

TIGERS OUTFIGHT ASHLAND TO TAKE 13 TO 0 VICTORY

Lithians Lose Chance for Touchdown When Gun Ends Half—Both Squads Shine in Defense Tactics

By virtue of a rock-bound defense, the breaks, and the half-time gun, the undefeated and untied Black Tornado of Medford high school stayed that way Thanksgiving day in the face of an inspired and seemingly invincible Ashland high school bid to knock Medford from the pedestal of seven straight wins for an undefeated season. Medford won, 13-0, but after the game Coach Bowman admitted to Coach Faber of Ashland: "I don't see how we beat you by that score."

The Black Tornado was buffeted about the field, scoreless, through the entire first quarter, although they made three first downs to the Grizzlies, and the gun found them knocking on the Ashland eight-yard line. Bayliss, on the first play of the second quarter, made it first and 10 on the 5-yard line. Lewis was held for no gain, but made one yard on the next play. With the third down coming up, and four yards to go, Bayliss fumbled the pass from center and Ashland recovered on the five to end Medford's first scoring threat. Kick Behind Goal

Ashland kicked desperately from behind their own goal. Lewis returned the kick to the 40, where he fumbled, but the ball went out of bounds. Lewis cracked into right tackle for three yards, and Smith fumbled at the end of the drive on the next play, but the Tigers recovered on the 35-yard line. Smith then smashed off left tackle for a first and 10 on the 19, as Ashland called time out. On the next play, Smith circled right end and spun and plowed to the five, and bowled over left guard for the first touchdown. His dropkick was wide.

Ashland returned the kickoff to the 42, and the next two plays netted them a two-yard loss apiece, with Baker and Smith each nailing a play behind the line of scrimmage. Hess' next pass was incomplete and Ashland was forced to kick. Bayliss returned the kick to the 39 and then hit inside the end for three yards.

On the next play, behind nice interference, Bayliss went straight through center to the Ashland 21, as Ashland again called time out. Smith went into right tackle for two yards and repeated the play for a first and 10 on the 12-yard stripe. Sakralda, with several tacklers clinging around his neck, staggered nine more yards before the load weighed him down on the three.

A sneak play netted one yard, and Sakralda spun over the last two yards for the second score. Smith, back in dropkick formation, stormed over on a fake to make the score 13-0. It stayed that way through the rest of the game, with the Tigers making long runs in the middle of the field, but losing the ball on interceptions or downs in dangerous territory.

Ashland's great bid for a score, which was ended on the six-inch line by the half-time gun, started soon after Medford's last score. Dickinson kicked to the 35 when he got outside Medford's right end. Townsend. He made five yards at center, and a double reverse to the right was good for four and a half more. Schilling hit center for a first and 10, as Fley entered the game for Townsend and Root came in for Ettinger. Gun Ends Threat

A double reverse was followed by a flip-out to Hess, who threw a long pass completed on the 20. His next pass, with only seconds left in the half, was completed on the one-yard line, and a muck took the ball to the six-inch line where the gun ended the drive.

Ashland failed to get within the Medford 40-yard line in the third quarter, and Medford threatened only once when they took the hog hide to the 24. Sakralda's fourth-down pass to Kunzman was long, however, and Ashland took the ball then.

After an exchange of ups in that last canto, with Ashland kicking out on the Medford 39, the Tigers carried the ball to the 44. Sakralda was knocked out there after a 10-yard gain, and the play was called back, the Tigers taking a 15-yard penalty for holding.

Dead Pan Meanie

Ken Hollis (above), the "dead pan" Oklahoma tough guy who is one of the most cold-blooded meanies in the game, and the only one ever to get mean enough to anger Toots Estes in a Medford ring. Lea Wolfe has stated that he will change Hollis' dead pan expression to one of amazement and pain when the two meet in the Armory arena Monday night. Hollis has so far failed to change expression regardless of what sort of mayhem he was inflicting on his opponent.

for a seven-yard loss, the ball on the 10-yard line.

The rest of the game was played with Ashland trying desperately but futilely to complete their long passes. Ashland threw 18 passes, completing six, with one intercepted. Medford threw six passes, completing one, with one intercepted. The Tigers made 15 first downs, to nine for the Grizzlies.

FEAR GHELARDI'S GRID DAYS OVER

GOZZAGA UNIVERSITY, Spokane.
Nov. 29.—(Sp.)—Gonzaga's football hopes for the future took a sharp drop at the season's close with the announcement that Leo Ghelardi, flashy Prosh backfield star, may have his grid career cut short because of an injury.

