Mystery Drama on Rialto Screen

Karloff and Lugosi are together again in the screen's strangest story of mystery and science, "The Invisible Ray," playing at the Rialto theater tomorrow and Saturday.

The story deals with the amazing scientific developments which in actual fact seem now on the verge of accomplishment, and the discovery of a new element, "Radium X," a thousand times more powerful than radium. The cast supporting the stars are Frances Drake, Frank Lawton, Violet Kemble Cooper and Beulah Bondi.

Irene Dunne at Craterian Sunday

Broken new theatrical history with setting box office records wherever it has shown, "Magnificent Obsession" comes Sunday to the Craterian theater for its local engagement. With Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor costarring in the leading roles.

Readers will recall the plot which has a young wastrel's life being saved while an eminent surgeon dies—there being but one pulmotor available and the playboy being the lucky one who has first call. Irene Dunne plays the part of the surgeon's widow and Robert Taylor is the playboy who tries to force his attentions upon her—much to her disgust. When, to es-
