Notice. The 1928 squad was scored on once in each of their first games, when they walloped Chemawa 37-7, Marshfield 44-6 and Salem 42-6. And the scores were not made against the scrubs in the last minutes of the game, because there was an average of about four substitutions per game, according to the Mail Tribune files.

Griffin Creek GRIFFIN CREEK, Oct. 28.—(Sp.)—Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Best have returned home from a ten day visit at Reno, Nev. with their son Charlie and family.

John W. Davis, who passed away near Phoenix last Friday, was laid to rest in the Griffin Creek cemetery Sunday. Rev. W. H. Eaton having charge of the services at the graveside. Mr. Davis will be remembered by all the old-timers, as he had lived on Griffin creek for almost fifty years.

Mrs. O. E. Simmers left recently for an extended visit with relatives in Kansas. On her way, she visited in California and Montana.

Word had been received here that Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cameron, of Klamath Falls, are the parents of a daughter, born October 15. The little miss has been named Janice Elaine. Mrs. Cameron was Barbara Durham before her marriage.

Mrs. Cora Campbell of Salem is visiting at the home of her brother, F. I. Calkins, and family.

Mrs. S. O. Stearns visited Thursday morning with Mrs. Nanson, who is ill.

Mrs. Fred Hamlin is visiting relatives in Portland.

Mrs. H. Hurd is enjoying company from Yuba City, Calif.

Mr. Hood's sister left Wednesday afternoon for several days. She enjoyed several dinners given in her honor while here, and last Sunday she accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Hood to the Oregon Caves.

The county health nurse visited at the school Friday.

Mrs. Peter Pick and Mrs. O. M. Knox of Jacksonville spent Wednesday afternoon visiting with Mrs. J. D. Brown. Mrs. O. M. Stearns and daughters, Lucille and Ariene, spent Friday morning at the Brown home.

SPORTS 1935 TIGER TEAM EQUAL TO ANY, IS SHOWN BY FIGURES

Phenomenal Victories Turned in By Squad to Date Despite Green and Light Material—All Work Hard

By Dick Applegate The Medford football team this year is not to be compared with the teams of 1927 and 28. "If you live to be 500" you'll seldom ever have a more optimistic statement than that. And still there are a few die-hards in the village who not only did it, but make it with an annering superiority of knowledge that galls those who have taken the time to check the records.

The 1928 squad was scored on once in each of their first games, when they walloped Chemawa 37-7, Marshfield 44-6 and Salem 42-6. And the scores were not made against the scrubs in the last minutes of the game, because there was an average of about four substitutions per game, according to the Mail Tribune files.

Corvallis, and Ashland, also scored a touchdown each, the Ashland score being made against the second team. Comparisons Given Here's the comparison: Medford this year took Roseburg 33-9, but there was no Roseburg in '28. This year Medford beat Marshfield 33-0, with the second string playing almost the entire second half as compared to no substitutions in the '28 game. Callison's team beat Salem 42-6. Bowerman's best team 41-6. But Callison used four substitutes, Newlin, for Huger, Sprague for Green, Gaudin for Melvin and Applegate for Harrell. Bowerman used 14, with the entire second team playing most of the last quarter.

And it's obvious, according to some, that there is no comparison in size any reason for assuming that all the opposition was now weaker than it was in 1928? We see none.

The facts, then, indicate that the present wearers of the red and black can take their place with any team Medford ever had, providing they finish the season the way they have begun it. And all the more credit to them for the following reason:

Because Stan Kunzman, at end, weighs 150 pounds as compared to the usual 160 to 170 pound man that he opposes. He is one of the hardest men in the state to move on defense.

Because Baker, punting tackle, is playing his first year, never had any experience other than Junior high ball, and because he has consistently smothered the opposition behind the line all year, besides opening sweet holes with his offensive blocking.

Because Baker, left guard, is the smallest man on the line, never played football before, cuts and tears on

SWINDLERS TAKE 40 MILLION FROM GULLIBLE YEARLY

NEW YORK.—(UP)—Confidence men swindle $40,000,000 a year from gullible victims in the United States, government officials have computed, and no amount of cautioning will keep unsuspecting persons from parting with life savings.

There are 400 of the "con" men plying their garrulous trade in the United States and they average $100,000 annually from trusting persons. Mostly their victims are elderly, retired persons.

Herbert N. Graham, government postal sleuth, is the chief worry of the confidence men. His sporadic raids on the big purveyors of the glib gentlemen in prison and sent other dozens fleeing to foreign countries, Atlanta, Reno, Denver and other cities where bunco men have centered have known the "torpedoing" of a government raid under Graham's thorough direction.

Dimond Hoams World. Tall, thin-faced, rosiest Graham and Lieut. Tommy Dimond of Essex county, N. J., are known internationally for their unceasing drive against swindlers. Dimond learned the business from Graham, but his position as detective for Essex county has been less confining and he has stalked swindlers around the world.

Swindlers have nothing but contempt for those whose confidence they gain and flee. All victims have larceny in their hearts, else they wouldn't have any part in the deals which take their money, swindlers say.

The swindlers show no respect for title or rank. Shrewd leaders of industry and government law enforcement officers have fallen before the attractive offers of the "con" men. These victims seldom make complaints.

