

HOLLIS PINS LONG IN DECIDING FALL WITH BODY PRESS

Wayne Long, colorful "Kansas Hurricane" and one of the most efficient wrestlers seen here in some time, last night made the fatal mistake of assuming that Ken Hollis was as tired as he looked and lost the match when he lost his vigilance in the third frame.

Long opened the match with some nicely timed armlets, and then knocked the Arkansas manie stily with five Sonnenbergs in less than a minute, taking the fall from a be-ruffled opponent with a body press after first reducing him to a jelly.

Hollis took the second fall with a Boston crab hold, Long giving up as soon as it was applied rather than submit to the extra punishment. During the fall, Hollis indulged freely in his usual hair pulling, eye gouging and slugging, but got almost the same kind of coin in return.

The last frame saw Long in apparently the best condition of the two and the "Hurricane" was dishing out a few blows of his own when he seemed to have Hollis at his mercy. But by virtue of several pile-driver trumps on the back of the neck, Hollis recovered and banged Long with three body slams, from which Long emerged by use of more head butts.

In his eagerness to set the toughy on the Coakles up for another series of Sonnenbergs he relaxed his vigilance for a second, bounded into the ropes and over Hollis' prostrate form, and was pinned when he lost his balance.

Frank Taylor, making good his assertion that Max Glover of Detroit could not throw him again after Glover had taken their first match here, took the only fall and the match when the Detroit was unable to return after an unmerciful Boston crab. There was no fall in the first round of the Australian system match. In the second, Glover heaved Taylor out of the arena four times in a row, Taylor getting a little sore each time. On the fifth venture among the audience he became really angry, rung a haymaker on Glover as he scrambled through the ropes and then applied the crab. The fans violently protested his first inclination to give Glover time to recuperate.

Paul Pettigrew of New Orleans, judy and seemingly out of condition at least had stamina enough to pin Tiger Taskoff in the curtain raiser, two times in the three rounds fought. Pettigrew took the first fall in short order with wrist blows and a Boston crab, Tiger countered with body slams and a hammerlock, and Pettigrew answered the last fumble when he knocked Tiger down and pinned him with a body press.

All is not milk and honey in this series between Medford and Grants Pass high schools on the basketball courts. On the basis of relative records, the Tigers would seem to have a decided edge over the Cavemen, but there is a 27-21 victory to look at. One point is narrow picking by which to win a basketball game, and Grants Pass has improved rapidly since the last clash. The Tigers have also improved but Coach Bowerman is not ready to admit that the locals face a tough ball game and we know it," he said.

Another ball game that looks almost too tough from here, is the encounter Friday night, when the Oregon freshmen invade the city for one game. The Frosh have a great team, even for a college freshman outfit, and the Medford squad is hardly to be regarded as the strongest basketball aggregation in the state. But rather than the Frosh strength working against the Tigers, that is going to be a decided asset to the locals. Players who are expecting a setup, and then run into unexpected resistance, are apt to go to pieces. That's what happened the other night when OSC handed them that shattering defeat. Oregon made a strong showing against Washington in the last game—OSC didn't look so hot.

The Three-C Headquarters company basketball team and the Blue Raiders played a really classic game Saturday afternoon. The score at the end of the game was 23-23. The first overtime period ended in another deadlock, 27-27, and the second overtime ended in another stalemate—29-29. Knowing that they couldn't keep that up forever, they threw in the towel and agreed to resume their battle at a later date.

They planned to play again some time this week, but there being wheels within wheels, the game may be carried over until next week. The Headquarters team, after testing the Blue Raider metal, would like to schedule a few more encounters before they tangle again. The manager of the team has suggested that a city league be formed for independent teams, but admitted that it was a little late for such maneuvers now.

SENIOR TRICKERY AIDS IN VICTORY OVER JUNIOR FIVE

A new wrinkle in basketball strategy, undreamed of by college and high school coaches for all these years, and yet ridiculously simple, was uncovered last night when the Junior and Senior high school faculties tangled in the game of the century, the Seniors eking out a 27-24 win.

The new play, evolved by Senior Guard Ed Kirtley, was so astounding in its simplicity that the Juniors were sure it must involve some infraction of rules and protested violently to Referee Campbell, who allowed their protest.

The move was mippy this: Prior to the game, the Seniors had mounted a board across the back struts of one of the baskets, by way of a cat-walk. Buddy Horner, Senior student, scrambled onto this perch, hid behind the backboard, and when a long leave came near him, jumped like a jack-in-the-box, seized the sphere, and plunked it through the net. An interesting diversion was then enjoyed as lanky Stretch Ettinger, representing the Junior camp, took out after him and the two put on an aerial circus as Horner fled through the rafters.

The game was halted and the two returned to the floor. Both teams looked pretty silly.

The rest of the game was a marvellous combination of basketball and handball, designed to frighten the ordinary fan half out of his wits. Early in the game the instructors became tired, one by one, and eventually retired from the battle in favor of younger men. Each team charged the other with using "ringers," but both did it, and a good time was had by all—the spectators.

