. The attorney, accompanied by Mrs. Newberry, paid a visit to Carl Newbury in Minneapolis, Minn. Attorney Newbury is still suffering from his sciatica, but able to move around.

Experts agree that word of mouth advertising is the most effective of all advertising. For instance, when one consumer recommends a product to another consumer, that recommendation bears more weight than any printed advertising or radio program! That is exactly why we chose this type of Contest for our month-long Fall Coffee Campaign. Fifty persons are going to win these prizes simply for recommending these three famous Coffee Brands... Airway, Nob Hill, or Edwards' Dependable... to their friends and neighbors. You can be one of these fifty if you will try. There are no letters to write, no limericks to complete, no puzzles to solve, nothing to buy. All you do is get a supply of Contest slips at any of our stores, pass them out to your friends with your recommendation of our coffees. Isn't that easy? Why not start right away and turn your spare time to advantage—you may win one of these big cash prizes!

RULES

Anyone may participate in this Contest, except employees of Safeway Stores and Affiliated Companies. Each pound of Coffee sold upon recommendation of Contestant counts five points. At the end of the Contest, the fifty persons credited with the fifty highest number of points will be awarded the fifty prizes in the same order.

Contest Blanks are obtainable upon request at any of our stores. They must be plainly signed by Contestant and countersigned by the Customer when purchase of Coffee is made and the slip turned in at the store. No Contestant will be permitted to solicit Coffee sales in or upon the premises of any of our stores.

Contestants agree to abide by the decision of the Judges. All Contest Slips will be carefully counted and checked to prevent any chance of error in the scores of the Contestants. Failure to comply with any or all of these rules will automatically disqualify the Contestant.

Contest closes midnight, October 31. No Contest Slips will be accepted by the stores after that date.
