ford is entitled to a fair share of that money. In asking for postponement of the meeting, Mr. Greenwood explained that he had just returned from San Francisco where a number of aviation matters came up that would keep him in Portland for the next ten days. His request will be complied with and so the meeting of the state board is now scheduled for October 19 at City Hall, City and chamber of commerce officials, pilots and aircraft owners in this district will confer with the board to discuss airport problems. In emphasizing the importance of the local plan, Fred Heath, Jr., chairman of the city council airport committee, today stated that 21 city, county and United Airlines men are now regularly employed at the municipal field, the annual payroll being $40,000. "The airport, which represents an investment of $180,000, is self-sustaining," Mr. Heath said. In the near future, Mr. Heath said, the federal government will begin work on the erection of a homing beacon which will guide pilots to Medford from all directions. The work will be done by the army, he said, and after completion of the beacon five additional army men will be added to the permanent staff of employees at the airport. "When the radio beacon is completed," Mr. Heath said, "our airport will be among the most modernly equipped fields in the country."

The Jackson street bridge across Bear creek was closed today, to be barred to traffic for the next three weeks, according to City Superintendent Fred Scheffel. The supports for the bridge are being rebuilt, of concrete, and although the actual pouring of the material will take only three days, the concrete will be allowed to set for about three weeks before the bridge is opened. Traffic will be rerouted around the structure during the period. Those in the habit of driving west across the bridge will now be forced to use the Main street crossing. Work on the substructure of the bridge was to have been postponed until next year, but examination showed the structure to be unsafe.

Miss Harvey Weds George Silliman In Afternoon Ceremony

In a simple home ceremony today, Miss Ver Dean Harvey became the bride of George Silliman, of Berkeley, at two o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harvey. Reverend Eaton read the ring ceremony. The rooms were lovely with gladiolus in shades of rose, combined with blue delphiniums. The bride wore a long dark powder-blue gown, shirred up the front and finished with a jacket. She carried a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds and blue delphiniums. Miss Frederika Brommer, attendant to the bride, was gowned in brown, carrying a nose-gay of fall flowers in harmonizing shades. Miss Froy Young, violinist, accompanied at the piano by Miss Louise McElhose, furnished lovely music, playing Lohengrin's wedding march and "Ahi Sweet Mystery of Life." Ralph Klein acted as best man. The ceremony was performed before only the immediate family and close friends. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. O. P. Harvey, of Glendale, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. W. E. munitions of war, the president warned Americans they traveled the ocean on Italian or Ethiopian ships at their own risk. With these proclamations, the president fulfilled his obligations under the recent congressional neutrality legislation. But he went further. He declared Americans who engaged in "transactions of any character" with either Ethiopia or Italy "do so at their own risk." This is a distinct reversal of American policy. In the past, the United States has always maintained the right of neutral citizens to "freedom of the seas" for commerce with belligerents. The presidential declarations—the first in which any official quarter directly stated a state of war exists between Italy and Ethiopia—were happily received by League of Nations protagonists in Geneva. Effects Italy Only They looked upon the American stand as a form of sanctions. Inasmuch as Ethiopia has no merchant marine, the effect of the American policy falls on Italian ships. In Ethiopia, the first major battle of the war—a war without the benefit of a declaration of war on either side—was in the making. Aduwa has fallen. The main Italian army of 75,000 on the northern front occupied this northern metropolis yesterday. It was here that, 40 years ago, the Ethiopian warriors slaughtered the Italians in Rome's first conquest of Ethiopia. The first Italian columns occupying Aduwa brought along a monument, erected it in the center of the town. On it were the words, engraved weeks ago in anticipation of the capture: "To the fallen heroes of Aduwa."

Prepare For Big Battle

While consolidating their position about Aduwa—the plateau along the rim of vast mountainous area—the Italians were prepared to meet the main column of Haile Selassie's warriors. The Ethiopians were some twenty miles away. The battle may come at Makale, 20 miles to the south and east of Aduwa.

The Italian Army in the North

The Italian army in the north was divided. The right column was entrenched about Aduwa. The left held Adigrat, to the east, which also fell to the Mussolini legions. An Italian communique, distributed in leaflets dropped from airplanes, declared the northern Tigre province, of which Aduwa is the metropolis, had been lost to the Ethiopians.

"I assure you the Italians have no hatred against the Tigre people," the leaflets said. "Their enemy is only against the government of Addis Ababa."

