

All-Star Card to Reopen Wrestling War at Armory, 8:30 Tonight

TOUGH OPPONENT PICKED TO TAME MEANIE HOLLIS

Peck Tangles With Japanese in Middle Fracas—Cowboy to Face Bulgarian in Opening Fireworks

After a three weeks layoff, wrestling starts at the armory again at 8:30 tonight with six of the best grapplers ever to appear in Medford. The climax of the three-star card is to be the knock-down, drag-out battle between Ken Hollis and Toughy Cleet, New York mat star.

Before the holidays, Hollis appeared in a series of brutal exhibitions here, hammering Les Wolfe and Bob Kennaston into senseless masses with rabbit punches, slugging, kicking and every other variety of dirty wrestling. When Promoter Mack Lillard left on a scouting trip, he promised to bring back a man who could return Hollis' treatment in like coin, and he announces that Cleet is just the man. A quiet man when undisturbed, he is said to become a maniac when irritated by foul tactics in the ring.

The middle main event has attracted as much interest as the other bouts with the second jiu-jitsu match ever to be held in Medford. Shinuchi Shikuma, huge Japanese jiu-jitsu champion rated among the five clearest jiu men in Japan, is meeting Frankie Peck. Peck, a globe trotting adventurer from San Francisco has already met Shikuma once, when he stayed longer against the big Japanese than any other white man. Peck has wrestled under the jiu-jitsu rules in Shanghai, Tokyo and other spots in the Orient, and once wrestled a mixed bout in Singapore, which he won handily.

After weeks of training, Peck has announced that he is again ready to meet Shikuma, and believes he has a better chance of beating him than he did in their earlier tussle, before he had time to work out a defense for the club's attack.

The opening bout is a preliminary in name only. Promoter Lillard said, in that the two men have been wrestling top-line cards in the larger cities. "Dude" Chick, the ex-bull-dogger from the rodeo circuits, hails from Cheyenne, Wyoming, and not from Oklahoma, he said today, although he has wrestled many bouts in Oklahoma City and Tulsa. He stated that he has never before wrestled "Toughy" Taskoff, the Bulgarian with the braiding outstache, although he admitted having heard of that gentleman's prowess. Taskoff will have a slight advantage in their Australian system match of six 10-minute rounds. The American system will be used only in the Hollis-Cleet go, two out of three falls or one hour.

The swimming Kompa sisters, Elizabeth and Erna, would like mightily to land places on the American women's team going over to Berlin next summer to defend the United States Olympic Women's swimming laurels. Aside from the glory that comes with membership on the U. S. Olympic squad, the sisters have a very definite reason for devoting their best efforts toward making the team.

Such an achievement would send them back to their native land. Elizabeth and Erna disclosed this added incentive recently in Coral Gables, Fla., where they participated in the fourth annual Miami Biltmore Olympic Stars aquatic meet.

Twelve years ago, August Kompa, the father, faced a grave crisis. Virtually penniless, suffering from war wounds, with no prospect of employment, Kompa assembled his wife and three daughters and decided to seek a new start in America.

Leaving their German home at Essen, the Kompa family found new life in New York. Father Kompa found work and his daughters were quick to adapt themselves to American child life.

Swimming, they found, was a lot of fun, and Elizabeth and Erna were quick to learn.

Beauty in Backstroke
"We liked backstroke best," said Sister Elizabeth, "because it was such a pretty stroke. So useless, but so beautiful I guess we both made this our specialty because neither one of us would ever let the other get very far ahead. We've always done things alike."

Erna is 21 and Elizabeth 20. Both are engaged in secretarial work, their contribution to the family bread-winning.

Their striking resemblance leads many to believe them twins. Both are blonde and wear similar coiffures.

"We're great pals everywhere except the swimming pool," says Sister Erna. "I try just as hard to beat each other as we do other swimmers in our race. I think it's perhaps this sharp rivalry that accounts for whatever we have achieved."

Eleanor Holm, Jarrett was an inspiration for the Kompas. They tried to pattern their style of swimming from Mrs. Jarrett's.

Relatives in Germany have sent the Kompa sisters newspaper clippings about plans for the Olympics. Should they make the trip, their relatives will be confronted with a dilemma. They must decide whether to remain loyal and cheer for the Reich, or to favor their kinship by pulling for the Kompa girls.

They learned in U. S. "We couldn't swim a stroke when Tonight Frankie meets Shinuchi Shikuma, Japanese black-belt jiu jitsu champion, a 210-pound Nipponese who has the largest feet in the wrestling game. The match is the middle bout on tonight's three-star armory card, and will be a mixed event, one fall catch-as-catch-can, and one fall jiu jitsu, the winner of the fastest fall to choose the style of the third.

"we left Germany," said Erna, "and now it seems—although we aren't counting our chickens before they are hatched—that we may have a chance to return on the strength of our swimming. Gee, it would be fun!"

If the sisters continue the torrid pace of the last year, they should have no trouble reaching their goal. Elizabeth holds the world record of 0:06 for the 400-meter backstroke event. She is 220-yard Metropolitan and National A. U. champion and holds national records in races ranging from 800 to 800 yards.

Many wonder how the Kompa girls, born in Germany, can compete in the Olympic games as members of the U. S. team. The Olympic ruling in such cases specifies that children whose parents were naturalized before the children reached the age of 21 may compete for the nation in which they reside.

