

MOBLEY TO MEET WOLFE IN COMING WRESTLING CARD

Several years ago a young man, then a lightweight, wrestled Nigel Joe Mobley at the Army. The young man was Rex Wolfe, and he made such a tremendous hit with the fans that Promoter Mack Lillard has been trying to sign him for a return bout ever since. Mobley, a southerner known as the "Alabama Strongboy," has stuck pretty close to his native health since then, and it was only yesterday that Lillard contacted him again.

In the interim, Mobley has developed into a strapping heavyweight, but has lost none of the skill or flash that distinguished him in the lighter division. Lillard has placed him in the final card of next week's wrestling matches, against Rex Wolfe, the rubber legs, who has, so far, defended himself ably against all comers. Tiger Taskos, bulky Bulgarian, who was to have met Wolfe, will appear on a later card.

If raw meat is what the fans desire, then there will be a house full of contented customers Monday night. For a greater collection of evening fun, seldom appeared in one evening than has been amassed on the other two bouts. In the curtain raiser, Frankie Peck, who watched Johnny Soos' mauling tactics last week, will take on that young Indian, and attempt to show him what real tough going is like. Since both grapplers are of the same school of thought, preferring the thumping of noses and ears to the more accepted type of warfare, the bout seems due to create terrific carnage.

In the middle bout, another fire-eater, Ken Hollis of Oklahoma, will meet Toos Estes, Hawaiian island champion. So far, Estes has managed to keep his wrestling off the shady side, preferring, evidently, to make the tough one suffer for his own misdeeds with legitimate holds, but many of the fans think he will be forced out of his gentleman role, and angered into going berserk himself.

ROGUE SNOWMEN TO MEET MONDAY

The Rogue Snowmen will hold their first meeting of the season at 7:30 Monday night at the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce. It was announced today by Harold L. Larsen, secretary.

Plans for sports to be held this winter will be discussed and a tentative program mapped out. If roads can be kept open, it is planned to hold a series of week-end carnivals at Crater Lake National park.

The Rogue Snowmen are working in conjunction with the Klamath Falls Ski club and the Crater Lake Ski club of Fort Klamath. It is sponsoring the sports programs at the mountain resort.

GRIDIRON GUESSER PICKS CALIFORNIA TO CAPTURE TITLE

By HERBERT W. BARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Not without a wistful wonder when the lightning will strike next, this football guesser comes out of the weekly huddle with the following results:

Princeton-Dartmouth: A couple of undefeated and untied "hy leaguers" get together. Princeton, gathering power as the season continues, has knocked over seven rivals and appears to have too much all-around class for the Indians. A vote for Princeton.

Stanford-California: An apparent toss-up, but California's Golden Bears have the useful knack of taking advantage of every scoring opportunity and presenting at the same time a granite like defense. California to clinch the Pacific coast title and Rose Bowl assignment.

Washington-Oregon: Washington, Montana-Oregon State: Stale.

Notre Dame-Southern California: The Trojan's air attack produced 20 points in one quarter against Washington State last week while Pitmeless Notre Dame was struggling along to its 6-6 draw with Army. Notre Dame, just the same, but it may be close.

Texas Christian-Rice: Christian rates this ballot.

Auburn-Georgia: Auburn a slight edge.

Minnesota-Wisconsin: It looks like a bad day for Wisconsin.

Ohio State-Michigan: The Buckeyes should handle Michigan easily and wind up in a tie with Minnesota for the Big Ten championship.

Illinois-Chicago: Illinois.

Purdue-Indiana: We'll take a filler on Indiana.

Northwestern-Iowa: Northwestern.

Harvard-Yale: Harvard will be gunning for its first major victory of the campaign, but the signs point to Yale.

Temple-Villanova: Temple gets the call.

North Carolina State-Duke: The place for an upset, but Duke may be chosen.

Marquette-Cleighton: Marquette.

UCLA-Loyola: UCLA.

ONE OUT OF FOUR HUNTERS GOT ELK IN 10-DAY SEASON

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 22.—(AP)—About one of every four sportsmen who hunted elk bagged their quarry during the 10-day open season in eastern Oregon, State Game Supervisor Frank B. Wire said today.

