Wall St. Report NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Bullish forces were again at the helm during most of today's stock market, although profit takers finally succeeded in rocking the boat.

Just how much influence publication of the new trade treaty with Canada had on prices was debatable. A little purchasing and selling here and there, it was thought, may have reflected trading opinions of the document.

The close was somewhat irregular. The ticker tape was occasionally behind and transfers approximated 3,300,000 shares.

Last Picture

His last picture: It seems hard to realize that after "In Old Kentucky," which opens Thursday for its local run, there will be no more Will Rogers shows. And, inasmuch as this will be the last time this great favorite will be here in a new show, "In Old Kentucky" will be shown at the Craterian theatre for both matinee and evening shows, also to accommodate the thousands who will wish to see the picture—it will also be shown evenings only at the Holly theatre.

"In Old Kentucky," one of the finest of all pictures Will Rogers ever made, curiously enough is based on a play of the dastardly dirty work, but the plot has been twisted about to make it hilarious comedy. Clean, honest and wholesome fun in whole-sale lots, combined with some real heart-tugging thrills, are the ingredients that will leave the public remembering Rogers as he would want them to remember him—America's leading humorist, always finding a laugh out of life.

Besides Rogers in the role of a race horse trainer, the cast includes Dorothy Wilson and Russell Hardie in the romantic role, Charles Sello in the feuding, gun-toting grandpa, Etienne Girardot as the rainmaker (a part said to be one of the show's highlights), Alan Dinehart as the villain and Bill Robinson dancing as only he can dance.

young singer when he is erroneously taken for a playright. Bing is one of three brothers, sons of Mary Boland, who are evicted from their home. Secreting themselves in the garden of a renowned music publisher's home, Bing sings while the other plays the piano, unaware that the publisher is deaf as a post. An airplane crashes, putting Bing in the hospital. Miss Boland, in her effort to collect $50,000 damages, writes the pilot that the accident has prevented her son from completing his play. The pilot appears, in the person of Joan Bennett, secretary to a famous stage impresario, Lynne Overman. Through her, Bing and his family have an appointment with Overman who straightway assigns Bing to write a play for his star, Thelma Todd without giving him a chance to explain. The fun begins when Bing, finding

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is the living dental of all those who claim adventure passed on when the west was settled. In "Little America" the photographic record of his second great Antarctic expedition. Byrd and his men prove conclusively that adventure still waits those who would seek it.

An authentic pictorial account of the valiant band who spent two years of mighty struggle, untold hardships in an ice-bound country, "Little America" is packed with thrills, mystery and romance of the unknown. Filmed among scenes of incomparable grandeur, the picture follows the expedition from their starting point at Newport News, Virginia, through the storms at sea, the icebergs crashing about the ship until they finally land at the Barrier, with Little America just over the ridge. Then the trek across the ice, the unloading of the planes, fighting killer whales and the icy blasts of the unleashed gales. Then the flight over the Pole and Byrd's solitary self-confinement to study the Antarctic phenomena, and his rescue contrary to orders. And then, at last, homeward bound, the expedition returns with mysterious solved, adventures more than fulfilled.

himself short of ideas, acts upon the suggestion of Ernest Cosart, Overman's astute butler and ex-theatrical producer, to go out and make things happen to get more material for his play. He starts an hilarious seltzer water-siphon-shooting battle in a night club which sends him to jail. By this time Miss Bennett has fallen in love with the romantic tenor, but runs away when she sees him in an embrace with Miss Todd, rehearsing a love scene. Overman, suddenly returning from Europe, also sees them, and fires Bing.

STOKOWSKI PLANS TOUR OF COUNTRY WITH ORCHESTRA

PHILADELPHIA — (UP) — Leopold Stokowski and the famed Philadelphia orchestra will make a five weeks tour next spring, which will take them into the concert halls of practically every large city in the nation.

The entire personnel of 100 musicians will entrain after the final concert of the Philadelphia season on April 11 for the opening of the most extensive American tour made by a major symphonic orchestra in more than a score of years.

Although final arrangements have not been completed, the present itinerary includes 18 cities in the United States and possibly two in Canada.

"I am very happy that we are going to make this tour all over our country because I see signs everywhere of a great increase in the appreciation and love of music, and a wonderful uprising of musical talent in the new generation," Stokowski said.

The tentative itinerary schedules concerts in Hartford, Conn., possibly Montreal, St. Louis, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, Dallas, possibly Houston or El Paso, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Ore., Denver, Kansas City, Mo., Des Moines, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and the Annual Michigan Music Festival at Ann Arbor.

The orchestra will play 38 concerts during the tour, 25 of which will be conducted by Stokowski. Conductors for the remainder of the programs will be announced later.

The blond Philadelphia maestro for several years has been planning this trans-continental series of engagements, which he has characterized as "the most important single activity undertaken by the orchestra in recent years."

At present Baltimore, Washington and New York are the only other cities visited during the season. Previous trips took the musical organization to midwestern cities, but this will be the first venture which will carry it to the Pacific coast. The last extended tour of the orchestra was made in 1918.

"It was a thrilling experience to play the most inspired music in the cultural centers of our country and to come in personal touch with the talented musicians among the youth of our citizens," Stokowski said with a smile.

The musicians will live in the special train which will carry them across the country. Arrangements are being completed to convert the accommodations into comfortable living quarters for the entire five weeks. The musicians will be accompanied by their own managerial staff and stage hands.

Leg Broken—Edward Eakin was reported today as recovering at his home at 320 Crater Lake highway from a fractured left leg. His leg was broken last week when he jumped from a milk truck on 10th street and slipped in the mud.

SMALL CHILD ILL WITH POLIO DIES, NEW CASE LISTED

The matter was taken up with the Red Cross and a member of the county court and a house was found for the destitute family in Jacksonville. The house was quarantined and the family told not to leave it.

A protest, revealed today, was made against placing the stricken child in Jacksonville by Edward Severance and John Norris of the Jacksonville council and a similar complaint was made to Mrs. H. K. Hanna, chairman of the Jacksonville helpers of the county health unit, by Paul Godward of the Jacksonville school board. An informal hearing was held before County Judge Earl B. Day Saturday and it was agreed to seek another home for the family.

The county court was out in the country on an inspection today out other officials here explained that a strenuous effort was made last Friday to get the family domiciled so that the stricken baby could be cared for properly. The only place that could be found was a county-owned house in Jacksonville and that is where the family was taken. While the search for a dwelling was being made, the family waited in an old open rooster parked on a city street. It was said it was considered an act of humanity to put the family in a warm house where the child could receive proper care, it was explained.

This is the third case resulting in death since infantile paralysis broke out here November 8. Two boys, pupils of the Howard school, died within a week after contracting the illness and the school was immediately closed. The other cases were said today to be improving.

Funeral arrangements for the Durham child were being made today by the Perl funeral home.

Crosby Film Wins Craterian Crowds Bright-spirited comedy, lulling love songs, and gay romance make Bing Crosby's "Two for Tonight," which opened at the Craterian theatre yesterday, one grand hour of fun and entertainment, topped by a supporting cast of skillful, but none the less hilarious, comedians, headed by the buoyant innuendoes of Mary Boland and the droll humor of Lynne Overman.

Presenting Crosby in one mirth-provoking dilemma after another, "Two for Tonight" is a perfect vehicle for Bing's light-hearted, insouciant, personable style of acting.

The comedy centers around the humorous experiences of a struggling
