Raymond H. Samson entertained the Kiwanis club with three violin selections at the weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Hotel Medford. He was accompanied by Sebastian Apolo.

The violinist played Gems from Countess Maritza, Sweet Mystery of Life and Waters of Minnetonka, and was enthusiastically applauded for the excellence of his musicianship.

Mr. Samson was formerly musical director at the Tivoli theater in San Francisco, and is now attached to the CCC welfare office here under Capt. William C. Ryan.

Gain Robinson, Community Chest general in charge of field forces, urged the Kiwanis club to furnish volunteers for the fund campaign soon to be launched.

The campaign this year, he said, will be similar to those previously conducted, though he emphasized that the sum to be raised will be larger than that of a year ago, because of increased burdens due to the withdrawal of government relief assistance.

George T. Frey, Medford Red Cross chairman, told the club of the work being done by the Red Cross in establishing 15,000 first aid stations throughout the country.

At these stations, he explained, first aid is administered in any kind of accident. There are now four stations in Jackson county, one each in Pinehurst, Trail, Klamath Junction and Prospect, he stated.

Signs are placed on the highway to designate the stations, and classes to train the personnel in first aid work are being conducted, with the state police cooperating and furnishing instructors, Mr. Frey related.

Dr. George Massey, Kiwanian of Klamath Falls, was a guest of the local club.

HEIR KILLS 2 AND SELF IN QUARREL OVER ESTATE

CURLEW, Wash., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A coroner's inquest today laid three violent deaths by shooting near here to a restless heir to a small farming estate, himself the third victim.

Deputy Coroner L. W. Strassburg reported after the inquest the finding that Tom Lagrud, 40, a bachelor, yesterday killed Mr. and Mrs. James J. Landy, about 55 and 50, at their farm home, and then turned a high-powered rifle on himself, after walking a mile to his own farm.

Lagrud, Strassburg said, was heir to a one-third parcel of the estate of an uncle who died two years ago. Landy was the administrator.

Ill feeling between them was generally recognized in this village. Strassburg explained, and it reached a climax Saturday night when Landy refused Lagrud's demand for money.

An 11-year-old boy, Piny Bush, who was playing near Lagrud's place yesterday, was the key witness at the inquest.

He told how Lagrud practiced shooting with his .22 rifle, cleaned it and remarked, "I might as well get them now." Then, he said, he headed toward Landy's home.

A half hour later he returned. He went toward the creek with the .22 and a high caliber rifle. Both were in his clutch when he was found after a shot a moment later.

The usual period of trial, during which they will be required to indulge in various chores designed to take the edge off their dignity and deflate their egos, the youths will be duly initiated into the secret orders.

Bill Cummings, former Mail Tribune reporter, who registered at the University of Oregon for a course in journalism, was pledged by Phi Delta Theta.