Prefers No Charges. A wealthy English distiller visited Canada a few years ago and dropped $700,000 to a bunco man. Shortly thereafter he lost another $150,000.

Some of the swindlers have been taken to England, it was learned, but the distiller will file no complaint—he doesn't want his friends to know of his gullibility.

The trap that catches the victims seldom varies. After a brief acquaintance in which he is the affluence of the "con" man "finds" a pocketbook under the table while he is visiting.

The wallet contains any amount of money above $50, a surety bond of $100,000 and a faded newspaper clipping of a man who is said to be a sensationally wise stock investor or horse race gambler.

The pocketbook is returned to the owner, and also his appreciation of the owner bet or invests the money in the wallet, saying he will give the profits to the honest finder. The profits multiply rapidly and soon represent up to several hundred thousand dollars.

Then Comes Pay Off. To collect the profits the victim is induced to convert securities to help the swindler show the stock exchange or racing commission that the winners made in good faith and could have been paid had the lucky man lost. When the money is put up that is the last the victim sees of it.

The game is known as the "drop pocketbook," the "pay-off racket" and by other names. Its variations are worked principally on Anglo-Saxons—from the English and Irish to Australians and Americans who mingle in the international circles of Paris, Shanghai, Honolulu, and other resorts of the world.

The English call the racket "the hot seat," and a rosey is found instead of a pocketbook. The French have a very explicit designation—"les affaires Americaines a Chicago."

France Not Sympathetic. If two Americans come to France and one swindler is the richer of the money, the French police listen attentively, but they make no pretense of pulling the fleeced American's chestnuts out of the fire for him. And the man who did the swindling loses no dignity with the police; he is still known as a "chevrat" industry—a gentleman of industry.

The largest swindle of all time is credited to Scarface Spencer, an Italian "con" man, who took $750,000 from an English family vacationing in Italy. He served a year in an Italian prison, but no trace ever was found of his money.

Australian Mack was the dean of them all. He has been reported dead, but government agents have not been able to confirm it and many believe that, at the age of 90, he lives in some secluded place off the fortune he must have saved. He used "Dapper Dan" Collins, a letter day swindler, who now insists he is through with the game, as one of his lesser assistants.

Proficient Bond Jumpers. William Mead, "the Christ Kid," who was leader of the Denver ring broken up in 1923 by District Attorney Philip Van Cise, has added new marks to his long police record. He jumped a $10,000 bond in Florida on a swindle case, was arrested at Worcester, Mass., and jumped another bond on a minor charge before prints of his scarred fingers could be checked.

Little Jeff Sharon, whose record is known around the world, also skipped out on a Florida bail where he was arrested.

Stew Donnelly, "the best dressed man in Indianapolis," waiting trial in a Montreal prison on a charge of swindling a Los Angeles police lieutenant out of $22,000.

William E. J. (Handsome) Billy O'Brien just finished a year in federal prison at Louisville, Pa.,

By Dick Applegate To the average citizen Badminton seems an entirely new game, because it is only in the last few years that it has become popular in the United States. As a matter of fact, it is a very old game, which originated in India, an outgrowth of battledore and shuttlecock. An English lord revamped the game and named it after his country estate, "Badminton." British army officers developed the game and eventually carried it back to England. There it grew in popularity until today it is the most representative sport in that country.

The first club was organized on the American continent in New York City, in 1883, and is still in existence and thriving better than ever. Of course, naturally, the game was carried to Canada, and the Canadians have made rapid strides in the sport until now they are probably the world's greatest enthusiasts for the game.

Nearly every Canadian community of any size at all has its own club and inter-city team matches are a popular feature. The Winnipeg club boasts 600 members, and Vancouver, B. C., is one of the strongholds of badminton. Many Canadian national champions have been developed there, and it has been a natural occurrence that it drop over the line into Seattle, one of the most badminton-minded cities in the country, with a large and prosperous club.

Nine years ago the first group of enthusiasts started playing in this city, and three years later they organized the first club with regular playing nights. Four years ago the Seattle club challenged their powerful neighbors, the Victoria Garrison club, with the inevitable result that they were ingloriously whitewashed.

The Seattle club was organized in 1928, and the first match was played against the New Westminster club with practically the same result. These matches have been continued annually, and have served, in more ways than one, to improve the team play of the Seattle players.

In the early part of this year the Victoria club invaded Seattle primed for their usual slaughter. The outcome, astounding as it was, proved a direct reversal of the accepted form, and the Americans, led by Keith Weston of Seattle, and Hal Law, and the 17-year-old Zoe Smith, smacked the invaders with a 2-13 beating.

The Seattle club team was composed of three men's double teams, three ladies' double teams, and six mixed teams. Hence, the victory gave a very definite basis of comparison of the relative improvement of American badminton and does not just indicate that two or three of the Seattle stars were outstandingly good.

Incidentally, this was the first win ever recorded by an American team over the Canadians, either on this coast or on the Atlantic seaboard, or way points.

The result is that the exhibition which will be given at the high school gym, Friday night, will be one of the greatest stars in badminton, who can wield a racket in any company in the world, with excellent chances of winning. The city is fortunate, particularly since badminton is so new here, in having such an array of brilliant shuttle experts in an appearance here.
