

COMMUNITY CLUB TRUSTEES REPORT SUCCESSFUL YEAR

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees and the board of directors for the Girls' Community club held at the club-house last evening, reports presented indicated a most successful and active year, according to Mrs. Dolph Phipps, president of the organization, who conducted the meeting. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Hosan.

Mrs. Margaret Kerr, treasurer, gave an itemized account of expenditures for the past year, and receipts from the Community chest and from the house. Mrs. Florence Lang, mistress of the house, reported an average of seven resident girls for the past year. Four of the girls were married and two received civil service appointments in Washington, D. C. Numerous entertainments were arranged by the girls during the year, and Mrs. Lang stated that an unusually fine feeling of comradeship exists among the residents, and that all appreciate the benefits derived through the maintenance of the club house.

Mrs. Lang also gave a resume of the activities and projects available to the girls, which include badminton and basketball, orchestras, contract bridge, knitting, arts and crafts, radio drama and social recreation. Mrs. E. E. Gore, Miss Alice Holmbeck, Mrs. Myra Russel, Mrs. Arlene Thompson, Mrs. O. A. Eden, Mrs. Stanley Jones, Mrs. Aletha Vawter, Mrs. E. S. Bartlan and Mrs. Della Mann are class and study leaders who have voluntarily offered their services.

Mrs. Phipps stated that the club-house provides a meeting place for a large number of civic organizations, regular monthly scheduled meetings including six Delphian groups, two Wednesday Study groups, four meetings of women's chorus and one of the Jackson County Health association. Many other organizations, including P. T. A. groups, use the club rooms for special entertainments, the average number of those using facilities of the club being between 400 and 500 each month. The rooms are also frequently used for private parties.

Mrs. Louise Humphreys, past president of the Greater Medford club, read a resolution, whereby that organization presented to the Girls' Community club all personal property, consisting of furniture, furnishings and dishes; also, five shares of Jackson County Building and Loan stock and ten shares of Copco stock, plus a deed to their real property, a lot on South Ivy street.

By-laws for the corporation were read by the secretary, Mrs. Aletha Vawter, and were adopted as read. It was also voted to have 14 directors serve for the ensuing year, officers to be: President, Mrs. Dolph Phipps; vice-president, Mrs. I. E. Schuler; secretary, Mrs. Aletha Vawter; and treasurer, Miss Margaret Kerr.

The board of trustees elected are Mrs. T. W. Miles, Eugene Thornblade, Mrs. A. J. Hanby, Don Newbury, and Dr. B. R. Elliott. Plans were discussed and approved for painting the house and constructing a storage and woodshed.

Mrs. Phipps was presented with flowers in appreciation of her work during the past year. Rooms were beautifully decorated with daffodils, scacels, ferns and yellow tapers in brass candlesticks.

Directors and trustees and their husbands and wives attending the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Aldrich; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammond; Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Morris; Mr. and Mrs. Don Newbury; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Miles; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pennington; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holloway; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hanby; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Welshaar; Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Schuler; Mr. and Mrs. Louise Humphreys; Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Elliott; Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Phipps; Mrs. Mary Brown; Miss Margaret Kerr; Mrs. Aletha Vawter; Porter Neff; and Eugene Thornblade.

ASCENT TO THRONE DEPRIVES PRINCE OF LOVED LIBERTY

his family calls him) Windsor, belongs the heart of this, a wholly lovable, unpretentious, outdoor chap who had rather be with his men on the roundup on his "E.P." ranch at Pekisko, Calgary, than playing the role of royalty.

Palaces and regal splendor mean nothing to him for himself. Often he has gone about his heavy public duties as Prince of Wales through yearning for the great outdoors—his ranch, his farms, his cattle, his horses and his sports.

Even when in residence in London his home has reflected the character of David Windsor. He has lived in great York house, which adjoins beautiful old St. James' palace, abode of many famous royal predecessors. But to him it has been just his "digs."

Now David Windsor becomes king-emperor and moves into the wondrous palaces of the English monarchs, thrusting behind him his "digs," his Canadian ranch, and all the rest of the private life which he has held dear.

EDWARD ASSUMES BRITISH SCEPTER IN ANCIENT RITES

royal household, went to Saint Mary of Magdalene's church this morning for a holy communion service.

The service was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury who only a few hours before had given a last blessing to the dying king.

Flag at Full Mast.

Unlike the remainder of the countryside, where flags whipped at half-staff in a strong wind, the royal standard on the little church flew from the top of its pole.

A symbol of the last half of the slogan, "The King is Dead! Long Live the King!" the standard always flies at full staff, signifying that the British empire is never without a ruler.

The former Prince of Wales, now Britain's first "lying king," left Sandringham house by automobile with the Duke of York at 11:10 a.m. (6:10 a.m. E.S.T.) for the Bercham, Newton, airdrome a few miles away, where they took their plane for London.

The new monarch piloted the private ship himself as the first innovation of his reign.

The royal brothers—One the new king, the other the heir presumptive—wore black overcoats and bowler hats.

