ILLINOIS RAILROAD OFFICIALS HERE TO TALK TO SHIPPERS

Freight shippers of Medford and southern Oregon were invited to luncheon today at the Hotel Medford to meet and confer with C. C. Cameron, vice-president in charge of traffic for the Illinois-Central railroad, who arrived this morning in a private car, accompanied by Mrs. Cameron, W. D. Stubbs, western traffic manager from San Francisco, H. J. Nelson, general agent at Portland, and J. S. McLaughlin, district traffic agent in Portland.

Mr. Cameron makes periodical trips on the average of once a year through the United States, calling on shippers and visiting agents. His itinerary so far has covered the northwest territory, and will take the party through California and Texas before returning to Chicago. Mr. Cameron stated that throughout his trip, he has noted a cheering optimism and definite upturn in business prospects all over the country, with business men everywhere voicing a confidence in "better times."

Mr. Cameron said: "The importance of a first-class railway plant and a capable personnel to the patrons of a railroad cannot be overestimated, in my opinion. Here is one example taken from the freight side, which I think will prove my point:

"As practically everyone knows, the time of freight in transit on the railroads of the United States has been greatly reduced in recent years by reason of the higher speed and better handling of trains and added convenience of schedules. A recent estimate gave the value of freight handled by the railroads during 1934 as a little more than $30,500,000,000. At 3 per cent, the interest bill on that amount of investment for a single day would be approximately $4,000,000. In other words, if only one day was saved per average shipment, the freight patrons of the railroad were at least $4,000,000 the gainers, and it is likely that the average saving is even greater than that in comparison with the freight schedules that were in effect some years ago.

"I mention this merely as one illustration of what improved railway service has meant to the patrons of the railroads. I could also talk about the added safety which has been accorded freight as well as passengers. The railroads of this country, as recently announced, went through the first six months of this year without a single fatality to a passenger in a train accident. The Illinois Central system has done even better than that—it has gone through seven whole years without such an accident and is now well into its eighth year. Between 1924 and 1934 freight claim payments for loss and damage per revenue car declined from 95 cents to 33 cents. In 1934 such payments amounted to only 60 cents out of each $100 of freight revenue, or 3 cents on each $100 of value of freight handled.

"Accomplishments such as those are the combined result of having both an experienced personnel and a railway plant in a satisfactory state of maintenance.

"By the end of this year and since the beginning of 1934, we will have completed overhauling and reconditioning 1,400 locomotives, more than 800 passenger cars and more than 17,000 freight cars, lagging 195 truck miles of new rails, replacing 2,875,000 cross-ties and 1,600 sets of switch-tee, applying more than 750,000 cubic yards of ballast, rebuilding 38 bridges and building 37 industrial sidings and 11 company sidings."

PRaise FOR BORAH BY FISH AROUSES POLITICAL CIRCLES

New York Republican's Remarks Doubly Interesting in View of Own Mention As Possible Candidate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The praise that Representative Fish (R., N. Y.) accorded Senator Borah of Idaho aroused speculation today as to what is in the political winds.

The two men, both mentioned as possible candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, interrupted their Thanksgiving holiday yesterday to talk politics. Afterwards Fish praised Borah as a man who could draw more votes in New England, New York and Pennsylvania than any other prospect.

Borah Silent.

Borah himself declined to comment, telling reporters: "I haven't anything to say now. I may have in a day or two."

The conference led some observers to believe the two men were bent on preventing the nomination of an old guard Republican at next year's national convention.

In his statement, Fish urged candidates to enter the forthcoming presidential primaries to prevent a "handful of old guard politicians" from manipulating the selection of a nominee "in a backroom."

He was asked if that was what he and Borah were thinking about. "It might work out that way," he replied.

The New Yorker went on to describe Borah as a "very able man who has great popular support in both the west and east."

He said Borah "comes nearer representing the policies of Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln than any other man in the country."

Fish Not Decided.

As for himself, Fish said he had "not decided" whether to be a candidate. He has been busy since the adjournment of congress speaking on liberalism versus the "old order."

Other support for Borah came yesterday from Senator Frazier (R., N. D.) who said: "I am quite anxious to see Senator

VETERANS COUNCIL WILL PLAY SANTA

A meeting of the Veterans' Allied Council of Jackson county was held at Medford Armory Wednesday evening, November 27. This council is made up of representatives of the several veteran organizations of this county. Its purpose is to promote unified action in matters of interest to veterans.

