

HIGH SCHOOL BAND BOOSTERS DONATE TRIP TO ASHLAND

The Medford high school band will journey with the football team to Ashland tomorrow to teach color to what is already accepted as one of the most colorful football pageants of the southern Oregon season.

The fund was subscribed by 38 Medford business firms and 25 Copco employees, upon the suggestion of George Kunzman and Bullis, Medford men, who felt that the band should accompany the team on field trips.

It was felt by the two men, and by those who subscribed, that the smartly attired high school band is a definite civic asset, as well as being an inspiration to the football team.

Two large banners, running the full length of the bus, were also donated. These banners will carry the following inscription: "Medford High School Band, Bill Goings, Leader. With the Medford Hi Fighting Tigers."

Transportation furnished by Medford Business Men, to let the public know that the business men are wholeheartedly behind the school.

Cliffnotes: Tom Harvey, Virginia Loomis, Lester Fay, Ted Taylor, Leslie Liebman, Don Krouse, Patricia Short.

ACTIVIANS TOLD OF SNOW SPORT PLAN

At the regular weekly meeting of the Active club at the Hotel Medford last night, Glen Fabrick furnished the entertainment with a discussion of the Crater Lake winter playground.

The government has agreed to keep the park open this year, as a test measure to see how well worth-while such a move would be.

It was felt by the two men, and by those who subscribed, that the smartly attired high school band is a definite civic asset.

Recently, the Rogue Snowmen, Medford Skiing club, the Crater Lake Ski club of Fort Klamath, and the Klamath Falls Ski club met at the park and formulated plans to hold extensive winter sports there this year.

George Field, manager of the Richfield Oil company in this district, and Norman Faber of Eugene were guests at the meeting.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, retired champion of the world's heavyweights, entered the arena of fistie speculation with the opinion that "the Jack Dempsey of old would have made short work of Joe Louis."

"I believe Joe Louis may yet prove to be a fighter," said the former champion, "but before I consider him as such I shall have to see him really tested by someone with the courage to trade blows with him."

The Dempsey of old would have made short work of the so-called brown hammer, I believe. And I don't think Harry Williams would have had much trouble with the boy.

"I am not denying that he is good. But I do not consider him great—not when measured by the standards of great boxers I knew in my competitive lifetime."

Stelwer Hill Treaty. PORTLAND Nov. 27.—(AP)—The trade treaty with Canada, Senator Stelwer told the Multnomah County Republican club, is based on "half-baked theories that are not understood even by those who are promoting them."

Bobby Jones' Pen Runs Out Of Yarn For Golf Addicts

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Robert T. Jones, the golfer, has retired from golf writing. O. B. Keeler, the Atlanta Journal's golf editor, quoted Jones as saying: "I liked writing about golf and theories of playing the game. That is, I liked it at first. But two articles a week for seven years, after all, is about seven hundred articles. And I think that's about all I had in my system."

WAR NOTE SEEN IN LATEST TOYS FOR CHRISTMAS

CHICAGO.—(UP)—While the world at large is gravely concerned by the African war, the toy world finds in the Hele-Ethiopian crisis only inspiration for new and gaudier types of tin soldiers, new and more realistic armies of playroom "war" with which to greet the 1935 Christmas season.

Despite its short duration, the conflict between Mussolini's trim legions and Haile Selassie's ragged warriors is influencing the American Christmas toy market. On toy counters throughout the land, in the tin soldier section, the most prominent position is being given to those figures cast in the Algerian or "Foreign Legion" mode, because they are suggestive of the flowing-robed Ethiopians.

And within a few weeks, say toy store forecasters in the Merchandise Mart here, manufacturers will catch up with current history by fully copying the fighting equipment and regalia being used in East Africa. Meantime, the rubber-belted caterpillar tractor, an overwhelming favorite a few Christmases ago in a peaceful agricultural role, is staging a comeback this year in warlike pattern with a pair of fire-spitting machine guns on either side.

Metal nesting sets, growing in popularity each year, also will reflect the military note with greater emphasis than ever this season, judging from previews of what the holiday season will offer. Tiny fighting airplanes will help youngsters so inclined to fight "from the air" their battles on what Robert Louis Stevenson called
