

MRS. ABBY K. THOMAS RITES SATURDAY AT CHURCH IN ASHLAND

Funeral services for Mrs. Abby Kendall Thomas (Mrs. I. W.) will take place at the First Presbyterian church of Ashland, Saturday, October 5, at 2 p. m., the Rev. M. L. Edwards, pastor, in charge.

Mrs. Thomas was born December 4, 1868, at Riverside, Ill., and passed away October 2.

When a child, she went with her parents in 1873, to near Beloit, Kas., where several years were spent. In 1883, the family came to Canyon City, Ore., where her father, the Rev. Reese P. Kendall, served as a missionary minister in the Episcopal church for a few years.

After some years, Mrs. Thomas went to Boston, Mass., where she pursued her musical education in the New England Conservatory of Music. Later she graduated from the King Conservatory of Music in San Jose, Cal. In 1901, she, with her parents, came to the Rogue River valley, where she has since lived.

Her marriage to I. W. Thomas of Medford took place November 27, 1907. He passed away in January, 1917.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by one sister, Mrs. Aaron Andrews of Ashland; her step-son, Joseph Thomas, and grandson, Eugene Thomas of Medford; ten nieces and nephews, Wilmer Poley, Ashland; Mrs. Walter Kimmell, Redding, Cal.; Mrs. G. M.

Prost, Ashland; Mrs. C. G. Hartley, Phoenix; George Andrews, Phoenix; Mrs. Emerson Miller, San Jose, Cal.; Mrs. W. L. Hurd, Anaheim, Cal.; Allen K. Andrews, Sacramento, Cal.; Mrs. Rita Andrews, Santa Cruz; Mrs. Everett, Leo Moore, Santa Cruz, and other relatives.

She was preceded in death by her parents, one sister, Mrs. Josephine Poley, and a brother, George Kendall. Mrs. Thomas was active in the work of the Southern Methodist church of Medford, in the W. C. T. U. and in the Eastern Star.

Interment will be in Mountain View cemetery, Ashland, in the family plot.

O. S. C. IMPROVED FOR UCLA TILT

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Two teams vastly improved over last year will meet here Saturday afternoon when Oregon State college and University of California at Los Angeles open their conference schedules.

BUTTER CAKES TEMPT YOUNG COOKS; HERE'S ECONOMICAL METHOD

Never let the price of butter keep you from making your favorite butter cake! And more important . . . never let it tempt you into disappointing experiments. Fortunately for those who love to cook . . . and cook well, there is on the market a product that you can use just as freely as any preferred shortening . . . it tastes fully as good, it has the right texture, it gives you the same delicious results you've been used to, and it costs less than ordinary shortenings! Its name is Troco!

There is no need to sacrifice the delicious flavor of the cakes and muffins you like to bake if you'll resort to this popular spread . . . you can afford to use it more generously than even ordinary shortening . . . it costs so little!

Just to prove to yourself what you can do with Troco as a shortening, here is an inexpensive chocolate cake recipe that never fails if you take the trouble to measure accurately . . . it stays moist to the last crumb . . . and its flavor is really delicious. Try it today!

Chocolate Nougat Cake
1 1/2 cups sugar, 1/4 cup Troco, 1 egg, creamed together thoroughly;
2 1/4 cups sifted flour, resifted with 2 1/2 teaspoons double acting baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, added alternately with the milk; Chocolate mixture to be added last:

1-3 cup milk, 2 squares baking chocolate, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, cooked together until blended, and cooled.
Cream Troco and sugar together. Add egg. Add the sifted flour, baking powder and salt mixture alternately with the milk. Then stir in the cooled chocolate mixture. Add the vanilla and turn into two 9-inch cake pans. Bake in 350 degrees oven about 1 1/2 hour or until cake shrinks from sides of pan.

This Chocolate Nougat Cake is not only most economical made with Troco, but you'll be delighted with its fine flavor and beautiful texture.
This is only one of the many places you can use delicious Troco for gratifying results. It's one of those little economies that mean so much in a clever homemaker's budget.