Edward, with only a few hours sleep, appeared worn and tired, but he raised his hat in acknowledgement to the greetings of the few who saw him leave.

Cold King Death Cause.

The late King George, four days after he contracted a sudden illness, succumbed at 11:55 o'clock (6:55 p.m. E.S.T.) last night to complications arising from a severe cold, bronchial catarrh and a heart weakness—a burden too heavy for his frail form to bear.

Stealing themselves for the double ordeal of burying the dead king and proclaiming the new sovereign, Queen Mary and her children wept and prayed over King George's bier, as the empire of 450,000,000 subjects waited to do him homage.

After comforting his mother, Queen Mary, in their hour of grief, the 41-year-old Prince of Wales conferred with court officials this morning before hastening to London to be acclaimed King Edward VIII.

Respecting their privacy, the saddened subjects and neighbors of the bereaved family left them to their sorrow.

From high and low, from all parts of the earth, came messages of condolence. Broadcasts were discontinued, and London crowds were hushed.

To Rest Before Altar.

The court decided to transfer his majesty's body to St. Mary of Magdalene's church here late in the day to rest temporarily before the altar, as did the bodies of his mother, Queen Alexandra, his brother, the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, and his youngest son, John.

The body of the late monarch will be removed privately to London, to lie in state, probably in Westminster hall.

Interment will take place at Windsor, just west of London on the Thames, and seat of one of the traditional royal residences.

King George probably will go to his last resting place in a vault, there beside the bodies of his father, King Edward VII, Charles I and Henry VIII.

Here in Norfolk, near the bleak coast 100 miles northeast of London, the neighbor subjects mourned the passing of the country squire, sportsman, church-goer and family man they had known for years.

Elsewhere in the empire, it was King George's devotion to duty, which inspired the British people through the long, dreary days of their greatest war and subsequent depression, which was sorely missed in these days of international tensions.

The sovereign, declining gradually for days, passed on to a peaceful end, unconscious in his last moments.

Knowing that death was near, the royal family remained close to the sick room throughout the long, sad evening.

George V ascended the British throne as "the sailor king," he left it as "the democratic king."

Unassuming to the point of shyness, devout and faithful in religion, hard-working, devoted to his children and home life, and with a dignity relieved by the twinkle in his eyes, he typified the qualities which his subjects held highest.

He sought a position close to the hearts of his people in a kindly and quiet way; unlike most men, he found proof of his achievement in his own lifetime.

This came strongest in the deep sympathy that was world-wide during his serious illnesses of 1928 and 1929. Then huge crowds stood nightly outside Buckingham palace and messengers and prayers came from remote quarters of the globe.

"It was an encouragement beyond description," he said after his first illness, "to feel that my constant and earnest desire has been granted —the desire to gain the confidence and affection of my people."

Trained First As Sailor

Unlike many British kings, George V did not begin training in childhood for occupancy of the throne. He was the second son of Edward VII and was 26 years old when he became heir to the crown on the death of his elder brother, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence.

Meanwhile, George had embarked upon a naval career which kept him almost constantly at sea from the time he was 12 and which had carried him from cadet-ship to the rank of commander by the time of his brother's death. Thereafter his duties as heir apparent precluded exclusive devotion to the navy though, within two years after his father became King Edward VII, successive promotions brought him rank of vice admiral.

Soon after his father's accession on January 22, 1901, Prince George embarked upon an extensive tour which took him to Australia, South Africa and Canada. It was followed in succeeding years by a number of trips, including one to India.

When he succeeded to the throne May 6, 1910, at the age of 44, the empire had a sovereign unique for his first-hand acquaintance with the world and the dominions he was called to rule.

Stresses Imperial Sovereignty.

If England knew less about the new king then perhaps any before, and at first drew vivid contrasts between his general reserve and serious aspect and his father's winning personality and gay removal of the isolation of the throne which had grown up in Queen Victoria's reign, George V nevertheless was popular and had stamped himself as capable of independent thought.

The nation had had a sharp example of that in 1901 when he returned from his colonial tour and made a dramatic "Wake up, England!" exhortation at the Guildhall.

From the beginning, King George contrived by democratic participation in many public events and by other means to strengthen the crown as an unifying influence, divorced from domestic party strife, in the country and empire.

His stress on the principle of imperial sovereignty came to the fore in 1911 when, with Queen Mary, he made a notable visit to India.

When the war cast its shadow over Europe, King George made every effort to prevent the outbreak, addressing personal appeals to the emperors of Russia and Germany.

When these failed and his own country was plunged into the conflict, he issued a proclamation mobilizing the British army and announced an unwavering determination to fight until victorious.

The ruler and his family set themselves to lending the royal influence and encouragement to every form of national activity in aid of the fighting forces. Strict economy measures were put in force in the royal household.

The king paid repeated visits to his troops in Belgium and France; in 1917 he stripped German titles and names from the royal family and changed the name of the ruling house from that of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha to Windsor.

Post-war years brought home rule to Ireland, a larger share in self-government to India as well as steps towards her independence, and the significant development of the British commonwealth of nations with the crown as the chief link of the empire.