The injury, a broken collar bone, sustained in a game against the Montana fresh at Missoula, is a recurrence of an old injury and will probably mean the end of Ghelardi's football playing, team physician Dr. R. B. Mauro announced.

The aggravation of the old injury kept the slippery ball carrying artist out of the lineup much of the time and sent him to the infirmary for a fortnight following the final frogn game.

Though weighing only 150 pounds, Ghelardi had demonstrated neat ball carrying ability with the fresh and was counted on by Coach Mike Pecorovich for plenty of service in the variety backfield next season.

Portland Puckmen Play Second Tie
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Portland hockey team has neither won nor lost in two games this week. Sunday, the Burs were tied by Edmonton and last night the Calgary Tigers scooped down from the Canadian planes to hold the Portlanders 1-1.

The Thanksgiving day battle almost ended in a riot in the overtime period. Portland fans, 3600 of whom witnessed the contest, proclaimed a goal when the puck went toward the "Tigers" net and was scooped away by hand. A field judge concurred but Carl Jacobs ruled no score.

MAC HIGH OUSTED FROM TITLE RACE BY 13-0 DEFEAT

Hood River Upsets State Championship Aspirations—Spokane Trims Washington 6-0; Medford Wins

By the Associated Press
Undefeated, untied Oregon prep football teams.

Washington (Port.)	W. Pts. Against
Medford	9 177 39
Myrtle Point	7 190 20
Myrtle Point	7 129 6

(Note: Only games with Oregon schools included.)

A season of collegiate upsets descended in full force on two high school gridirons in Oregon on Thanksgiving day.

Only three teams remained on the unbeaten, untied list today and one of these—Washington high of Portland—had a blot on its otherwise perfect 1935 record.

Washington was toppled from the select class by the light, scrappy team from John Rogers high of Spokane 6 to 0. The defeat, however, does not affect Washington's standing in Oregon's grid world.

Hood River's 13 to 0 surprise defeat of Milton-Freewater put a different aspect on the state picture. Milton-Freewater heretofore ranked with Washington high, Medford and Myrtle Point—the topnotchers of the season.

Medford remained on the highest rung by powering its way through a battling Ashland eleven 13 to 0. Myrtle Point was idle.

So far as is known, no arrangements have been made for a playoff for the mythical state title.

Other Turkey-day scores were turned in as follows: Corvallis 14, Salem 0; The Dalles 7, Pendleton 6; McMinnville 20, Dallas 6; Albany 14, Independence 7; Tigard 18, Beaverton 0; St. Helens 33, Rainier 0; Hillsboro 19, Forest Grove 0; St. Mary's of Beaverton 14, Scappoose 7.

GIANTS CLOSE TO PRO GRID TITLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The defending champion New York Giants had a virtual stranglehold on the leadership of the national professional football league's eastern division, but the situation in the west was complicated as ever.

The Giants assured themselves of nothing worse than a tie for eastern honors yesterday by trouncing Brooklyn, 21 to 0.

The Chicago Cardinals kept the west from settling its share of the argument by tripping the powerful Green Bay Packers, 9-7. A victory would have clinched the western title for the Packers. Detroit just about ruined the Chicago Bears' chances of getting into the playoff by winning, 14-2 at Detroit.

Prattville, Ala.—"The Fountain City of the World," has more than 400 overflowing wells.

Washington High Pulls Poor Gate In Portland Tilt
PORTLAND, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Washington high—Spokane high football game drew smaller crowds than the so-called mythical state championship games the previous two Thanksgiving days.

Paid attendance yesterday was 6183, or slightly under the Medford-Washington high crowd last year.

Two years ago Salem and Washington drew 10,329, in a Shrine benefit game.

Some attribute part of this year's decline to Washington high's unpopularity. Aside from the Washington high section, most of the crowd here yesterday was rooting for Spokane.

The crack of the gun after the Medford-Ashland football game yesterday was very probably the last tango for the high school careers of Bob "Smitherens" Smith and Stan Kunzman, one of the most brilliant and effective passing combinations the Red and Black has had in years.

The spectacular catches by Kunzman of Smith's rifle-like left hand tosses have time and again set the Tigers in scoring position during the highly satisfactory season just finished. Both men graduate at Christmas. It is the hope of this department as well as hundreds of other fans that the two men can go on to college together.

Before yesterday's game, Coach Bowman promised the lads that if they won the game, they'd be guests at a turkey dinner at the Hotel Medford. If they lost, he'd still see that they'd get fed, but the entire would be beans.

