BOWERMAN'S QUINTET HAS UNDER-DOG ROLE AGAINST SALEM TEAM

The Salem Viking basketball team is expected to arrive in Medford either tonight or tomorrow morning for their game tomorrow night against the Medford high school, the opening game of the season for the Tiger squad. With Medford rated as the underdogs in the fray, Coach Ed Bowerman and Assistant Coach Ed Kirtley have been drilling hard since the start of the season in an attempt to whip the green material into shape. Bob Smith, drafted to duty at center at the last minute, is working into the leading post satisfactorily, with all of the men in good condition. Stamina is expected to play a large part in the game, with the short Medford men intending to rely largely on speed and fast ball handling in an effort to whittle down the advantage of the superior height of the Vikings. It will be "Get the ball as close to the basket as you can and shoot every time you get a chance," as far as the locals are concerned, with Bowerman assuring his men that basketball can't be made unless the ball is thrown. On Friday night the Salem squad goes to Ashland to tangle with the Grizzlies and on Saturday night the locals mix it with the Weed, Cal. outfit. The Weed team will be made up almost entirely of the men who last year grabbed the northern California title.

Amateur movies depicting the newspaper reporters as a flock of people who divide their time between being roaring drunk and calling up the city editor on the phone to hector that they're quitting the job, and having great chunks of money in all their pockets and think reporters are just too lucky to earn their money that way, are being shown in the city. Nearly 50 restaurants in Berlin alone have insisted their barmaids waiters and page-boys attend the daily schools which have sprung up all over the county. Different suits in the morning, and white tie and tails in the evening, with enough money left over to stay drunk on champagne for three weeks at a stretch, is a newspaper that would have to be near Hollywood where they do exaggerate things so.

MOTHERHOOD AIDS GOLF DECLARES GLENNA VARE

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER. MEDFORD, Pa. Jan. 8.—(AP) Glenna Collett Vare, women's national golf champion, says that motherhood has improved her game. "I'm steadier than I was before," said the wife of Edwin H. Vare, Jr. The former Providence society girl, who has won the women's golf title six times, keeps her babies' first shoes on the same shelf with her 50 golf medals. She used a trophy as a christening bowl for her first child. She has no thought of retiring from competitive golf, and would like this year to win the British women's championship, in which she has been runner-up twice. Wearing tailored tweed, she discussed her game since the birth of her two platinum-blond, blue-eyed children, "Glenny" (Glenna Collett Vare, 17 months), and "Noddy" (Edwin Collett Vare, 17 months). "Maybe I'm not as brilliant as I used to be—if I ever was brilliant—and I don't think I have as much distance, but I miss fewer aches," she said. "I shoot fewer 73 rounds, and play about 80 more, with an occasional good score. I go along in a steady way, and I think that's better. "But I don't feel like retiring—I love competition. I like going around, seeing old friends and new places. "Of course I may get beaten so many times that I won't think it's so much fun, but I foresee no reason to quit for years." The children, in shell-pink knit suits and white shoes, rode into the library on the back of a nurse. "Glenny" asked one of her mother's golf clubs and used it unprofessionally to herd their Pekinese dog, "Mokey Mouse," into a corner. "Neither of them has shown the slightest interest in golf," laughed the former Glenna Collett. But she envisions a putting green on the lawn beyond a brick terrace bordered with box, where she will teach them to play about 10 years hence.

And all of the opinions expressed as to the reason for the death of girls' basketball were wrong. The thing that killed the game deeper than a petrified fish was those big baggy black bloomers which swirled and clutched and rendered the combats practically useless. Try to say baggy black bloomers real fast, by the way, and see how far you get. Shorts are indicated for girls as well as men when basketball playing is to be done. But even though the modern basketball outfits cover more territory than do the abbreviated swimming suits one sees on every beach, there is a huge amount of prejudice surrounding any attempt to let the girls' game, no matter how sharply, stick out into the open. So girls' basketball is dead. Down in Australia, for instance, tennis shorts are not popular, even with the women. On the courts, divided skirts, worn three inches above the knee, are the thing. The shorts may be longer than the skirts, but they're still shorts and consequently frowned upon. As a matter of fact, a ballot was taken to discover the relative popularity of shorts and skirts, the result being: For divided skirts, 9; for shorts, 0.

A singular honor was paid Mack Lillard (above), Medford wrestling promoter, when the members of the Medford Boxing Commission, at their annual meeting held Monday night, commended him for the businesslike efficiency with which he has conducted the game in this city. COUNTY BRIEFS

Brownsboro

BROWNSBORO, Jan. 8.—(Sp.)—Mrs. Sarah Spearin of Hornbrook, Cal., is spending a few weeks as guests of her daughter, Mrs. G. A. Hansen, and family. After having a siege of measles, the Wright family have all recovered and the child and Mildred Hansen are now having an attack of the measles. Little Margaret Strahn spent her Christmas vacation with her brother Walter at the Y. W. Marshall home. Frances Myers of Medford spent a few days last week with her friend, Lois Wright. On Saturday they enjoyed a party at the Luther Day home. When Frances returned to her home Lois accompanied her and spent a few days in Medford. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Anzfeld spent Christmas at the Tunn home at Lake Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tucker were dinner guests Christmas day at the Percy Henry home. Christmas guests at the W. M. Hansen home were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hansen, Mildred and Bruce, Mrs. Sarah Spearin, Mrs. L. J. Rohrer and Louis Rohrer. Irene Stowell is the guest of her friend, Irene Charley. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones and Pamela, Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Sams Valley, and Mrs. Pearl of Medford were dinner guests at the Jesse Glass home on Christmas. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Culbertson and daughter Barbara and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Day and daughter were callers at the Wright home Sunday.