Erna swims the backstroke turn on the National A. U. championship medley relay team and is 100-yard Metropolitan champion. She holds other National A. U. marks in races of 100 meters, 400 and 440 yards.

Both girls have an easy, graceful, tireless stroke. So even and untruffled is their long racing stroke that their speed seems secondary.

HINES CAPTURES L. A. OPEN DESPITE JITTERY WINDUP

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Touring golfers turned toward northern California today, with young Jimmy Hines, newly crowned king of the Los Angeles $5,000 open, leading the brigade.

Hines, a strapping, free swinging professional from Garden City, Long Island, won the Los Angeles trophy, and what was probably more important to him, $1,500 in cash, with a par 72-hole score of 290.

It was his second straight win in southern California winter tournaments. The Sunday before he took the Riverside $3,000 open.

His victory yesterday, turned in before a gallery of 8,000, was closer, and for a time, doubtful.

Going into the last round 3 strokes up on Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., Hines faltered under the strain of earlier and par shooting. He dropped four strokes when he hooked into traps on the 14th, 15th and 18th, and finished with a card for the tournament of 69-68-69-74—280.

Picard, tied with Hines at the start of the championship round, hit a similar streak of misfortune, and wound up with a 284 to tie for second and third place money with Jimmy Thomson, Long driving pro from Ridgewood, N. J. They split $1,300.

Vic Gheml, Deal, N. J., the defending champion, who was a sensation in the first round and a disappointment in the second, came back with a 72-99 in the final 18 for a 285.

Even with him was Mark Fry, young Oakland, Calif., pro., leading west coast contender for the big purse. The two divided $700.

The traveling pro will compete in the Sacramento open beginning Jan. 16, and the big San Francisco open Jan. 25.

MONAGHAN HIGH IN SUNDAY SHOOT

Charlie Monaghan turned in the highest scores in the practice events at the traps of the Medford Gun club Sunday, when he broke a 24 and a 25. A strong tail wind made shooting conditions too tough for most of the boys. In a special handicap event Dr. Chas. Lemery and Jack Porter tied with 21 for high honors.

The scores:

Geo. L. Jantzer	24	25	49

The Medford Table Tennis club, of which we are father, and to date, sole member, will meet Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Smoke House Bowl. By that we don't mean that we will meet with oneself and hold a weighty epigrammatic, but that every man, woman or child in, or around, the city of Medford is invited to come to the meeting.

Only that way can we find if there is enough interest in the game to warrant going ahead with organization plans.

The idea at present is to rent space for five or six tables, secure the tables, bats and other equipment and start playing as soon as possible. The "club rooms" would be open from early morning to late at night, and club members would be perfectly free to play at any time they liked. By having several tables, there would be little congestion, and it would be possible to play a friendly game at nearly any time of day. Women, of course, are asked to join the club, and ladies tournaments will be run from time to time.

There are enough good table tennis players in town to help in teaching beginners, although probably no effort would be made to have tournaments, either round-robin or inter-city, for a few weeks.

Those who saw the Medford junior high school basketball team, under Coach Russ Achison, perform against Williams Friday night as a preliminary to the West-Medford game, are agreed that basketball is due for a revival here. The way the kids worked the ball in, broke fast, and used their heads in setting up plays, indicates that many fine players will be developed and ready to start active playing when they enter high school.

The system of building up basketball players in the lower grades is not new in Medford. In fact, it has been used here for several years, but only recently has the school district been able to enter as extensively into the training of the younger students as they would like.

Almost every style of wrestling will be seen tonight when Mack Lillard opens his 1936 wrestling show. For those who like their wrestling unadorned by any science, there is the Ken Hollis-"Toughy" Cleet go. For those who like a mixed bout of jiu-jitsu and catch-as-catch-can wrestling, there is the Frankie Peck-"Killer" Shikuma bout, and the fast, clean, regulation type wrestling will be seen in the opening bout between "Tiger" Taskoff and "Dude" Chick. This bout may not be so clean, but it ought to be fast, since Chick is reckoned one of the fastest big men in the game, according to advance announcement.

That Notre Dame-Northwestern basketball tie, 20-20, sounds almost unbelievable, but that was the real score when the game was over. Ties in basketball are unheard of, because when a game ends in a tie an overtime period, or periods, continue until the deadlock is broken. But in the game at Evanston, the two score-keepers were asleep at the switch and ruled it a 20-19 victory for Northwestern. As long as the two said so, the referee could do nothing, although he knew the score was tied at 20-all. Newspaper scorers watching the game were unanimous in their opinion that the score was 20-all, and were not hesitant about saying so. The tie score has been accepted as correct by both schools and the referee.

BEAVERS, HUSKIES LEADING RACE FOR CONFERENCE TITLE

SEATTLE, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Oregon State college and Washington have sounded a warning that they again intend to fight it out for the northern division Pacific coast conference basketball championship.

That was the size-up of the hoop situation in that region today after the Beavers and Huskies opened the season with double victories Friday and Saturday. Oregon State defeated Idaho at Corvallis, 31 to 24 and 45 to 19, and Washington downed Washington State at Seattle, 30 to 26, and 40 to 23.

Last year Oregon State nosed out Washington for the northern crown but lost in the playoff with Southern California for the Pacific coast title.
