AUSTIN D. CORLIES NEAR DEATH WHEN SEARCHERS ARRIVE

Sheriff Brown, they again took up the search and found Corlies lying on a log, delirious. The men took off their coats, bundled the boy up and built a roaring fire to warm him, and then carried him to Camp Applegate on a stretcher. There he was treated by the camp doctor, Lieut. Abe Abiln and he regained consciousness a half hour later.

Suffered Frost Bite
His grandmother is taking care of him today and friends stated that he is out of danger, although suffering from frost bite on his feet and hands. trial act for 1935, the report predicted the law would result in a smaller reduction in production than would have occurred normally.

Livestock Industries, the report said, are in the best condition in several years to benefit from increased consumer demand. Production of most animals was said to have passed the low point, and an increase is expected, particularly in hogs.

However, the department said the total market supply of meat in 1935 was expected to be "little, if any, greater than this year."

An improved outlook for the dairy industry was seen, with milk production expected to increase because of abundant feed supplies. Increases in consumer buying also were expected to expand. Production of fresh vegetables was declared likely to increase, but the department indicated there would be a reduction in the output of truck crops for canning.

It said the cash income for farmers probably would be higher this year than any since 1930, with largest gains in the north central states.

Otto Kruger Coming to Rialto

Otto Kruger has been given one of his finest screen characterizations in "Two Sinners" coming to the Rialto theatre tomorrow, and advance reports credit him with giving a sterling performance. The screen story is an adaptation of Warwick Deeping's widely read "Two Sinners" and is an up-to-the-minute absorbing drama of every day life. The background is postwar England and France. Kruger is shown as the polished English gentleman, just being released from fifteen years in prison. His experience has mellowed him, aged him a bit, but otherwise left him but little changed. After attempting to fit back into his old groove, the man's sensitive nature feels the coolness of his former associates and he finds new friends. Among these are a governess (Martha Sleeper) of a neglected daughter of a gay, man-crazy and high-living socialite. Romance blossoms between the ex-convict and the governess, overshadowed by the constant menace of his past coming to light. But when the governess finds herself in a position of being unjustly accused of stealing, she realizes how easy it is for a misstep and the two lovers find happiness in their mutual self-sacrifice, and understanding.

The property control division would receive $27,390 under another endorsed appropriation.

Liquidation of deficits contracted by the erstwhile melon and tomato code authorities would be accomplished under a $3,500 appropriation. The code has been held unconstitutional.

The committee turned down proposed appropriations of $60,000 for fire-proofing the state penitentiary dining room; $15,000 for creation of a state mining board, and $1,500 to combat plant and tree diseases.

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Four bills, carrying appropriations totaling $133,500.25, were reported out favorably today by the joint ways and means committee of the house and senate.

The largest appropriation was $88,503 for operation of the bus and truck division of the state utilities department. Another measure called for diversion of $24,000 liquor prohibit Senator Goss' funeral at Marshfield tomorrow. President Corbett named Senators Steiger, Francisovich and Chincock to attend.

The senate resolution directed the senate president to convey to Goss' bereaved family "assurances of our most profound sympathy for the great loss they have sustained."

Capacity Houses Applaud Musical Hit At Craterian

Full houses are greeting "Broadway Gondolier" which opened yesterday at the Craterian theatre for its first local run.

The picture is really much more than a musical film. Packed with an engaging story—and a different one—a romantic setting that requires the popular stars of "Gold Diggers of 1933" Dick Powell and Joan Blondell, catchy tunes and hilarious comedy, it is delightfully presented by an all-star cast which also includes Adolphe Menjou and Louise Fazenda.

Powell and Miss Blondell again prove to be an ideal screen couple, and Miss Fazenda and Adolphe Menjou render outstanding comedy performances that caused endless peals of laughter.

The story revolves about Dick Powell, as a New York taxi driver, in his efforts to launch upon a singing career. In this ambition he is aided by Menjou who convincingly portrays a broken down Italian musical teacher.

The story moves in whirlwind fashion from busy Manhattan to dreamy Venice where Powell is pressed into service as a gondolier. Miss Fazenda and Joan Blondell are encountered here by the erstwhile cab driver and tutor, and the love interest is started.

Returning to New York in the guise of a real gondolier, Powell becomes an overnight sensation on the radio, but gets into difficulties when his rival, a part played by William Gargan, threatens to expose the fraud.

The climax sees the romantic entanglements all straightened out,
