

ROGERS IMITATED JUDGE LANDIS TO AMUSE WRITERS

Will Rogers loved baseball—and baseball loved Will Rogers. A year ago Rogers attended every game of the world series between St. Louis and Detroit. He spent all of his time with the players of both teams and the newspapermen covering the series.

He wrote much about them then, but now Lou Gehrig, star of the diamond, tells about Rogers. He says: "I had met Will Rogers several times casually, but the first time I had the opportunity of receiving the full benefit of his rare wit and personality was at an affair given by baseball writers of New York during the winter three or four years ago. This annual affair is an exclusive stag dinner attended by approximately seven hundred baseball luminaries, including players, managers and all executives. The baseball writers act as hosts, and during the dinner a show is given, and believe you me, it is a rousing contest from start to finish.

"On this particular evening, after much revelry (it was a festive occasion—you can imagine), Will Rogers was asked to speak. Judge Landis was seated next to him. From somewhere Rogers had obtained an old-fashioned hat, the duplicate of Landis', also a cane. He put the hat on, leaned his chin on the cane, a characteristic pose of the august high priest of baseball.

"His caricature was so utterly amusing that the entire audience was on the verge of panic. I only wish I could remember each and every witticism he uttered that night. The outstanding burlesque was his take-off of the judge, handing down his decision on the 20 million dollar Standard Oil case, in which Landis had gained prestige some years previous. He held his audience for one hour straight, and needless to say, the one who enjoyed it most, being almost steadily convulsed, was Judge Landis himself.

"This is the night that will always remain in my memory of Will Rogers: a night when I was fortunate to be among those present when our most typical American was his most lovable self—and in rare humor."

A carload of new 1936 DeSoto custom built Airstream sedans are now on display at the Mead Motor Co. local DeSoto and Plymouth dealer. The new models have many advanced features, the most important being the sensational "gas saver" overdrive, according to N. H. Mead, Mr. Mead says DeSoto engineers have always put great emphasis on safety, with safety steel bodies, hydraulic brakes and safety glass. The new models add another important feature to the list with "safe vision" lighting.

VALUE OF CHEESE NOT APPRECIATED AVERS MRS. MACK

By MABEL C. MACK
Home Demonstration Agent
National Cheese Week is now being observed throughout the country. This is the time when everyone should learn more about the real value and place of cheese in the diet, and learn new ways of introducing cheese into the daily menu.

Approximately four hundred and fifty million pounds of cheese of all varieties has been made each year in the United States since 1924, which requires about 4 per cent of all the milk produced in the country. Cheese ranks as the second most important dairy product manufactured in this state, and Oregon cheese ranks third among the states in the production of cheese.

In the United States, and possibly in the state of Oregon, we do not appreciate fully the remarkable food value of good cheese. The per capita consumption of cheese in the United States is far below that of other nations. Contrast our four-pound cheese consumption with 10 pounds for England or 28 pounds for Holland. In Europe, cheese is a staple article of the diet because of its flavor, healthfulness and economy.

The composition of cheese tells us why it is of value in our diet. It contains the casein and fat of milk, with small amounts of whey that do not drain out of the curd. The average cheddar cheese is one-third water and one-third fat and one-fourth protein. The whey contains lactate albumen, soluble salts and milk sugar or lactic acid.

The protein consists of casein which is rendered easily digestible by the ripening of the cheese. The cheese is always high in calcium, phosphorus and sulphur, all necessary elements in the building and maintaining of good bones and other body tissues.

Cheese is a concentrated and economical food; a pound represents the casing and fat of a gallon of average milk. It costs much less than the ordinary cuts of meat, is richer in protein and fat and contains calcium and vitamin A.

Cheese can be served in a great variety of main dishes, as a meat substitute, not merely as a condiment at the end of a meal. Since cheese is a soft food and a highly concentrated food, it is advisable to combine it in a meal with crisp foods such as toasted bread or crackers and with succulent fruits or vegetables.

