To Leave Valley

John A. Anderson of the Central Point district, a member of the grand jury, has notified the district attorney, that after January 1 he will no longer be a resident of Jackson county. He recently leased his farm and dairy herd and will move to Marion county the first of the year.

As a result of Anderson's change of residence a new name will be drawn from the regular jury panel to fill the vacancy. District Attorney George A. Codding said today the grand jury, unless an emergency arises, will not be called until after January 1. The new member will be selected then.

Anderson has long been a resident of this county and active in Grange and farm affairs, and is well known, particularly among rural residents.

RECORDER AIRING ATTRACTS CROWD, CONTINUE ACTION

Mr. Adams gave his version of why the charges were brought against him, placing responsibility for his predicament upon Gerald H. Wenner, chairman of the council's finance committee, whom he accused of prejudice. Mr. Adams said he had been annoyed and harrassed in his efforts to fulfill his duties as recorder.

Kenneth Denman appeared as counsel for W. S. Whiting, Portland accountant employed to install an accounting system, whose report to the council was a major factor in bringing charges against Mr. Adams. Mr. Whiting had reported that Mr. Adams was not sufficiently acquainted with accounting methods to fill the office efficiently.

Spectators for the most part seemed to sympathize with Mr. Adams, and whenever Mr. Newbury scored what was considered a point in the recorder's favor there was loud applause.

The crowd appeared disappointed when it learned that no evidence would be introduced but nevertheless when Mr. Newbury completed reading the answer at 11 o'clock Mayor T. S. Wiley adjourned the meeting to this evening.

The hearing is being held for the purpose of determining whether the council should remove Mr. Adams by ordinance, arrange for a recall election or drop the issue entirely.

FORESTRY OFFICIAL TELLS OF PROGRAM AT ROTARY MEETING

The ambitious and business-like program of management for the national forests was outlined at today's luncheon meeting of the Medford Rotary club by George E. Griffith, educational chief of the United States forest service for the northwest with headquarters in Portland. In opening his address, Griffith paid a tribute to Medford's "friendliness" and expressed his pleasure in again visiting this community.

The broad scope of the "multiple use management plan" under which the United States forest service operates was outlined in detail by the speaker and segregation of the forests for timber, watersheds, summer ranges and recreational purposes so that the greatest "social value" might be obtained was explained. A sustained yield must be maintained, the forest chief said, as an important part of the program.

Mr. Griffith likened the forest service officials to business managers for the public interests in forests and further explained the development of recreational facilities in the vast sections embracing the national forests. He outlined the department's efforts to provide for the enjoyment and conveniences of all types of people.

"With the great Crater Lake national park and a great national forest in southern Oregon, I see broad co-ordination of intereats for the greatest value and enjoyment of the people of this area," Griffith said. "The activities of our department are embracing game management where our same program of 'sustained yield' can be made to apply."

The forest service chief was accompanied by members of his staff. H. P. Bosworth of Klamath Falls and Ward Hammond and Charles R. Cooley of Grants Pass were guests at today's Rotary meeting.

On Rialto Bill

Will Rogers in a return showing of "Doubting Thomas," is at the Rialto theater starting today for a three-day engagement.

Rogers plays the role of a genial manufacturer of pork sausages who suddenly finds his home invaded by a would-be impressario who persuades his wife that she belongs to the stage and the public. As the stage-struck wife blithely makes plans for a career before the footlights, Will decides to do something about it and the cure he effects forms a basis for one of the funniest bits he has ever brought to the screen.

Billie Burke is the wife; Alison Skipworth is the impressario; Frank Albertson plays the role of Rogers' son, and Sterling Holloway, Frances Grant and Gail Patrick are also in featured roles.

Roxy Comedy

Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland, the screen's favorite "mama and papa" team, are together again in "People Will Talk," in which they climax 23 years of married bliss in one mighty battle. It plays today and Wednesday at the Roxy theater.

GATES & LYDIARD PLANS FOR 1,000 AT YULE BANQUET

Indications today were that more than 1000 poor children would be guests of Gates & Lydiard at the Christmas dinner to be given in their honor next Tuesday in the basement dining room of the Elks temple.

It was thought at first that the number would not far exceed 500, but early returns on the number of eligible youngsters caused a revision upward, W. A. Gates said. Names of needy children are being collected by several groups and turned over to Miss Lillian M. Roberts, American Red Cross secretary in charge of compiling the list of guests.

"Reports indicated that there will be 400 children from Medford and vicinity, 50 from Wimer and 60 from Jacksonville," Mr. Gates said.

"With all the rest of the county to hear from, we are almost sure of having more than 1000. But that's all right with us. The more the merrier. Bring them all in, we told Miss Roberts. Every needy child will be taken care of."

Because the capacity of the Elks basement is limited to 500, there will be two servings at the Gates & Lydiard party, Mr. Gates said. The children from Medford and vicinity will be served at 12 o'clock and the remainder of the little guests at 1:30. Parents will be notified at what hour to have their children ready.

Wherever practicable school busses will be used in transporting the children from and to their homes. Busses have already been engaged to transport the Wimer and Jacksonville youngsters. In remote localities, however, the committee is depending upon the cooperation of neighbors who are willing to transport the children in their cars. The committee again issued a plea today for help from those who can furnish automobiles.

Every needy Jackson county child from four to 15 years old, inclusive, is eligible as a Gates & Lydiard guest. Ashland, however, is omitted because the city has organizations that are looking out for the welfare of deserving children there.

Winifred Shaw Craterian Star

A sparkling comedy drama, filled with rollicking laughter, delightful romances, tinkling music and spiced with thrills, will come to the Craterian theater for tomorrow (Wednesday) only.

This new film musical bears the title of "Broadway Hostess," and is a story of New York night life at its liveliest aspects.

The picture introduces a new and beautiful singing star to the screen in the person of Winifred Shaw in the title role. Miss Shaw has appeared in several pictures, notably "In Caliente," "Sweet Adeline," "Gold Diggers of 1935" and also is famous in musical comedy on the stage. But this is her first starring role in films.

She plays the part of a small-town girl who goes to the big city to make good and has a rough time of it until Lyle Talbot, in the role of a big-shot gambler, takes her under his wing and makes her the toast of the town. Sharing honors with Miss Shaw is Phil Regan, "singing cop."

Allen Jenkins furnishes much of the comedy as the bodyguard of Talbot.

Genevieve Tobin is the society girl in love with Talbot.

LIFE'S HIGHWAY TO SUCCESS

We are all searching for the Highway in our own life that will lead us to Success. A few have found this highway and travelled it successfully, while others are continually making ceaseless and untiring journeys in a vain effort to reach one goal—Success.

Rose Andrus Wagener, whose inspiring essays you read monthly in Mind Magazine, and also hear over Radio Station KMTR as the Little Counselor at 9:15 each Thursday evening, has just completed her "Life's Highway To Success" calendar for 1936. Its copper bronze cover is an exquisite etching of Life's Highway, and beneath it are twelve pages, each page containing one of twelve attributes . . . Opportunity, Harmony, Activity, Confidence, Patience, Perseverence, Poise, Kindness, Friendship, Accuracy Gratitude and Happiness—which you should possess as you travel month by month toward your goal—Success.

You will find this calendar not only inspirational and helpful in your home, but a very attractive Christmas gift for your friends. If you would have a new realization of what Life has in store for you, send 50c today to Rose Andrus Wagener, Hotel Hayward, Los Angeles, California. The calendar will be sent you postpaid immediately.—Adv.