At the meeting the following motion was adopted: "That all organizations report to their proper officers any children who will not have adequate Christmas delicacies and that the organizations report to the next meeting of the Veterans' Allied Council, who will arrange to supply them."

It is desired to make these Christmas presents to children of needy or destitute families of Jackson county regardless of whether the families are those of veterans of any war or not.

Anyone having knowledge of such children is requested to notify Cole Holmes, Telephone 444, Medford Center building, Medford.

SALEM, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Bud McGowan will be sent to San Quentin penitentiary under extradition orders issued by the executive department today. McGowan had previously escaped from the California prison and had just completed a term for larceny in the Oregon penitentiary.

farm in Telfair county and announced, through a secretary here, that he was "hunting and farming—hunting for something to plant that doesn't have a processing tax on it."

Lanes Are Crowded.

Through miles of densely crowded and cheering lanes of people, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt rode on the way to Georgia Tech's horsehoe bowl stadium.

Four massed bands greeted the president as he walked from the street to the stadium platform high above the field on which throngs stood, in addition to those in the spacious stands.

A sharp, chill wind failed to cool enthusiasm of the huge assemblage. The president and Senators Richard B. Russell, Jr., and Walter George of Georgia, all wore overcoats.

Aims at Critics.

In his address, Mr. Roosevelt seemed to be directing his remarks to the "gentlemen in well-warmed and well-stocked clubs" to whom he referred as complaining of government expenditures, and suggested they go with him "on the battle line of human necessity."

In opening his speech the president smiled broadly and greeted the crowd as "my friends and neighbors."

He was interrupted frequently by cheers. His reference to the increase in the price of cotton from above five cents to 12 cents drew prolonged applause.

Credit Rated High.

The president said "the credit of the government is today higher than that of any other great nation."

The president passed through Five Points, the heart of Atlanta's business district, shortly after noon.

Toby Cook, Chula, Ga., the boy who rode a pony to Washington for the president's inauguration, was on hand to greet the chief executive.

All along Atlanta's famous business and residential thoroughfares, Peachtree street, thousands gathered behind the ropes and at vantage points in office windows and cheered the president.

Mr. Roosevelt, smiling broadly, waved to the throngs.

At Piedmont park, the president told thousands of school children: "This is a wonderful reception you've given me, and I'm here to extend my greetings through you to all the boys and girls of Georgia."

Supporters Act.

"I'm glad you sang 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' and I'm glad you repeated that fine oath of allegiance."

Earlier 22 of the 124 members of the Georgia state Democratic executive committee met and resolved to order a presidential preferential primary in Georgia next year if the maajority of the committee, controlled by Governor Thalmage, refuses to do so.

30,000 at Bowl.

The meeting was called by Newt Morria, a committee member and strong supporter of Mr. Roosevelt. Morria has criticized the Georgia governor for his attacks on the president.

Just before entering the stadium, the president pressed a button handed to him in his motor car, which unveiled a tablet dedicating the $2,875,000 federal low-cost project in Techwood drive, a street which traverses the Georgia Tech campus.

Governors Sholtz of Florida and Bibb Graves of Alabama were in the stadium.

The crowd in the bowl had grown to more than 30,000 when the president entered.

He waved as the many bands blared forth a greeting.

MILK CAN LABELS WANTED BY LIONS

The Medford Lions club issued a plea today for the premium labels from Alpine milk cans. The labels may be left in depositories in downtown stores or at the fire hall.

The labels are used to obtain toys for distribution among needy children at Christmas, this being one of the charitable services of the Lions club.

At Wednesday's regular weekly luncheon-meeting the Rev. E. S. Bartlam, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church, gave an inspirational talk on Thanksgiving.

Dr. W. F. Boney attended the meeting for the first time as a member, having been recently chosen for membership. Joseph Daley attended as a guest.

It was voted to hold next week's meeting at Valentine's cafe.

FICHTNER HEADS NEW GUARD CLUB

Sgt. Clyde G. Fichtner is president of the newly-formed Enlisted Men's club of the Medford national guard.

Other officers are Sgt. Earl M. Harrison, vice-president; Sgt. George P. Lindley, secretary; and Sgt. Eugene Ore, sergeant at arms.

With two enlisted men to be chosen next week, these officers constitute the board of directors.

Officers were elected and a constitution and by-laws adopted at a meeting following the weekly drill Tuesday night of Company A, 196th infantry, and headquarters company, third battalion, at the armory.

The new club is to engage in athletic activity and plans are being made now for the formation of several basketball teams. In the spring a baseball team is to be organized.
