Having What You Want—When You Want It!

THAT is why we stock 155 kinds and sizes of breakfast cereals—102 of soap—127 of crackers and cookies—67 of spices—36 of cheese—20 brands of coffee—17 of tea—18 of macaroni products—13 kinds of dry beans—and not forgetting your dog we put 18 kinds of food on the menu for him.

Beside the ordinary foods there is an occasional need for a delicacy—not many folks want hors d'oeuvre from France—terrine de foies gras from Strasbourg—Brands calves tongue from London—Sardines from Portugal—Major Gray's chutney from India—oatmeal from Scotland nor one of the many other unusual delicacies always here, yet we feel that we must have them to give you that super-service expected of a Super-Food Market.

To supply your every need at a price you can afford to pay—is what you have a right to expect from a Super-Food Market.

Super Meat Markets

About Mince Meat

A customer came to us in a quandary. "I want some mince meat," she said, "but I've never found any prepared mince meats that suited me. They are always flat. There is something lacking in all of them. I used to make our own mince meat when on the farm but I can't now that I live in town."

A problem like that is a sticker, because cultivated tastes are sometimes of a peculiar nature. What one person is used to eating may not please very many others.

"We have a very good mince meat," we answered, "but we prefer that you taste it rather than buy it on our recommendation." She did so and bought her Thanksgiving supply.

Now if you are skeptical about mince meat, why not do the same. Ask for a taste at either meat market and enjoy the finest mince pies you ever tasted.

If you don't like to bake—pies with the same mince meat may be had at the bakery or fountain.
