

QUEEN VICTORIA NO PRIG IS VIEW OF HELEN HAYES

Actress Declares 'Victorian' Label An Injustice—Says Husband Acted As Check On Frivolous Side.

By WILLARD KEEFE
Associated Press Dramatic Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Queen Victoria has for a monument an adjective synonymous with priggishness and prudery, but Helen Hayes holds the "Victorian" that labels the period as an injustice.

"I think," said Miss Hayes, "that had not Victoria married Albert she would have been a very frivolous queen. He was her check-rein."

Miss Hayes happens, at the moment, to be the most active authority on the queen. She is impersonating her with remarkable success in Laurence Housman's play, "Victoria Regina," but long before this she found release in her admiration in collecting Victorian oddities.

"I live in a Victorian age," she explained, "with Victorian furniture. There are two paintings of Victoria in my room."

In a pink dressing robe—boy's size—she sat in the tiny ante-room of her dressing quarters in the Broadway theater. On the walls were prints and tapestries of the sober-faced queen.

"Go to the British museum," she counseled, "and look at the clothes she chose for herself. Bright colors, exquisite and most feminine. She loved to dance, you know. She designed them. She had a vast admiration for Mary Stuart, and proud to be descended from her—which she wasn't—so she popularized the Mary Stuart bonnet."

"But it's easy to understand why people are surprised to learn this about her. After Albert's death, for the greater part of her reign, she wore mourning."

Freed of the ponderous trappings of the 80-year-old queen, Miss Hayes is direct spoken, frank and shrewd. She has a twin satisfaction in her hit, for her acclaimed performance and for a play suitable to take on tour.

Enjoys Touring
"I enjoy touring," she said. "It is so much pleasure to feel that people will suffer inconvenience to come to your play."
"What I mean is that here, in New York, people just come. Last season, when I was out with 'Mary of Scotland,' a couple came to tell me they had driven 150 miles to see the play. Those things do make a tour thrilling."

Now about Vincent Price, who plays the prince consort. Was he her selection?

"He was," she smiled, "but not altogether. In London, Mr. Housman sent me a message saying he wouldn't give me the play unless I took him. So, I priced, he was my choice."

Price, a St. Louis boy and Yale alumnus, was studying German art in London when he was chosen, because of his remarkable resemblance to Prince Albert, to appear in the role in a private performance. She is quite convinced he is the one actor for the part.

"She is definitely through with pictures. She isn't impatient with them, merely too busy. She has her tours and her radio."
"The radio," she confessed, "is not only profitable, but it lets me have my cake and eat it. It allows me to keep my picture public without going to Hollywood."

COUNCILMAN SICK; MEETING PUT OFF

Meeting of the Ashland council scheduled for tonight was postponed today because of the inability of two councilmen to attend.

The council was to appoint two members to fill the unexpired terms of Gerald H. Wanner and Guy T. Applegate who resigned last week as an aftermath of the squabble over the fitness of J. Q. Adams to remain as recorder. Mr. Adams was cleared of inefficiency charges after the two councilmen had resigned.

Two of the remaining four councilmen were unable to attend tonight's scheduled meeting, they being H. S. Ingle and Dr. W. E. Blake. The latter, ill for a week, underwent an operation for removal of his appendix in Ashland Community hospital Wednesday. He was reported today to be recuperating satisfactorily.

The council will probably not meet until next week.

PERMANENT WAVE RESTORES SANITY WOMEN PATIENTS

Illinois Asylum Will Have Beauty Parlor Covering Entire Floor—Brings New Interest in Life

By JOHN LEAR
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)
KANKAKEE, Ill., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The permanent wave was recognized today as a aid to women's sanity.

Curling the hair of female patients in the Illinois state hospital for the insane proved so effective in helping restore their mental balance that a whole building was set aside for a beauty parlor. Supt. Robert Smith disclosed in an interview.

The patients will make appointments for beauty treatments at the new parlor just as women do in the world outside. Just as they would in normal life, they will wait their turn in a waiting room, complete with magazines and radio.

In a room lined with mirrors, expert beauticians will use the newest beautifying gadgets on ladies' heads and faces.
Not only permanent waves, but hair trims, shampoo, oil treatments for the hair and scalp, eyebrow plucking, facials and manicures will be dispensed.

The new parlor is under construction and Dr. Smith says it will be in use by spring. It will be much roomier and more attractive than the hospital ward section in which the parlor was started a year ago.

The success of the idea was explained by Dr. Smith in a sentence: "When you get a woman to look into a mirror and see that her face is prettier, she's feeling better and takes a new interest in life."

J'VILLE P. T. A. ENJOYS PROGRAM

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 10.—(Sp1.)—Jacksonville P. T. A. held a meeting January 3, at which Raymond Hunsaker's seventh and eighth grades gave a program which they had prepared themselves. One of the pupils also acted as announcer and gave a brief talk on the origin of each poem and musical number, with the name of the author or composer, which added much to the interest and appreciation with which they were received.

These impromptu programs are an aid to the children in overcoming self-consciousness and developing originality and are enjoyed by the parents. The meeting was called to order by President Thelma McIntyre, who asked for reports of the various committees.

The question of serving hot lunches was again brought up and discussed but no definite plans made. A committee was appointed by Mrs. McIntyre to meet and decide this as it is felt the hot lunches should be started at once during the rainy, cold weather. Mr. Coe gave a short, interesting talk and Miss Charleton gave a report of the last meeting. Although the weather was cold and rainy there was a fair attendance which it is hoped will be increased at the next meeting to be held the first Friday in February. The high school was awarded the pennant for having the largest number of parents present.

Life Of Lithia Park Elk Comes To End

Teddy Roosevelt, the big 14-year-old elk that graced Lithia park in Ashland until his life was brought to an end yesterday, was being stuffed today for mounting in the Elks lodge, his owner.

The animal, pet of many children, was reaching the end of his life span and the Elks considered it an act of humaneness to kill him painlessly before he began suffering from the infirmities of old age.