Nearly complete reports showed 629 elk bulls were killed by the 2758 hunters who checked in.

"There may be some resident hunters who will check out later, bringing the official kill to about 650," said Wire, who himself thrashed through snow-covered thickets and brought down his allotted elk.

Last year 674 elk were reported killed.

"The elk were wilder this season than either of the two previous open seasons," continued Wire.

"An hour after the first shots were fired the old bulls bounded for thickets or dashed to snowy mountain retreats. You had to chase them out to get them. Young bulls were less wary."

"Hunting conditions were poor much of the season. The snow was from eight to twelve inches deep at times and the temperature dropped to around zero each night."

"We tracked an elk for six hours in the snow, but couldn't catch him. Boy, I was all in. Elk will strike out across the country on a lunge and run five or six miles, sometimes."

"Tenderfees pulled out when snow began to swirl, but a number of old timers braved the cold and made kills."

He estimated from his observation and forest officials reports that the elk population increased about 1000 more than the kill.

TIGERS ON EDGE FOR ENCOUNTER IN G. P. SATURDAY

Football practice at the Medford high school will consist of only a light signal drill tonight, with the men on feather edge for their crucial game against the big Grants Pass Cavemen at the Climate City tomorrow night.

Last night the squad practiced only a few minutes on their regular running plays, and then concentrated on pass defense and dummy scrimmage.

It seemed certain that Ray Lewis, husky and tricky left half, would see action in the game, with a torn right shoulder keeping him out of most of the practice last evening.

Bowman would not say definitely that Lewis would be withheld from the game, but Lewis was unable to throw passes or block with that side.

Another man who may not participate in the hostilities is Stan Kunzman, star end, who last week injured a knee tendon and a few days later crippled the other knee.

In order to offset these two injuries, Jim Boyles has been working at the halfback post, and Eldon Grow, end, has been shifted from the right to the left wing position to fill Kunzman's position. Fray, end, injured in the Klamath Falls game, will be back in the lineup at right end.

Big Boy "Stretch" Ettinger is also on the casualty list, and may not play, and Wilson, alternate center, is confined to his home with the measles and will not see action at all. Stocks will handle the ball-picking duties, with Stewart and Root as alternates.

Aside from those injuries, the squad is in fine condition, after a layoff since the Greenway game on Armistice day, November 11.

Word from Grants Pass indicates that the big blue and white aggregation there is pointing hard for the Medford game, and will be trying desperately for a win. Even though the dope bucket indicates Medford as the favorite in the game, the locals are determined that they will not be surprised, and are looking for one of the stiffest struggles of the season.

The game has been called for 2 o'clock, and a big delegation of Medford fans, including a caravan of high school students, will make the trip.

BETTER ANGLING SEEN IN OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 22.—(AP)—State game commission reports showed angling materially improved in Oregon the past week. Good catches of sea-run cutthroat, jack salmon and silverides, as well as a few early steelhead were reported.

Streams are low and clear along the coast, it was reported.

The salmon run is on at Ten Mile lake in Coos county, and trout angling at Tidewater is good in Curry county, it was reported.

The Rogue river, it was reported, has been a bit muddy for angling, but other streams of the vicinity have been better.

How would you feel about your Americanism if you were a student at Sidel university and the following football backfield took to the turf to defend the honor of your alma mater—Klaczko, right half; Tehekoff, left half; Ujagaj, quarter, and Koscioko, fullback? Isn't that a swell collection of names? But you probably aren't a student at Sidel university (as far as we know, neither is anyone else, Sidel being a place in Louisiana where we once spent the night in jail as a dangerous and suspicious character) and so you won't have to worry.

In the modern day football roster, one occasionally comes across a name that looks as though it might have been on the registry of the Mayflower, but not too often. Is this a sad commentary on what the country is coming to? Well, as long as there are names like Kozaka, Mikulak, Micek and the others perfectly welcome to stick around, Duquesne university would be hard put without them. On their first string they have a Kakaic, Diegl, Chapla, Piatuskis, Perko and Basrak.