Leaflets were dropped on monasteries and churches, declaring Haile Selassie had abandoned the Christian churches. The Italians reported results from such psychological maneuvers. Priests Submissive As the armies passed through tribal towns, civilians with priests at their head carrying crosses greeted the troops and dipped the crosses to the ground as the sign of submission. Tigre province, to the north, lies against the Red Sea Italian province of Eritrea.

From all indications, Mussolini's plan is to join Eritrea with Italian Somaliland. Between the two, on the coast, are French and British Somaliland. To unite them, the Italians would have to take a strip of Ethiopia from the south to the north along the eastern border.

ELECTROLUX BOWLERS DEFEAT SMOKEHOUSE TO HOIST STANDING

The Electrolux bowling team of Klamath Falls, by virtue of a crashing 8-0 win over the Smokehouse team from Medford here yesterday, jumped to within two points of the league-leading Diamond Squel outfit of Grants while that squad was humbling the Mail Tribune team at Grants Pass, 6-2. Diamond now leads the league with 14 points, Electrolux has 12, Klamath Safeway has 8, the Mail Tribune 5, the Smokehouse 5 and the Goodyear Shoe company of Grants Pass has 3, at the bottom of the heap.

The Klamath Safeway boosted its standing by 4 points in winning from the Goodyear team from Grants Pass yesterday, 8-0.

The regular city leagues get away tomorrow night when the Gates Auto bunch tangles with the Mail Tribune and the Smokehouse and Standard Roofers play.

Yesterday's scoring in the traveling league:

Table with 4 columns: Team, Points, Wins, Losses. Rows include Smokehouse-Medford, Electrolux-Klamath Falls, Second Series Smokehouse-Medford, Electrolux-Klamath Falls, Electrolux won all games, Mail Tribune-Medford, Grants Pass-Diamonds, At Grants, Mail Tribune won 2 points, Grants Pass won 5 points, At Klamath Falls, Goodyear Shoe service won 0 points, Safeway Stores, Klamath, won 8 points.

Peace Rumor Heard

In the midst of these preparations, the rumor of an offer of peace terms by Italy created a short-lived flurry of excitement. The rumor arose in Addis Ababa. An aide of the emperor asked if the report was true, said "Almost." In Rome, however, government officials said peace terms were farthest from their thoughts. One official declared: "Our campaign has just started."

Italy celebrated the victory of li Duce's Roman legion in the northern Tigre province.

Thousands of the fascist paraded with banners: "Aduwa Italian again," "Aduwa Italian forever," "Aduwa today, Addis Ababa tomorrow."

Feelings of gloom, fears of European war, prevailed in other capitals of Europe, particularly London.

The British press forecast the arms embargo against Ethiopia would be lifted when the cabinet meets Wednesday. British circles were taking a melancholy attitude toward the proceedings at Geneva, especially with the action of Premier Laval in soft-pedaling the question of severe sanctions. London felt the league would adopt only innocuous financial sanctions.

The principal French development was the ordering of colonial troops from Somaliland to leave for Deradawa, 100 miles in the Ethiopian interior. The troops will guard the Franco-Ethiopian railroad center there. The road runs from Djibouti, French Somaliland, to Addis Ababa. It is Ethiopia's only railroad to the outside world.

In Paris, the directors of the Suez Canal company convened to consider a report of international lawyers. This report, it was authoritatively understood, concluded that the canal would not be closed to Italians in the event the League of Nations imposed sanctions against Italy.

The canal is a commercial venture. Britain owns 44 per cent of the stock. The bulk of the rest is held by French nationals.

An attitude for quick peace in Ethiopia prevailed in Paris. The influential newspaper, Petit Parisien, appealed to the league to continue negotiations.

For some time, the view has prevailed among foreign observers Mussolini would be ready to talk terms if and when he occupied sufficient of the border territory in Ethiopia to appease the colonization sentiment at home.

Mayor Smith fished in the Rogue yesterday morning and afternoon and reported excellent catches each time. He lauded the outdoor sports available in this part of Oregon.

"Medford is the smartest little city I have ever seen," the mayor said. "I looked it over very closely last night and was very favorably impressed." Mayor Smith explained that he is especially interested in infantile paralysis control because his own son suffered from the disease. The son, now 12, has fully recovered. Mayor Smith said.