Sams Valley

SAMS VALLEY, Jan. 8.—(Sp.)—Burlie Burrows, who was recently injured in a wreck with other members of the family, in eastern Oregon, returned home Sunday. Burlie states that his mother, who is recuperating at Seneca, will not be able to return home for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Staus and young son Donald, recently returned to Astoria, Cal., after spending the winter holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Strouck and Mr. and Mrs. Grantham of Medford. Mrs. Joe Dusenberry underwent a major operation at the Sacred Heart hospital Saturday and is recovering satisfactorily. Mrs. Jack Korner, who is enjoying a visit with relatives and friends in Los Angeles, expects to be home next week. Mrs. Korner returns to California with her son Rimer and family, who spent Christmas vacation with home folks. Friends note with interest the account of the marriage of James Edminston to Miss Eleanor Jeffers. James was formerly a student of the Sams Valley school. Eagle interest awaits the coming of the Sams Valley high school play, "Plain Sister," to be given Friday night, January 10. In reviewing the activities of the field year 1935 in Sams Valley, we find Dan Cupid to have been right on the job, succeeding in tying up 11 residents in the bonds of matrimony. Old Man Stork was less busy but did his share in blessing, less busy but did his share in blessing. The grim reaper, it seems, had to figure in the year's drama and deprived the community of three citizens. Among other activities were three sales of real estate, the construction of three new dwelling houses and the destruction by fire of one home. Friends received for livestock and grain did more to put the farmers on their feet in 1935 than had been received for several years past and was considered, according to farmers' comments, a successful year. At the annual election of officers of Sams Valley Sunday school, all officers held their same positions, with the exception of secretary, to which place Betty Wilson was elected. A light snow fell here Tuesday morning, but soon dissolved into rain. W. W. Edington shipped a truckload of fat hogs into Portland Thursday, for which he received a very satisfactory price. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Collett returned to Williams after spending the holidays with relatives and friends in the valley. Friends noting the death of Mary Sakrada extend their sympathy to the parents and brothers of the deceased. The Sakrada boys attended Sams Valley school a few years ago.

AAA RULING BACKS HAMILTONIAN VIEW OF CONSTITUTION WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A legal argument that has raged since the days of the founding fathers was settled by the supreme court decision on the AAA. It centered around the clause in the constitution empowering congress to tax and in the republic's early days. James Madison held that this meant merely that congress could tax and spend for purposes mentioned in the same section of the constitution, such as for raising armies and regulating interstate commerce. Alexander Hamilton, on the other hand, argued for a broader construction. He said congress could tax and spend for anything—provided it is for the general welfare. The supreme court said it was not now necessary to choose between the phrase "general welfare." It threw AAA out on another ground: that it "invades the reserved rights of the states." The majority opinion of the court said: "Hamilton himself, the leading advocate of broad interpretation of the power to tax and to appropriate for the general welfare, never suggested that any power granted by the constitution could be used for the destruction of local self-government in the states. Story countenances no such doctrine. "It seems never to have occurred to them, or to those who have agreed with them, that the general welfare of the United States (which has always been termed 'an inextinguishable union composed of inextinguishable states') might be served by obliterating the constituent members of the union." Weather. Northern California: Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday; occasionally unsettled north with light rain in extreme north; little change in temperature; moderate westerly wind off coast; increasing tonight. Oregon: Occasional rain west and probably light rain or snow in east portion tonight and Thursday; little change in temperature; moderate westerly wind off coast; increasing tonight.

Tolo

TOLO, Jan. 8.—(Sp.)—A joyous reunion occurred on New Year's day at the Tracy home, when John Bohner and family of Central Point, Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Williams of Grants Pass, Edward Inmann and Mr. Tracy of Alameda dined together. A big turkey dinner was served by Mrs. Tracy. When Messrs. Tracy and Inmann returned to Alameda Thursday, they were held up several hours by a landslide between Baldock creek and Galice station. During the night following the river rose seven feet. Miss Edith Anderson, a student of Gold Hill high school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, is confined to her home here with measles. Ben Dawson and family, who spent the holidays with relatives in Roseburg, stopped here with friends New Year's day. Betty Dawson was an overnight guest at the Muse home. They returned to their home in the Steamboat district Thursday. Mr. Dawson will move his sheep to pasture on the Old Stage road near Gold Hill on Tuesday or Wednesday.