They also brought difficulties in the domestic situation, culminating in the general strike of 1926 which paralyzed industry and even threatened a social revolution.

Illness Endangers Life

But the country as a whole held firm to the respect it had always shown to the king and the political crisis passed to be succeeded by a greater crisis, his serious illness.

This started in November, 1928, when a chill believed to have been caught on Armistice Sunday, when he stood bareheaded in the rain during the ceremony at the Cenotaph, developed into fever and some congestion of one lung.

In December counsellors of state were appointed; an operation was performed to drain the right side of the king's chest. Back on his feet again, he suffered two relapses, an abscess having formed under the site of the operation scar.

A second operation was subsequently performed and portions of two ribs were removed to drain the abscess. Recovery was rapid but it was not until January, 1930, that he fully filled his first public engagement by opening the London naval conference.

Gradually he extended the range of his activities and his health remained satisfactory except for attacks of rheumatism which kept him from attending royal courts in 1930 and 1933.

Maries Brother's Fiancee

King George, whose full name was George Frederick Ernest Albert, second son of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra, then Prince and Princess of Wales, was born June 3, 1865, in Marlborough House, London.

On July 6, 1893, he married Princess Victoria Mary, who had been betrothed to his elder brother. She was the daughter of Frederick, Duke of Teck, and Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck.

They had six children, the youngest of whom, Prince John, died at the age of 14 in 1919. The others are: The Prince of Wales, born June 23, 1894; the Duke of York, born December 14, 1895; the Princess Royal, Gloucester, born March 21, 1900; and Prince George, born December 20, 1902.

The Princess Royal was married to Viscount Lascelles, now Earl of Harewood, in 1922 and a year later the Duke of York married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

Four grandchildren of King George were born to these unions. The princess became the mother of two sons while the Duke and Duchess of York were parents of Princess Elizabeth, born April 21, 1926, and Princess Margaret Rose, born August 21, 1930.

"Ride with the Five Star Final."

YOU'LL SEE WHY I PICKED A PLYMOUTH!

HALF A TON of Philadelphia newspapers... Walter Dombrow loads his big, beautiful Plymouth for the nightly trip of 20 miles... delivering final editions to 30 Philadelphia neighborhoods.

"NO CAR FOR ME without 100% hydraulic brakes!" Walter Dombrow has never been in an accident. "I want safety all the time!"

"I GET 18 MILES to the gallon of gas in city driving," says Mr. Dombrow; "22 on the road."

"I'M SOLD ON PLYMOUTH," declares Walter Dombrow, World War veteran who now drives a 20-mile newspaper night route... six nights a week. "My job punishes a car, but this 1936 Plymouth can take it!"

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH WALTER DOMBROW, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THIRTY NEIGHBORHOODS around Philadelphia expect their newspapers when Walter Dombrow starts on his night route with the final editions. Twenty miles to go... six nights every week.

"I never have to disappoint them... because my Plymouth never fails.

"Ride that route with me some night, carrying half a ton of finals, and you'll see why I picked Plymouth."

Safety is just as important as reliability to Mr. Dombrow. "I wouldn't even ride in a car without genuine hydraulic brakes," he says.

His earlier model Plymouth cost him far less for upkeep or repairs than any other car he has ever owned.

"And my new Plymouth," he declares, "is giving me 18 miles to the gallon of gas in city traffic... 22 miles out on the road."

All we can add is: "Look at All Three." Drive them... compare them on safety, economy, reliability and comfort.

Before you buy any car, ask your Chrysler, Dodge or De Soto dealer to let you drive one of the beautiful 1936 Plymouths.

BROPHY ELECTED HEAD PRODUCTION LOAN ASSOCIATION

At the second annual meeting of the Medford Production Credit Association, held yesterday at the court-house, all incumbent officers were re-elected by the board of directors.

Vern D. Brophy, stockman of this county was elected president; Ben Hilton, Grants Pass, vice-president, and Luther K. Deuel, manager-secretary. Clarence Zimwalt of Sixes, Curry county, and Jesse D. Clinton of Myrtle Point, were re-elected directors for a three year term.

Delegates in attendance totaled 49, 32 from Jackson county, two from Coos county, one from Curry county, eight from Josephine county, and six from Douglas county.

The annual report read by Secretary Deuel showed that the 1935 loans were twice the volume of 1934, that a profit was shown, and all loans paid promptly and that the percentage of loans to the number of applications was heavier.

Joseph D. Bradley of Spokane, Wn., vice-president of the Federal Land Bank, addressed the meeting on the purpose of the Farm Credit Association, and explained the need of short and long terms to agriculture, and the co-ordination of past farm legislation with the Farm Credit Act, so as to leave no gaps.

President Brophy also explained the progress of the association the past year, and discussed various phases of the annual report.

H. Van Hovenberg of Gold Hill, and C. Wesley Williams of Douglas county, also gave talks. Van Hovenberg spoke from the standpoint of a fruit raiser, Williams from the viewpoint of a rangeland grower.