The secret of preparing delicious cheese dishes is to observe the rules for proper cooking. Due to the high content of protein, cheese must be cooked at low temperatures since a high temperature hardens the protein. In general this hardened protein is difficult to digest and such a hardened stringy product is not palatable.

Never place cheese on top of a casserole dish. For example, in preparing our old favorite macaroni and cheese—the cheese should be combined with the white sauce and buttered bread crumbs placed on top will protect the cheese from the high temperature and make an attractive dish. Try it on the family this week. Here is the recipe:

Baked Macaroni With Cheese
(Six servings)
1 1/2 quarts macaroni in 1-inch pieces.
1 quart boiling water.
2 teaspoons salt.
4 tablespoons butter.
6 tablespoons flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
3 cups milk, scalded.
1 1/2 cups grated or diced cheese.
1 1/2 cups buttered crumbs.

Cook macaroni in boiling water to which the two teaspoons salt have been added, for 20 minutes, or until tender.
Drain in strainer and pour cold water over it.
Make medium white sauce by melting fat, blending flour and gradually adding scalded milk. Stir until thickened.

Place white sauce over hot water, add cheese, and cover. Let stand until cheese is melted, then stir.
Place alternate layers of boiled macaroni and cheese sauce in buttered baking dish.
Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown.

One of the most popular recipes used in the cheese cookery project in Jackson county last year was American cheese pudding. It is quickly and easily prepared and was considered by many to be superior to cheese soufflé. This is the recipe:

American Cheese Pudding
(Six to eight servings)
8 slices buttered bread.
3/4 pound American cheese, grated or ground.
4 eggs.
4 cups milk.
1 teaspoon salt.
1/2 cup bread crumbs.

Place slices buttered bread in bottom of buttered baking dish. Crumbs may be trimmed off, if desired. Sprinkle part of the cheese evenly over the buttered bread.
Place alternate layers of bread and cheese until desired amount is used.
Beat eggs, add milk and salt. Pour this mixture over the bread and cheese.

Sprinkle bread crumbs on top.
Bake in moderate oven until knife thrust in center shows no liquid. Serve immediately.
If Johnny and Mary tire of the traditional spinach, try serving it with cheese sauce. They will surely like this new dish:

Use Mail Tribune want ads.

Scalloped Spinach With Cheese
(Six servings)
3 cups cooked or canned spinach.
1 cup cheese sauce.
2 cups buttered bread crumbs.
Boil spinach in small amount of water and salt.

Make cheese sauce according to directions for baked macaroni and cheese.
Place alternate layers of spinach, cheese sauce and bread crumbs in buttered baking dish, having top layer of bread crumbs.

Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until top is browned. Serve hot.
For those interested in learning more about the cookery and uses of cheese there are copies of mimeographed recipes available on both American and Cottage cheese, or if you are interested in the varieties of cheese, descriptions and analyses, ask for government bulletin No. 609. These bulletins are free and may be secured from the home demonstration office in the court house.

suggestions from the United States public health service. The recommendations conform with the measures that already had been adopted by medical authorities here.

Mrs. Switzer has only a partial paralysis of the right leg and a slight paralysis of the left foot, Dr. Boney said. The chances of recovering completely from the paralysis were extremely favorable, he stated.

The following statement was issued today for the Jackson County Medical society by Dr. D. H. Findley, secretary:

"At a special meeting of the Jackson County Medical society, held last night, the three cases of infantile paralysis in this vicinity were discussed and the following motion passed as an expression of the opinion of the medical society. This conforms with the opinion of the state public health department.

"The Jackson County Medical society went on record as maintaining that there is at the present time no epidemic of infantile paralysis. The members of the society are keeping the situation under close observation. If at any time the contagion reaches epidemic proportions the medical profession will favor closing public schools as well as theaters, churches, dances and all other public gatherings."
