

WIDOW OF 'T. R.' BITTER OPPONENT COUSIN FRANKLIN

Roosevelt Against Roosevelt As 1936 Presidential Battle Warms Up — Tea Cup Campaign Is Waged

By Bennett Wolfe (Associated Press Staff Writer) NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—It's Roosevelt against Roosevelt—the New Deal family against the Republican side—in gradually warming preliminaries to the 1936 presidential fight. In words hardly less soft-spoken than if the rugged "T. R." had uttered them, his widow and children have declared against the re-election of Cousin Franklin.

On the other side are three generations of the President's family. The 74-year-old widow of "T. R." is conducting a tenuous campaign from her Sagamore Hill home at Oyster Bay, L. I., against the re-election of President Roosevelt, a fifth cousin of her famous husband. She voted for Herbert Hoover in 1932.

"Led Us Into Mir" "We expected Franklin Roosevelt to take us out of the mud when he went into office," she told her guests at a recent Republican tea, "but he has led us into the mire."

She said today she hoped to have many more such meetings at Sagamore Hill.

The President's 81-year-old mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, is less active politically than "T. R.'s" widow, but nonetheless devoted to the ambitions of her son.

Cot. Theodore Roosevelt, "T. R.'s" eldest son, former governor general of the Philippine Islands, is the most active campaigner of the Republican Roosevelt.

He is president of the National Republican club. The New Deal, he says, is "reactionary and un-American," and he has called Franklin D. Roosevelt a "faithless public officer."

Archibald Roosevelt, another son of the twenty-sixth president, helped found the National Economy League, which has attacked the New Deal's spending.

Alice Longworth Active Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Mrs. Richard Derby, other children, have been active in Republican politics. Mrs. Longworth, the impetuous Alice of her father's days in the White House, has been spending much time in Washington recently, observing the political scene.

Kermit Roosevelt has been the most friendly of the Republican family toward the Democratic Roosevelt. He has accompanied the president on yacht trips and the Franklin Roosevelts have been callers at Kermit's home. Kermit refrained from any public participation in the 1932 presidential campaign.

The President does not lack for campaigners in his own family. His two oldest sons, James and Elliott, went to the political wars for him in 1932.

Then there is Mrs. Roosevelt, who has traveled the country over, meeting many people, since her husband became president.

PREXY DEPLORES REED ROWDYISM

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Student government at Reed college is on the pan today.

A series of events climaxed when a number of men "crashed the gate" at an all-women affair and someone pulled a switch plunging the entire campus in darkness precipitated the showdown.

President Dexter M. Keener flatly warned that student government is hanging in the balance following about two weeks of events which he described variously as "rowdy," "vulgar" and "idiotic."

"A small minority of dormitory students, for reasons unknown to me, has lost all trace of common decency," Dr. Keener said.

"There's going to be a different arrangement in the dormitories if I have to see it personally. I gave people my word that Reed has a decent environment."

MEANING NEUTRALITY IS URGED FOR AMERICA

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Emil Ludwig, Swiss citizen and biographer, declared today the United States' attitude toward the unneighborly nations of the world should be menacing, not neutral.

"If America repeats every day, 'We shall be neutral,' you are only bringing on war two to three years sooner," asserted the learned Jew whose books have been burned by Nazis.

HONESTY PAYS DRIVER OF CAB

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Honesty was a profitable policy for Stanley Mancavage, relief taxi driver.

A fare, evidently in a great hurry, pressed a bill into his hand and told him to "keep the change."

Mancavage found a $50 note in his hand, realized there had been a mistake, and ran after the retreating figure. He received a $2 reward.

That night when he returned home he found a note from his old employer telling him to return to steady work. A few days later a package was delivered at his home containing a gold wrist watch on which was inscribed, "From Sir Ernest Bain to Stanley J. Mancavage in appreciation of his honesty."

His fare was Sir Albert Ernest Bain, K.B.E., noted English insurance magnate.

MORE VISIT FORESTS OREGON, WASHINGTON THAN PREVIOUS YEARS

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24.—(AP)—An all-time high mark in the number visiting national forests in Oregon and Washington was set during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, the regional forester's office here reported today.

The increase was 700,000 over the previous fiscal year. In the two states 4,800,107 persons visited the national forests, compared with 3,902,155 the previous year.

Recreational facilities built by CCC workers, and improved business conditions, were credited with a large share of the increase.

"We are glad to see this heavy increase in forest users," said Regional Forester C. J. Buck.

"It indicates that the recreational resources of the national forests are being appreciated and used. These forests are making an increasing contribution to the social and economic life of this section."
