WILSON FOR WAR ENTRY IN 1916 IS EDUCATORS WORD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A. M. Arnett of the University of North Carolina said today he had proof that President Wilson wanted to enter the World War in 1915.

He gave his story to the American Historical Association in conference here and announced that he would elaborate on it next summer in a book with the probable title "We Kept Him (Wilson) Out of War."

Arnett declared he has proved that a reported "sunrise conference" in April, 1916, between President Wilson, Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the house, and Representatives Clark and Flood was not a "myth—as thought by some historians—but an actual meeting at which Wilson expressed eagerness for immediate war, only to be blocked temporarily by these three men.

The United States did not go to war until April of the next year. The Carolinian cited as proof a letter written in 1921 by Kitchin to a friend, C. H. Claudy:

"Champ Clark, Flood and myself did have, early one morning, between 7 and 8 o'clock, such a conference with the president. At that time he seemed anxious to go to war with Germany immediately. This was in April, 1916."

"Champ Clark, Flood and myself have talked about the matter dozens of times and our recollection is to just what was said exactly coincides."