Bowerman, Senior coach, was high for the game with 14 points, which he denies having made through the use of fouls. Tucker, Junior forward, almost lost the spirit of the game at times, and made some really attractive looking baskets. He made 10 points before getting the swing of things and then succeeded in bouncing them off the end of the gym, as was most everyone else.

A good crowd turned out for the fracas, and through the medium of the Junior high quarters, netted $32.75, ample funds to send the Toy Bulldogs of the Junior high to Roseburg Friday night, the purpose for which the game was played.

Ducks Suffering For Failure To Make Migration

POCATELLO, Idaho, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Hundreds of ducks are starving and freezing to death on the slough lands at Thornton, Idaho, about seven miles north of Rigby, it was reported today by residents.

Carl A. Horn and A. D. Marler said they had appealed to authorities, but nothing had been done for the "wild fowl," estimated to number between 20,000 and 25,000. They are too weak to get off the water and more birds are dying every day, the men said.

Residents are puzzled why the ducks did not fly south in the fall, saying it was the first time they recall that the birds attempted to winter there.

BORAH AND KNOX TO WAGE FIGHT IN ILLINOIS PRIMARY

political developments included a warning from Herbert Hoover of what he called "the possible menace of inflation" and emphasis from new deal spokesmen on increased payrolls.

Perks in Points to Results.

Secretary Perkins struck a new deal talking point in Waterville, Me., last night by declaring that payrolls had increased "more than 50 percent from the low point of the depression."

At a Colby college institute, she attributed "a rising curve" in labor and business to new deal measures. She listed gains by wage earners since March, 1933, and said the weekly payroll for industries surveyed by the labor department have jumped $122,000,000 since the low point.

"Production, farm income, profits and dividends," she asserted, "have all shown a rising curve since then, and banks, insurance companies and railroads are in a much stronger economic position."

Hoover Tells Views.

Former President Hoover's views were expressed at San Jose, Calif., yesterday as testimony before a court which is asked to permit Stanford university trustees to invest part of the institution's funds in stocks instead of bonds and first mortgages.

"The devaluation of the dollar, the widespread bank credit inflation and the possible menace of currency inflation," he testified, "are the new factors with which the trustees must deal. The theory of the devaluation of the dollar is that it will increase prices of commodities, thus causing a rise in the cost of living. . . . The theory also implies a transfer of values from the bondholder to the common stockholder."

The former president is speaking tomorrow at a Lincoln day dinner in Portland, Ore.

Knox Hits New Deal.

Colonel Knox, Chicago publisher, pushed his anti-new deal attack to Philadelphia, where the Democrats meet in June. He said the new deal is "sneaking through the mire," and compared the administration to the governments of "Mussolini, Stalin and Hitler."

Knox declared new dealers "have turned the platform of a great party into a rear platform from which to peddle their nostrums. If they can sell them to enough people, the pink pills of today will be red pills tomorrow."

The Borah strategists were peering at the shores of Lake Erie, the organization Republicans at Columbus were equally intent upon finding presidential timber to block the idahoan's drive for delegates.

State Chairman Ed D. Schorr said word had been sent out to various potential candidates to find out what they intend to do and if they "want to get into the Ohio fight."

RISKO UNIMPRESSIVE IN BEATING FISHER

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Edie "Babe" Riako, sturdy Syracuse, N. Y. fighter who won the middle-weight championship five months ago, had one scalp on his title belt today, but few who saw him defeat Tony Fisher were impressed by his performance.

He outpointed Fisher, a 21-year-old Newark boxer, in a 10-round contest at Laurel Garden last night. He won eight rounds and gave Fisher a sound beating, but lacked the brilliance expected of a champion. Each weighed 159 1/2 lbs.

CHICOPEE FALLS, Mass., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Sixty happy years together have taught Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Degray there is no formula for a successful marriage.

AMERICAN PUCKSTERS TRIM CZECH TEAM IN OLYMPIC COMPETITION

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Reinforced by young Phil La Baite from Minneapolis, the United States returned to form today and whipped Czechoslovakia, 3-0, in the first game of the second round robin series leading to the Olympic hockey championship.

The United States plunged into the thick of competition today, breaking into the scoring column for the first time on the blades of her flying skaters, and challenging positions in the four-man bob-sledding championships.

While J. Hubert Stevens' Lake Placid team turned in the fastest time of the day in the first half of the four-man bob-sledding event, Leo Freisinger of Chicago and Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee produced America's initial points in the race for the unofficial team championship.

Neither American could challenge the twin Norwegian aces, Ivar Ballangrud and Geog Krog. In the battle for the 500-meter speed skating crown, but Freisinger finished third and Lamb fifth. Ballangrud won the championship in 48.4 seconds, signaling the Olympic record.

This shows me over to the Miller place

Yes, sir—43 years I've been distilling

I don't wonder it gives Pete Miller a chuckle when he sees my boys all grown up and working along with me on our Family's Whiskey. But Pete can laugh—those boys of mine are just as much responsible as me for making our family's whiskey the mildest, tastiest whiskey Pete Miller and I guess anybody else ever got a swallow of. I think when you try it you're going to wish you'd got hold of it a whole lot sooner.
