

CHIEF OF POLICE IS UNEXCITED BY DETECTIVE'S VIEW

tell a guilty man when I see one" was called into the case by former Gov. A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, and has been working on it since, Gov. Hoffman disclosed.

Moore was governor when the kidnaping occurred.

The New York Daily News said today an anonymous letter indicating a possibility that Hauptmann is innocent of slaying Charles A. Lindbergh's kidnaped son is the center of a new investigation of the crime.

The letter is being studied by Parker, the News said. It reported that he, too, has visited Hauptmann in the prison at Trenton, N. J. Parker, the News says, is studying a theory that the baby was not killed the night of the kidnaping, March 1, 1932, but died later.

Letter One of Many The letter, one of hundreds mailed to officials shortly after the kidnaping, was postmarked at Buffalo 10 days after the crime. It was delivered to the police chief at Trenton.

Parker takes the view, the News says, that the man who wrote it was the man who stole the child. The most significant sentence in it said: "Follow the Lindbergh telephone wires and you will find the baby and three fellows."

The child's body was found May 12, 1932, about 60 feet from temporary telephone wires installed at Lindbergh's Hopewell estate two days after the abduction.

Got Cold Feet "I got cold feet," the News quoted from the letter.

"We all thought we could make some easy money. We got a place near Elizabeth, N. J., and one of the fellows who was pretty smart runs a wire to this place and listened to everything the Lindbergh people say."

It said the "Lindbergh baby" is taken very good care of and is feeling fine when I left the fellows only it cries too much and the fellows are afraid someone will hear it. Nobody will hurt it because they all like it. The baby has lots of toys and a small black dog."

Parker, the News says, takes the view that much of the letter was the inaccurate raving of a demented man, but that the reference to the telephone wires was a worth-while clue.

SNOW IS FALLING AT CRATER LAKE

Snow started falling at Crater lake national park this morning and by this afternoon a new blanket of several inches was reported from park headquarters.

Roads to the park were being kept open to allow passage of visitors to the lake over the week-end. J. Carlisle Crouch, chief ranger, left here this morning for the park where he was to make arrangements for the convenience of week-end guests.

News of the snowfall came as glad tidings to the Rogue Snowmen who will meet at the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Monday evening to map out plans for winter sports at the lake resort.

The radio service at Crater lake was reported working satisfactorily today and persons with short wave sets may ascertain weather and road conditions each morning at 9:10. The station operates on 32.35 kilocycles.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Dec. 6—(AP)—The old spinning wheel is more than decorative at Orcas Island. The Orcas Island weavers, an organized group, use hand looms in preparing wool raised on the island and make men's socks, caps, ties and scarfs by hand.

HARLEM, Mont., Dec. 6—(AP)—Alfred Granger enjoys shooting crows from the air. He has bought a new plane for the sport and obtained permission from the department of commerce to fly at exceptionally low altitude to give better shooting.

Santa Coming in Tiny Auto

"When I discovered that you don't have any snow and ice in Medford, I sent my sleigh and reindeer back to the North Pole," said Santa Claus when interviewed upon his arrival. "But thanks to the Richfield Oil Company," he said, "I will positively ride through the streets of Medford on December 11 at 5 p. m. And I'll be traveling in splendor too, in a gaily decorated modern sleigh just sparkling with spangles. I understand that this tiny motor car has been provided for my exclusive use. When I ride forth in it, I will carry with me an immense bag of toys and souvenirs for everyone."
