HOOVER CAUSES JAM AT CHICAGO STATION

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. — (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover was the unwitting cause of a traffic jam at the Union station when he arrived today from St. Louis. Suburban trains were pouring in their first rush of commuters at the time, and hundreds of persons surrounded the former chief executive.

Mr. Hoover came to visit his friend, Arch W. Shaw, former publisher, before resuming his trip to his home at Palo Alto, Cal., at 7 p. m.

He had nothing to say about politics.

SEASONED PLAYERS IN 'SEVEN KEYS CAST' AT NORMAL FRIDAY NIGHT

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," comedy mystery written by Earl Derr Biggers and dramatized for the stage by George M. Cohan, is to be presented Friday, at 9:30 o'clock in the Southern Oregon Normal School auditorium, as a main feature of the annual two-day homecoming celebration. For the benefit of the townspeople it will again be played Monday night in the auditorium with the curtain rising at 8:20.

The play is built around the trials of William Holowell McGee, in his effort to win a bet made by him and the owner of the famous Baldpate. McGee, a nnovelist, is to go to Baldpate and there be left completely alone for 24 hours, and at the end of that time, surrender the manuscript of a completed novel to the caretaker of the Inn. The short space of 24 hours is packed with all the thrills and uproarious situations that only a master like Cohan could so ingeniously devise and record. The story moves at a fast, almost melodramatic pace, leaving the audience baffled, tricked and amused, until the final scene, when the solution breaks in a most astounding and unlooked for manner.

Prominent in the cast are many seasoned troupers who have worked under Mr. Angus L. Bowmer's direction for several years.
