Charlie Chan Coming to Rialto

After having solved mysteries all over the world, Charlie Chan, again portrayed by Warner Oland, returns to his native country to solve his greatest case in "Charlie Chan in Shanghai," coming tomorrow to the Rialto theatre for a three-day run.

From the moment he sets foot in Shanghai, Oland meets perilous adventures. His host, and English secret service man, is killed and an attempt is made on his own life. Together with Keye Luke, who plays his son, Oland is lured to the den of the smugglers and must fight his way out to safety.

Russell Hicks, an American secret service man, Arliss, and Charles Locher, secretary to the murdered Englishman, seem to be implicated in another plot on Chan's life.

The picture piles thrill on thrill as Chan weeds out the crooks and brings the true murderer to light. Irene Harvey, Halliwell Hobbes and Frederick Vogeding are the principal supporting players.

Katherine Hepburn in Craterian Film

An intensely interesting character study of life in a small midwestern community is presented by Katherine Hepburn in "Alice Adams," which opened yesterday at the Craterian theatre. Its human interest should strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all.

The production achieves its triumph through the genius of Miss Hepburn, whose portrayal of the sensitive, ambitious daughter from a poor provincial family in the Midwest is a triumph of subtle artistry rarely achieved by any star.

Her gallant courage, her pathetic pretense to cover her heartaches at the snubs administered by the elite of the community, are portrayed with a finesse and dramatic precision which marks her as one with the outstanding actresses of the day.

The story is a screen version of the Booth Tarkington Pulitzer prize novel of 1922, which was one of the most talked of books of its day. It has lost nothing of its charm and appealing human interest in its transition to the screen.

Its heroine is a young girl who fights for love and social recognition and wins a soul-satisfying victory over wealth and social barriers.

Outstanding characterizations mark the portrayal of others in the cast. Fred Stone gives a realistic interpretation of the bagedged, hopeless father who sacrifices ethics in an effort to provide luxuries for his family. As the nagging, slovenly wife and mother, Ann Shoemaker stamps the character with convincing realism. Fred MacFurray, as the handsome gallant from the big city, meets all the requirements of good looks and masculine appeal required for the romantic lead opposite Miss Hepburn. Evelyn Venable capably plays her rival.

SNOW PILES UP ON RIM OF LAKE

Travelers were advised today not to attempt to get to the rim of Crater lake as snow has made motoring dangerous, a message received by the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce said.

A report from the lake stated that the north entrance was closed by a drift of snow which was one foot deep at the rim. The other three entrances to the park were open and travelers could get through them without difficulty, the message said, but attempts to reach the rim were discouraged.