Tigermentor Bowman has a little matter of about 500 milkshakes to get out of the way. Early in the season he assured his charges that for every touchdown scored, he'd set up the milkshakes to every man in the game when the touchdown was scored. He thinks he'll be the rest of the season getting that load paid off. But he admits the players earned the extra calories, which reminds us that Ed Kirtley still owes us a turkey dinner, and if he doesn't pay it pretty quick, we're going to take action.

The Black Tornado season is over. The team has run up 190 points in seven games, and is still undefeated and untied. Only two of the players were regular last year. John Dickinson, "Stretch" Ettinger and Ray Lewis the only ones besides Smith and Kunzman who had ever played before. That means that each player had to learn a new system under a new coach, and the season has been long and arduous. The only possible chance for a post season

MANY WIN TURKS AT CENTRAL POINT SHOOT YESTERDAY

The Mayor Porter family must be sick of turkey by now. On Sunday, Nov. 17, Mayor Porter won a 17½ pound bird at Central Point with his trusty scatter gun, to say nothing of the three other hulking gobblers he took home on that date.

Yesterday, highly alarmed, the other cannon artists at C. P. handed Sir George a healthy handicap to quiet his winning streak, but his Jack, stepping into the breach, shot it out with the fond parent and took the proffered bird himself, the mayor having to be content with second place. The moral you can't keep a Porter from winning turkey, unless you separate the family at the traps.

Some time ago Ken Denman, Medford attorney, expounded to us a fine way to improve the old aim with a rifle. The system, Ken said, THIS IS EASIER was to arm oneself with a 22 rifle and tie himself to the Eagle Point desert. The procedure there was to wait until a jack-rabbit scurried away over the groat, or bracken, or heather, or whatever the polite name for that awful fox-hall might be, and then, taking careful aim, to flatten the jack with one well placed bullet. This sounds easy, but after blasting all of the rocks on the desert, kicking up dust 30 feet from the nearest jack-rabbit, and hitting two tin cans and a beer bottle square on the nose, we decided to do the rest of our rabbit hunting armed with a salt shaker instead of a gun.

Did anyone ever notice the "pencil" coaching set-up in Ashland? Eberhard-Faber, you know.

MANY WIN TURKS AT CENTRAL POINT SHOOT YESTERDAY

Bending over the dusty county archives for 101 these many years, and completely ignoring the fascinating game of trapshooting for the last 20 winters, is no handicap at all to County Treasurer A. C. Walker, apparently. Yesterday Walker stepped up to the Central Point traps for the first time since 1915, borrowed a gun, and smashed 11 birds to take the first prize of the day, a 10-pound turkey. Tom Hodson grabbed second place.

Other winners included Sam Jennings, who dynamited eight straight targets in a miss-and-out tray, George Porter taking second and Ralph Green third. Dr. Bishop outclassed his squad to win a gobbler, and Bob Muse of Tofo took home a 10-pound goose. The report that the city limits of Tofo had to be moved to get the bird inside has been denied by Muse.

Porter and Blake stepped into trouble when they voluntarily accepted a two-bird handicap in 10 against Jensen, Richmond and Thumier. Richmond blasted nine straight to win. Ray Nichols of Central Point made a good showing by winning a seventh bird over Judd Muse of Tofo, who took second prize.

Other winners of first prizes, each a four-pound dressed and drawn capon, were George Porter, Clyde Richmond, B. Thumier and Sonny Gleason. Gleason had to shoot 10 straight to eliminate C. A. Thorp of Tofo. Thorpe, Hodson, Porter (2) and Dr. Blake of Ashland each took sugar consolation prizes.

The shooting was difficult yesterday, with an average of three out of five birds "outlaws."

TEXAS TEAMS IN ROSE BOWL FAVOR

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Western football fans who have been attempting to help Stanford select its Rose Bowl opponent of January 1, settled back today and decided to let Texas carry the ball from here on in.

The Southern Methodist and Texas Christian were the only remaining untied and undefeated acceptable teams for the annual intercollegiate clash as a result of New York university's defeat by Fordham yesterday.

The two Texas teams meet Saturday for the Southwestern conference championship. A win for either would make it highly acceptable to Rose Bowl fans.

There was still some vague talk of trying to get Notre Dame, beaten and tied, but the mass of opinion added weight to the statement of Al Masters, Stanford's graduate manager, that he was "interested in the outcome" of the southern contest.

Oberbürgermeister Martin of Nurnberg, Germany, has threatened reckless drivers with concentration camp sentences.