The monthly column radio announcers in that district is about three per game. That wouldn't be such a tragedy, either, if it weren't that only the best of the announcers in the country are spartan enough to even sign up for such duties.

Is the lateral pass something new in football, or did Southern Methodist just bring it back into the limelight while twisting the tail of the UCLA bruin out by the roots? You who followed the ramblings of the Medford Black Tornado during the Callison heyday will remember one end run that ended up with five men on the team taking lateral. That was back in 1927, and it didn't startle anyone out of their seats, even way up in the splinters of the nickel bleachers. It occasionally disturbed the calm of the opposition, at that.

Is the shovel pass, that one hears so much about nowadays, a new invention? Right here in Medford it got a good play about seven or eight years ago when the Menlo Junior college came to Medford to play the SONS. The Menlo play started wide, with a halfback carrying the ball. When about to be nailed by the end he shovels an underhand, or "shovel," pass forward to a short back skimming along just behind the line of scrimmage, and that gentleman stepped through a gaping hole and generally went for yardage.

If, then, the lateral and shovel passes are old stuff, why aren't they used more? The only plausible reason is that they are extremely dangerous, and if dropped promptly become a free ball, with the defensive team allowed to recover them. If used correctly, they can be as deadly as anything in a game. We'd like to see more of them, for the simple reason that they provide thrills in football games, and thrills make or break ball games.

Bowlers of southern Oregon will be glad to hear this. Walt Antle, genial proprietor of the Smoke House bowling alleys, is leaving for Portland the first of the week to set new pin-setting equipment for the alleys. In a close, fast and exciting game it will be much more convenient and satisfactory to have the pins jerked to their feet by machinery than to stand there while the pin boys get in their work. After long years of getting their shirts back by flying "jacks," the pin boys will probably welcome the shift themselves.

CCC MITT ARTISTS PRAISED FOR WORK IN PORTLAND SHOW

The eight-man boxing team sent to the amateur tournament in Portland by the Medford CCC district, returned to Medford Friday morning minus any of the championship belts but well satisfied with their appearance in the Rose City.

Bucking up against competition that included crack amateur fighters from colleges and clubs in five western states and Canada, the Medford contingent failed to get beyond the quarter-finals, but their games in the ring won the applause of the crowd and an invitation from James Richardson, chairman of the Oregon A. A. U. boxing commission, to participate in a similar tournament next spring.

Boxers making the trip were: Harold Friedman, 112; Nat Lombardo and John Roskil, 118; Al Franklin, 126; Sammy Currier and Jess Sawicki, 135, and Bill Supeck and Herb Walker, 147. They were accompanied to Portland by Lieut. Roy Craft, assistant welfare officer.

Boxers in the tournament included the California A. U. champion in each of the eight weights; an eight-man team from Washington State college; an eight-man team from the University of Idaho; fighters from Canada; Indian boxers from Arizona; and representatives of the Multnomah Athletic club in Portland, the Portland boxing school, the Seattle Eagles' Athletic club and similar groups. All were trained to the minute. Medford's fighters, accustomed to fighting two-minute rounds, tired quickly in the three-minute frames.

The CCC fighters proved popular with the large audience because of their gamesness against more highly polished fighters, and without exception led the fights from the going, tearing into their opponents with enthusiasm, and bringing the crowd to its feet. The Portland group was impressed by the type of batter developed on the Elks' card here, and invited the Medford contingent to return for another tournament sometime in March.

FOOTBALL IN AMERICA NO GENTLEMENS GAME IS EDUCATORS LAMENT

SEWANEE, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Banishment of "commercial" football from college sports is advocated by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president-emeritus of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in an article published here today.

"It is not part of the service of an educational institution," he said, "to lend itself to a commercial exploitation of college boys, which is precisely what is done in American intercollegiate sports, and particularly in football."

The article appeared in the Sewanee Review, a quarterly published at the university of the south.

In England, he wrote, "football has remained a game played by boys and played with a joy of the game."

"Our football simply is not a gentleman's game," he said. "The suggested educators should follow the English example and abolish the professional coach and gate receipts."
