RAME INDUSTRY SEEN IN FLORIDA AS WEALTH AID

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Successful development of process for recovery of ramie fiber from its stalk, expected to add thousands of dollars to the wealth of Florida, has been announced here.

Charles R. Pierce, Miami lawyer, said two American mills reported experiments with spinning and weaving of yarns from fiber prepared by the new method were satisfactory.

Although used since prehistoric times, ramie has not been produced on a commercial basis because methods of extracting the fiber have been crude and costly.

"Ramie will not replace cotton, wool, silk or linen," he said. "It has a place all its own. It can be dyed with any dye that can be used for cotton or linen. Unlike other textiles, it does not shrink."

Plans to establish a "ginning" plant capable of producing 50,000 pounds a week are under way, Pierce said.

Ramie can be grown in south Florida, where three crops a year are possible. In other southern states, two crops may be obtained.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Dr. James Tate Mason, Seattle surgeon who is president-elect of the American Medical Association, asserted today he was opposed to socialized medicine.

"It would commercialize medicine, lower its standards and eventually lead to state medicine, than which I can think of no greater setback," he declared in an interview.

"Physicians who started off with the best of intentions would find themselves hiring insufficiently experienced young men at salaries to the group work for them. It would be practically rate cutting."

The physician also said he was opposed to painless death for suffering incurables.

Dr. Mason is here for the 29th annual meeting of the Southern Medical association.
