PACIFIC DEFENSES HELD GREAT NEED BY RESERVE HEAD

Land defenses along the Pacific coast are more important now than along the Atlantic coast, Lieut.-Col. Frank E. Lowe told 34 active, retired, national guard and reserve officers at a luncheon given in his honor this noon at Valentine's cafe.

National president of the Reserve Officers association, Col. Lowe is making a nation-wide tour of inspection. He arrived here by plane from San Francisco this morning and continued his flight this afternoon to Portland where he was to make an official visitation tonight.

Col. Lowe said he had been informed there was not a single useful piece of military equipment along the Pacific coast for defense against an attack from sea.

"The initiative for national defense has passed from the east coast to the west coast," Col. Lowe said. "It is high time that you out here concerned yourself with national defense. You need never fear lack of cooperation from the east."

Col. Lowe emphasized that national defense does not mean preparation for war as is intended by pacifists. The army, he asserted, keeps the country out of war and reserve officers, together with all other citizens, should direct their energies toward maintenance of peace.

The colonel dwelled upon the aims of the Reserve Officers association, emphasizing its efforts to attain adequate national land defenses and explaining how it functions in carrying out its purposes.

Lieut. Lyle P. Wilcox, president of the Rogue Valley chapter of the Reserve Officers association, presided at the luncheon. He called upon Maj. George R. Owens, commanding the Medford CCG district, and Capt. Harold J. Baum, president of the 9th corps area council of the Reserve Officers association, both of whom responded with short talks. Capt. Baum, who resides in Seattle, met Col. Lowe in San Francisco and flew north with him.

Bunny rabbits are getting rare in Kansas, a check by L. D. Wooster, professor of zoology at Fort Hays State college, was shown in recent rabbit drives. It was found only one cottontail was killed to every 1,000 jack-rabbits.

VETERANS LEADER TELLS KIWANIS BONUS FIGHT WON

"Payment of the adjusted service certificate bonus to veterans of the world war will be made within the next 30 days," was the prediction given the Medford Kiwanis club this noon by Dwight Alderman, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Alderman, in outlining the stand of the V. F. W. on the bonus matter, stated that representatives of the boys immediately in the hope of quick action on the bonus, cash payment to be made with cancellation of interest where part has been borrowed.

Seven other major objectives of the V. F. W. organization were pointed out. 1. Uniform pension for veterans based upon the length of service, type of service, and degree of disability. 2. Dependent of alien advocates of the overthrow of the American government by violence. 3. Conservation of capital and industry without profit in the time of war, on the same basis as man power. 4. Permanent neutrality for the U. S. 5. Federal control or supervision of sale and manufacture of armaments. 7. Adequate national defense.

Alderman pointed out that payment of the bonus will bring $20,000,000 to Oregon, $713,694 coming to Jackson county to help carry the expenses of loans, taxes, and other expenditures.

In the matter of national defense, Alderman pointed out to the Kiwanis club that defensive strength was the best guarantee possible against this country's ever having to employ their offensive strength in warfare. He said that the veterans themselves, in the V. F. W., are commending to congress that a national defense be made of 145,000 troops, 14,000 officers, and 210,000 national guardsmen, as a protective measure.

Mr. Alderman and Ira D. Canfield, district commander of the V. F. W., were introduced to the meeting by District Attorney George Coddling, commander of the local post.

It was announced at the meeting that election of officers will be held next Monday, at the regular meeting. J. Holmes was a guest at the luncheon today.

HEIRESS CHARGES MOTHER PLOTTED TO KEEP FORTUNE

the young woman, the action declared, contradicted the description of the girl as subnormal mentally, but said she was backward from the standpoint of educational attainments.

If the girl provided and had a child, the heir provided, her child was to receive the trust funds, income under her death, but that if she died without motherhood, Mrs. McCarter would receive the girl's share.

Russell P. Tyler, attorney for Miss Hewitt, also announced a suit will be filed in the New Jersey prerogative court, demanding an accounting of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The suit filed here named Mrs. McCarter, Mrs. Tiltman and Boyd and Mrs. Mary S. Healy, psychiatrist employed by the state department of public health.

Miss Hewitt is the granddaughter of Abram S. Hewitt, an early day New York mayor and member of the house of representatives. Her great-grandfather was Peter Cooper, who founded Cooper Union in 1859 and was a candidate for president of the United States.

Carole Lombard In Clever Picture On Craterian Program

Sparkling with bright dialogue, uproarious comedy and breezy performance by its stars, "Hands Across the Table" which came to the Craterian theatre yesterday, should be marked down on your list of "musts" as a delectable bit of sprightly nonsense you shouldn't miss.

This laugh provoking, entertaining comedy also gives the seductive, blond Carole Lombard an opportunity to exhibit her talents in a totally different role. In place of her customary gorgeously gowned sophisticated lady characterizations, the fetching Miss Lombard discloses an amazing flair for light comedy in her portrayal of a poor, but attractive and ambitious maniacist, and the emerges as an able comedienne, delivering her lines with a delightfully sarcastic, infectious gaiety.

Fred MacMurray, as a penniless young playboy, gives his most engaging and skillful performance of his short but promising screen career.

Ralph Bellamy who appears as a wealthy but invalid uncle of Miss Lombard also does a commendable piece of work, while Marie Prevost more than justifies her chances for a screen comeback in a character comedy part that she snatches with keen relish, contributing her share of laughs also.

The story of "Hands Across the Table" centers around the determination and efforts of Miss Lombard to catch a rich husband. Love does not enter her scheme of things as her one desire is to marry money. As a maniacist in a beauty parlor in a swanky Manhattan hotel she meets Bellamy, wealthy but a cripple as the result of a plane crash, who takes an instant liking to her. Into her life comes also MacMurray, young socialite who takes her night clubbing and subsequently mixes his boat to Bermuda.

After confessing that the trip was bought by his prospective millionaire father-in-law, he asks Miss Lombard to put him up at her apartment until he can "return" from his holiday. The two make an agreement that they will carry out their plans to marry a bank roll, their plans develop just as they hoped until the

Joan Blondell Has Role Rialto Comedy

"Miss Pacific Fleet" arrived at the Rialto theatre yesterday, where the picture was shown for the first time locally, and brought with her the biggest cargo of laughs heard here in many a long day. In addition to a comedy house.

A quartette of the screen's best fun makers, made up of two blonde beauties, Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, and Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins, headed the cast with Joan and Glenda again teamed as a pair of wise-cracking gold diggers. They play the parts of two chorus girls, stranded on the Pacific coast, and running a concession in an amusement park at a naval base in the hope of getting enough money to pay their way back to New York and jobs.

They go completely broke, however, when the champion prize fighter of the navy puts a case out of business by his skill as a cane fighter. But the cane fighter falls in love with one of the chorines, Joan, and when a wily promoter starts a beauty contest he agrees to fight the local pug and give the winner's prize, 5,000 votes, to her.

But his own pal falls in love with Joan, which leads to some riotous complications and winds up in a thrilling, though laughable climax, in which there is a kidnapping, a wild motor boat chase and a free for all hair pulling match.

High Herbert, never was so droll as in this picture, plays the role of the beauty contest promoter, whose eye for beauty gets him into a peck of trouble with his overly jealous wife, a part excellently played by Minna Gombell.

Allen Jenkins, as the gob slinger who battles for his girl and then gives his votes to a rival when he finds his sweetie has double crossed him and gone out with his best friend, is even funnier than he was in "The Irish in Us," which is superlative praise.

Warren Hull, famous radio and musical comedy star, is the third side of the triangular romance, wooing and winning the chorus beauty by magnetism and song.
