DUFFERS GO BERSERK IN TIN CUP BATTLE, WIN 3 OF 4 MATCHES

The battle of the tin cup is on! Scattering sod from one end of the course to the other, the divot-diggers whaled and whacked at the pill for most of yesterday, with the Duffers going to pieces early in the day and, completely ignoring the spirit of the occasion, turning in blasting wins in three of their four matches against the Dubbas.

The blame for the upsetting wins will probably be charged against Capt. Roy Pruitt, who early in the day set a horrible example for his cohorts by slicing and cutting his way to a 3-0 win over Capt. Robert Ruhl of the Dubbas. Their morale gone, the rest of the Duffers followed suit, and H. A. Therolf and George Roberts walloped A. S. Rosenbaum and Al Littrell by the same score. Harold Bunce of the Dubbas and A. H. Endries of the Duffers couldn't make up their minds, and killed snakes for 18 holes with both coming out of the fray even.

Since the tournament is to be run off as rapidly as possible, before rust takes over the trophy entirely, the tie will probably stand. The rest of the erratic club swingers must play their matches before Nov. 3.

RUTH NICHOLS AND FIVE AIDES HURT IN PLANE SMASHUP

Miss Nena Berkinbeiser, sister of Gladys, also a stewardess. Miss Nichols' injury was the second of a serious nature the society aviator has suffered in an eventful career.

She fell at St. Johns, N. B., in June, 1931, while attempting a transoceanic flight. She suffered fracture of several vertebrae. She crashed on two other occasions, but escaped injury, once leaping from her burning ship at Louisville, Ky., while still wearing a steel corset to protect her back while convalescing from the previous injury.

At 31 years of age, Miss Nichols has held the non-stop trans-continental speed record for women, the women's altitude record and the long distance flight record.

Always interested in sports, she was a fine horsewoman and an enthusiastic golfer before she was attracted by flying.

Her home is in Rye, N. Y.

Jack London Novel On Craterian Bill

Box office records, set only two weeks ago with the showing of "Top Hat," were shattered yesterday at the Craterian theatre where capacity crowds filled the theatre to see the picturization of Jack London's great adventure, "Call of the Wild."

A picture that rates the "raves" of every movie fan—and collected a lot of them last night, "Call of the Wild," gives Clark Gable a real he-man role, and Gable's work as Jack Thornton, the handsome, swash-buckling prospector, stands out as one of the finest of his career.

Rich in rugged drama and clean fun, the picture exerts a powerful appeal for every member of the family—the youngsters and the dads won't have to be told for they all thrilled to this most famous of Jack London tales, and the love story, beautifully played by Gable and lovely Loretta Young, is insurance for the feminine part of the family of a grand time.

Jack Oskie contributes the comedy and has never been better. And there's the new dog star—a huge, soft-eyed St. Bernard named Buck, who brings to life the canine hero of the story.

Gable, as a happy-go-lucky, ready-to-take-a-chance gold seeker, sets out with his buddy (Oskie) to find a lost claim. On the trail they rescue Loretta Young from wolves and learn her husband has been lost searching for the same claim, which had originally been discovered by his now dead father.

The "take what you want" code of the North by which Gable lives is foreign to this civilized, sheltered woman and the pair are in constant conflict. Eventually, however, mutual contempt grows into a deep and genuine love.

Adventure follows adventure until, with the return of the supposedly dead husband, dramatic complications set in, further complicated with the finding of the lost mine. How the situation is worked out, with the code of the North as an ever-present reminder of life far from civilization's frontiers, forms the climax of the gripping story.

Reginald Owen and Katherine DeMille have featured roles and turn in their usual smooth performances.

Shirley Temple in Rialto Picture

The return showing of Shirley Temple in "Our Little Girl" is booked for the Rialto theatre starting tomorrow for a three day run. A poignant story, tenderly conceived, freighted with heart-tugs, yet leaving the audience strangely happy, "Our Little Girl" shows Shirley as the small daughter of Joel McCrea and Rosemary Ames; the once happy family threatened with wreckage, destined by suspicious, until the mutual love of the little girl brings the unhappy parents together again, and happy again.

"Poodles" Hanneford, world-famous clown and circus rider, has an amazing act as one of the featured highlights of the picture, and others in the cast include Lyla Talbot, Erin O'Brien Moore, and J. Farrell MacDonald.

GOOD BIRD SUPPLY CALLS HUNTERS TO KLAMATH WATERS

The long-range shot guns are swinging today at ducks and geese in the Klamath country, with the season on migratory waterfowl open at dawn today. Several Medford nitrobirds packed their artillery yesterday and hid them for the marshy country, but no reports have been turned in as yet.

Many more will go for the shooting next week, and with a promise of more birds than in the last several years.

Open season on ducks, geese, brant, coots, Wilson snipe or jacksnipe is from today until Nov. 19, with no open season for Ross's geese, wood ducks, ruddy ducks, bufflehead ducks or swans. The bag limit for ducks is 10 in the aggregate of all kinds in any one day, and not more than 10 in the aggregate of all kinds in possession at any one time.

For geese and brant, four in the aggregate of all kinds in any one day, and not more than four geese and brant in the aggregate of all kinds in possession at any one time. Fifteen coot may be taken in one day, but no more, and no more than 15 may be had in possession at one time.

A reminder was issued today by the state police, to the effect that it is unlawful to hunt with any shotgun having a capacity of more than three shells at one time. This does not mean that a gun capable of holding more, but with only three shells in the chamber, will pass muster. It will not. The magazine of the gun must be plugged so that it is impossible to get more shells into the gun.