With Troco you can make this perfect creation of a coffee cake for your next Sunday morning breakfast, which could otherwise be a little costly if you used anything but Troco.

But here's warning you . . . when you make this coffee cake, be prepared to meet demands for lots of it! The cake part is very simple and easily made, but the fun comes in decorating the top which is one place where you can let your imagination run riot with perfect safety!

Buttercrust Coffee Cake
Cake part:
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
4 tablespoons Troco, melted
2 cups flour sifted with
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Topping—
1-3 cup sugar mixed with
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1-3 cup coarse nut meats mixed with 4 tablespoons melted Troco

1 or two peaches sliced, or apples, or any fruit in season.
Mix sugar, and egg together. Add melted Troco. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Pour into greased and floured baking pan. Slice fruit in rows to cover top of batter. Over this distribute the nuts which have been waiting in the melted Troco for the topping. Over all sprinkle the cinnamon and sugar mixture and bake 1 1/2 hour or until done, in 350 degree oven.

NATION NOT WANTED BACK BY INDIANS

WINNIPEG, Man. (UP)—Chief Sitting Eagle of the Pipestone Sioux Indians has declared that he wouldn't take the country back if it were offered to him. Indians "play for keeps," he said.

When a Winnipeg reporter asked him this question on one of the chief's rare visits to "big white man's town," he snorted:

"Ugh!!! Ugh!!! We had this country once when it was in a lot better shape than it is now. Palefaces won it, and Indians always play for keeps. You got it, you keep it; no exchanges can be made on this goods, thank you."

SPECIES OF IBEX SEEN IN ARIZONA FASTNESS BIOLOGISTS INFORMED

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz.—(UP)—Fastnesses of the little-explored and almost inaccessible Sycamore canyon northwest of here may harbor a species of ibex, hitherto unknown outside of Africa, reports reaching here indicated.

Hunting parties, on trips into the wild country, have sighted strange animals, unlike anything known to be native to this section of the United States, they reported. In each instance, they described the animals' horns as exactly like those of ibex they had seen in 2000 or in the trophy collection of Warren P. Lawson, Arizona rancher, who has hunted big game on four continents.

Interest in the strange animals was raised to the point recently that federal authorities were notified and were understood to be sending biological survey experts into the region to attempt to identify the animals.

Lawson, however, said he believed the so-called "ibex" may be the result of strange inter-breeding between domestic sheep and mountain goats. He pointed to the fanciful colors of the wool from sheep raised by Navajo tribesmen in support of his contention.

The Navajo's sheep, he said, had been inbred and cross-bred with goats for so long that strange hybrids were produced.

The rancher-big-game-hunter demanded that the state game department protect the "ibex." Interest in them was so great since their discovery, he said, that it was likely hunters would exterminate them.

KROSCHEL'S HERE FROM SAN DIEGO

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Kroschel, accompanied by their son, Bob, formerly of Medford and now of San Diego, were Medford visitors today. The family is returning south from Eugene, where their son, Sam, has entered the University of Oregon.

Mrs. Kroschel, in speaking of their new home in southern California, was very enthusiastic, but admitted that she was still a loyal booster. "I came all the way to Medford to buy the things I wanted," she said. In San Diego it is extremely difficult to get peaches and, with the bad water the only real drawback to the district, a juicy Medford pear would be welcomed, she stated.

The impressive thing about San Diego to the Kroschels is the wide array of tropical vegetation, with cactus, palms, avocados, bananas and oranges so different from the things that they were used to in Medford. Another thing that appeals to them is the Spanish architecture. Their new home is Spanish, with a tile roof and patio.

The family is planning a visit to Mexico City soon, and for the purpose Mrs. Kroschel is studying Spanish, as is Sam at the university.

Zeal For Learning Lands Pair In Jail

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Rubin Robinson and Abraham Malortsky, Brooklyn high school students, said zeal for knowledge led to their arrest today. They were charged with looting their high school chemistry laboratory of equipment to set up workshops at home.
